PREFACE

The present volume was made possible by the generosity of the late William Scranton Pardee of New Haven, in his life an active member, and by the terms of his will a benefactor, of The New Haven Colony Historical Society. Under one clause of his will, a fund was established, to be administered by the Society, for a history of his first American ancestor, George Pardee, and of the Pardee family.

The preparation of the genealogy was delayed by the fact that Mr. Pardee's death occurred during the course of the World War; the services of the undersigned were eventually retained to compile a Pardee Genealogy. In the meanwhile, Mr. Francis Bacon Trowbridge had collected a large amount of valuable material, which he very kindly turned over to the compiler. It proved of great assistance, covering as it did the greater part of available printed sources.

The original public records of nearly every Connecticut town where members of the Pardee family lived have been searched. Several branches removed early to New York, where they soon scattered through almost every county of that State. The deficiencies of the early New York State records are well known, and the cost of making a personal search of such records as exist was prohibitive. In many cases, pertinent records were obtained at slight cost from the Surrogates' Courts, but for the most part it was necessary to rely on the information descendants were able to supply. Such omissions as may be found in the account of the earlier generations are due chiefly to these causes.

The compiler's task has been lightened by the active aid and encouragement of several descendants. Mr. J. Homan Pardee, of Buffalo, N. Y., had a thorough search made of English records, which resulted in the discovery of George Pardee's home and parentage. The important results of this research, which Mr. Pardee conducted at his own expense quite independently of the William Scranton Pardee fund, were donated by him to the Society for inclusion in the present volume. A similar donation was made by Mr. Theodore Q. Pardee, of Cleveland, Ohio, of a history of the French Pardés, which was prepared for him in France.

Mr. Walter Stone Pardee, of Chicago, collected a considerable amount of Pardee data before the present genealogy was begun, and kindly placed this at the compiler's service. Mr. Carlos Parsons Darling, of Lawrenceville, Pa., who has been interested in the Pardee family for many years, rendered a like service, and valuable aid was also rendered by Mrs. Henry C. Sanders, Jr., of Claremont, N. H.

Miss Lydia M. Patchen, of Westfield, N. Y., became interested in the Sharon branch of the Pardees as early as 1900, and Mr. Frank B. Lamb, of the same town, copied all her notes verbatim and sent them to the compiler.

The small Pardee Genealogy, published in 1896 by the late Hon. Aaron Pardee, of Wadsworth, Ohio, has also supplied much important material.

In 1852, Mr. Samuel H. Pardee, of Windham, Ohio, wrote a family history of his own branch, beginning with a grandson of the first George Pardee. A copy of this invaluable document was furnished by Mr. Harry S. Pardee and Mr. Otway Pardee, of Seattle, Washington; and Rev. Charles J. Pardee, of Carbonale, Ill., supplied extensive statistics of this branch.

The Pardee Genealogy

Dr. Harold E. B. Pardee, of New York City, permitted the inspection of a family tree of the Sharon branch made many years ago by his grandfather, Dr. Walter Pardee.

Most valuable assistance was rendered by Mrs. Fanny Carr Pardee, of Washington, D. C., who volunteered to read through the Revolutionary Pardee documents at the Pension Bureau and to make note of items of interest. Data from U. S. Census records were obtained through the kind offices of Mr. H. W. Jenks, and of the Misses Curry, of Washington, D. C.

Acknowledgment is made to the Trustees of Hopkins Grammar School, and through them to Mr. Edwin Oviatt and the Yale University Press, for their gracious permission to use cuts which appear in Chapter V. The generosity of several descendants has made it possible to increase the attractiveness of the book by the inclusion of many illustrations.

Where recent generations are incomplete or omitted, the blame must be placed chiefly at the doors of those descendants who through indifference failed to respond to repeated requests for information; though in a few cases the compiler may have failed to learn the addresses of those who might have been interested could they have been reached.

Thanks should be given to those who took the time and trouble to send statistics of their immediate families, but they are too numerous to mention individually. Special acknowledgment to those who compiled, either partially or wholly, the records of an entire branch of the family, is made in the genealogical section.

THE PARDEE MEMORIAL

On the next page may be seen a picture of the beautiful tablet which was given by a descendant in honor of George Pardee and has been placed on the wall of the Pilgrim Tercentenary Stairway in the building of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston. The statement of the parentage of George Pardee which appears on this tablet was based on the original researches of Mr. Richard Holworthy, the English genealogist, whose reasons for reaching his conclusions are ably presented in the third chapter of the present volume. Since some of the traditional beliefs entertained by many descendants run counter to the facts and deductions set forth in the following pages, it is appropriate to state here that Mr. Holworthy's conclusions have been submitted to other genealogists of long experience in English research and that they concur in his findings. The acceptance by the New England Society of the wording on the Pardee tablet is significant, because all statements made on these tablets were carefully investigated before they were accepted.

The tablet is of bronze. The coloring of the border is green, "George Pardee" and the dates following are all in red, and the initial letters of the following phrases are also in red, the remaining letters being in cream.

CHAPTER I

THE PARDEE NAME

A LARGE majority of the Pardees of America descend from George Pardee, who settled in New Haven, Connecticut, in 1644. The name was spelled Pardee or Pardy in the early records, but the former became the standard spelling in nearly all branches of the family. In a few instances, the spelling Pardy was adopted and occasionally has survived to the present time.

The early American pronunciation is best represented by the spelling Pardy, with the accent on the first syllable. This pronunciation still prevails among most of the branches which have remained in the vicinity of New Haven. Many descendants, however, prefer to give the final 'double e' its full force, and to accent the last syllable. The orthography and pronunciation of a name are matters of individual preference, and it would be unduly dogmatic to assert that any particular form is correct and the others incorrect.

The name Pardee in England seems originally to have been derived from the ejaculation 'pardy,' which in turn was a corruption of the French oath 'par Dieu,' and was thus the equivalent of the Saxon name Bigod. The ejaculation 'pardy' was quite common in medieval England, and came to be used without thought of its origin or meaning, much as the harmless exclamation 'oh dear' is used to-day in ignorance of its derivation from the Italian word for 'God.' At a time when surnames were coming into use, some trivial incident may have caused the soubriquet 'pardy' (Pardee) to be added to the Christian name of some person who had previously lacked a surname. Similar names, such as Purdy and Pardoe, also occur.*

The parentage of George Pardee has been located in England through researches instituted by Mr. J. Homan Pardee, of Buffalo, New York, and full particulars will be found in the third and fourth chapters of this volume. Here we need merely say that it is definitely established that the family resided for two generations in the neighborhood of Taunton, in the County of Somerset. Beyond this, the origin of the family is a matter of conjecture.

* Harrison's Surnames of the United Kingdom (1918), II. 59, derives the names Pardew, Pardey, and Pardy from the French 'Par Dieu,' but indicates that the names Pardoe and Pardow may come from the Old Teutonic name-stem Pard- or from the Italian and Spanish pardo, meaning leopard.

Among descendants of George Pardee, more than one tradition of his origin has been preserved. Descendants of Abijah⁶ (Abijah⁵, Jacob⁴, George³, George²) understood that the first George came to this country from England. The branch of James⁵ (Stephen⁴, Stephen³, George²) has always understood that the family was French. The eldest line from Joseph² (through Enos³, Thomas⁴, and Joseph⁵) has inherited the tradition that the family was originally Welsh. Amos R.⁷ (Amos⁶, Charles⁵, Ebenezer⁴, Ebenezer³, George²) told his children that seven generations back from himself his ancestor was a Frenchman who went to England and married a Welsh girl. Some mingling of the French and Welsh traditions is also evident in the branch of Enoch H.⁷, great-grandson of James⁴ (Ebenezer³, George²). The most widespread tradition is to the effect that the family was originally French, and it is often added that it was a Huguenot family.

In 1896 the Hon. Aaron Pardee, of Wadsworth, Ohio, published a history of his branch of the Pardee family. It has been learned that Mr. Pardee's knowledge when he started this work did not extend much beyond his immediate family, and that he employed a professional genealogist to supply information on the earlier generations. The genealogist whom he employed was herself of Pardee descent, and she came from a branch (Josiah⁴, Josiah³, Joseph²) in which the French Huguenot tradition was very strong. As a result of this, the Huguenot tradition was set forth in Mr. Pardee's book in positive terms, and thus has been given wide circulation.

The Huguenot Society has accepted George Pardee as an eligible ancestor. At the suggestion of interested descendants, the writer sent a letter to the Huguenot Society of New York, informing the Society of the discovery of George Pardee's family in England and of the preparation of the Pardee Genealogy, and inquiring whether the Society had positive proof that George was a Huguenot. No reply was received.

Nothing has been found in contemporary records on this side of the Atlantic to indicate that George was French, and it is not very likely that a "foreigner," as the English colonists regarded Frenchmen, would have been employed to teach at the Hopkins Grammar School, where one of the chief subjects of instruction was the reading and writing of English. On the other hand, there are strong reasons for accepting the English birth and parentage which are set forth at length in the third chapter.

The acceptance of his English birth does not preclude the possibility that George belonged to a French Huguenot family. His grandfather, whose antecedents have not been traced, flourished at about the time of the earlier persecutions in France, and it is possible that he was among the Huguenots who fled at that time. This is an interesting speculation, but no evidence has been discovered to substantiate it.

The tradition of Welsh origin does not appear to be as widespread as the French tradition among George's descendants. Few traditions of Welsh ancestry of early New England settlers have been found to have a basis in fact. It may be worth mentioning, however, that a number of the Welsh clergy were scattered about England in the time of George's father, the Rev. Anthony Pardee; also, that the name Anthony occurs in a Pardy family of Gloucestershire, not far from the Welsh border.

In conclusion, it should be pointed out that the mere fact of the French origin of the name constitutes no proof that the Pardees were of French blood. The word 'pardy' was in common use in England, and might have been adopted as a surname by a family which had no French affiliations. There were Pardees in England before there were Huguenot persecutions in France. It should also be remembered that there may have been Pardees of two or more unrelated families, who in blood were racially distinct. It is therefore quite possible that members of French families of similar name migrated to England, where Pardees or Pardys were already living, and slightly altered the spelling of their name to conform to the prevailing mode. Some notice of French "Pardees" will be found in the next chapter.

No coat-of-arms for English Pardee families has been found.

CHAPTER II

PARDIEU AND PARDE

THE undoubted French origin of the Pardee name, and the long accepted tradition that George Pardee was of French descent, justify a brief investigation of families of a similar name in France. Mr. Theodore Q. Pardee very kindly furnished a document dealing with the subject which was prepared for him in France, and following this lead Mr. J. Homan Pardee engaged the services of M. Sorbier, whose official position, and wide knowledge of French genealogies, guarantee the authenticity of his findings. The unquestioned fact that the name Pardee is derived from Pardieu lends interest to the knowledge that a distinguished family named Pardieu flourished in Normandy, just across the channel from England. The following account of this family was prepared by M. Sorbier:

GENEALOGY OF THE HOUSE OF PARDIEU

House known in Normandy for more than 500 years, of which the Seigneurs of Avremesnil are a branch. The first of the house of which we have knowledge is:

Henri de Pardieu, Knight, who, with Jeanne d'Ailly his wife, founded in 1260 the Cordeliers d'Evreux; they are buried, with Jeanne de Pardieu their daughter, before the great altar of that church. (See the history of the Franciscan Order, by François de Gonzague, printed in 1587, Roman edition, folio, page 585.) According to the Register of the Chamber of Accounts, entitled Noster, folio 193, Jean de Pardieu appeared in a muster of arms in 1271. Mention is made of Eustache de Pardieu in the Crusades of the Holy Land. Le Carpentier, in his history of Cambrésis, Book II, page 183, speaks of Pierre de Pardieu, living at the beginning of the 14th Century; he calls him a valiant Colonel. We find in the Genealogy which the Count de Boulainvilliers made of this House, that Robert Pardieu I, and Marie de Bonneval his wife, were living in 1316. This House was divided, at the beginning of the 15th Century, into several branches, by the children of:

I. Nicolas, or Collard de Pardieu, Governor of the city and County of Eu. Henry V, King of England, gave back to him his property which had been confiscated, in 1419; as we see by the charter which mentions it. He married in 1400, Perrette d'Assigny, by whom he had:

1. Robert, who follows, head of the branch of the Seigneurs of Assigny;
2. Nicolas, founder of that of the Seigneurs of Maucomble, considered later;
3. And Martin, source of the branch of the Seigneurs of Boudeville and of Ecotigny, set forth below after that of Maucomble; and from him sprang the Seigneurs of Avremesnil, who alone are extant to-day.

BRANCH OF THE SEIGNEURS OF ASSIGNY

II. Robert de Pardieu II, Seigneur of Assigny, married about 1421, —— de Mainville, by whom he had:

III. Jean de Pardieu, Seigneur of Assigny, who married in 1456, Guillemette Rousseleteneut.

IV. David de Pardieu, Governor of Eu, Captain of Infantry in 1505, who married Marie de Vaudricourt, by whom he had only daughters. The eldest married, 23 June 1521, Jean de Mailloc.

BRANCH OF THE SEIGNEURS OF MAUCOMBLE

II. Nicolas de Pardieu II, Knight, Seigneur of le Thil (second son of Nicolas, or Collard, and Perrette d'Assigny), married in 1426 Colette d'Estrimont, Dame of Gratte-Panche, by whom he had:

III. Nicolas de Pardieu III, Knight, Seigneur of le Thil and of Gratte-Panche, who married in 1448 Marguerite le Moine, Dame of Forestel and of Sourdeval, daughter of Nicolas le Moine, and Marguerite de Floques. From this union was born:

IV. Antoine de Pardieu, Knight, Seigneur of le Thil, Gratte-Panche, and Forestel, who married Guillemette du Croc, who brought him the land of Maucomble in 1505. He had by this alliance:

V. Antoine de Pardieu II, Esquire, Seigneur of Maucomble and of Gratte-Panche, who married in 1522 Françoise de Pardieu, his cousin, daughter of Nicolas, Seigneur of Boudeville, and of Austreberte de Pisseleu. They had:

VI. Adrien de Pardieu, Esquire, Seigneur of Maucomble, of Gratte-Panche, Bailly-en-Riviere, Semeule, etc., Captain of the Port de Mer de Criel, who married, 25 June 1557, Marguerite de Bucy, daughter of René, Seigneur of Fréville, Gournay and Flénouville, and of Jacqueline de Chantelou. Their children were:

1. Jacques, who follows;
2. Madeleine, married to Antoine de Grouches, Knight, Seigneur of Morcourt and of Bacouel, etc., and had issue;

They had:

1. François, Colonel of Cavalry, who died in the Italian Army in 1644, without being married;
2. Jacques, who follows;

BRANCH OF THE SEIGNEURS OF BOUDEVILLE AND ECOTIGNY

II. Martin de Pardieu, Knight (third son of Nicolas or Collard, and of Perrette d'Assigny), was dead in 1456. He married Marie de Lorent, only daughter of Robert, Seigneur of Boudeville and Montebourg, and of an heiress of the old House of Heuse, through whom Martin held the Barony of Ecotigny, after the death of the famous Jean de la Heuse, called Baudran, who was Captain of the Gentlemen of the Bailliage of Caux. He had by this marriage:

III. Robert de Pardieu, Knight, Seigneur of Boudeville, and Baron of Ecotigny, who died 27 Nov. 1477, and was buried with his wife at the Feuillants d'Ouville, in Caux, where we may see their epitaphs. He married about 1456, Jeanne d'Usel, only daughter of Hector d'Usel, Seigneur of Mezy-sur-Seine, near Meulan, one of the principal Seigneurs of Normandy, who distinguished himself in the attack which was made in 1458 on Sandwich in England under Pierre de Brézé, Senechal of Normandy. He is spoken of in the history of France by P. Daniel, Vol. VII, page 305. Their children were:

1. Hector, died without issue from his marriage with Jacqueline Andame;
2. Nicolas, who follows;
3. Gillette, married Jean de Sandouville, Seigneur of Flonneville;
4. And Jeanne, married Antoine de la Granche dit de Cuisy, Esquire, Seigneur of Dracy, in Puisaye, Governor of Courtenay.

IV. Nicolas de Pardieu, Knight, Baron of Boudeville and Ecotigny, qualified, in the acts of 1522 and 1524, "noble et puissant Seigneur," a quality which his descendants have always borne. He married first, Antoinette Sanguin, sister of Antoine Sanguin, called the Cardinal of Meudon, first Grand Chaplain of France, Bishop of Orleans, afterwards Archbishop of Toulouse; and second Austreberte de Pisseleu, daughter of Jean, Knight, Seigneur of Fontaine Lavaganne, and of Jeanne de Dreux, of the House of France. These two women were aunts of Anne de Pisseleu, Duchess of Etampes. He had by the first marriage:

1. Cristophe, who follows;
2. Françoise, married in 1522, Antoine de Pardieu, Seigneur of Maucombe, her cousin, mentioned above.*

And by the second marriage he had:

3. Nicolas, founder of the branch of the Seigneurs of Avremesnil discussed later.

V. Christophe de Pardieu, Baron of Boudeville and Ecotigny, married 10 Oct. 1530, Anne de Clère. Their children were:

1. François, who follows;
2. Madeleine, married in 1554 Pierre du Fay II, Seigneur of la Mésangère, Carafis, etc., and had issue;
3. Anne, married in 1559 Pierre du Tot, Seigneur of Gonfreville;
4. And Claude, married François de Guivremont, Seigneur of Heudreville.

VI. François de Pardieu, Chevalier of the Order of the King, Baron of Boudeville, of Ecotigny and of Balingan, died 11 Oct. 1590. He had married first, 14 Nov. 1550, Marie le Lieur, daughter of Antoine le Lieur, Seigneur of Brametot; and second, Jourdain de Pellevé, sister of Cardinal Nicolas de Pellevé, Archbishop of Reims. By the first marriage he had, with other children:

VII. Centurion de Pardieu, who died in 1614 at the age of 45 years, being gentleman in ordinary of the King's Bedchamber, Baron of Boudeville, Ecotigny and Balingan. He married Judith de Clermont d'Anjou, daughter of Georges de Grammont II, Marquis of Gallerande, and of Marie Clutin de Ville-Parisis. By this marriage he had:

1. François and Leonor, who were dead in 1633 without having been married.

BRANCH OF THE SEIGNEURS OF AVREMESNIL

V. Nicolas de Pardieu III, Knight, Seigneur of Mézy, Socquence or Choquence, Avremesnil, Villepoix, Bouelle, etc. (second son of Nicholas II, and of Austreberte de Pisseleu), was "Ecuyer Tranchant et Echanson" of Madame Marguerite, only sister of King Henri II; was one of the Seigneurs who defended Metz in 1552 against the Emperor Charles V, and died young in 1556. He had married, at the end of the year 1544, Françoise de Chenevelles, Dame of Bouelle and Nesle, near Neufchâtel-en-Bray, by whom he had only:

VI. Guy de Pardieu, Knight, Seigneur of Mézy, Bouelle, Avremesnil and la Motte-Aubretton, was gentleman in ordinary of the King's Bedchamber in 1603, according to a certificate of the Duke of Guise dated from Montargis in 1587; took part in the battles of Vimory and Auneau, and died 17 Dec. 1625. He married, 25 Aug. 1583, Marie du Moucel, Dame of Avremesnil. She was daughter of Jean du Moucel, hereditary Viscount of Blossville, and of Marie Jubert. He was father of:

* The previous section, probably in error, makes her a daughter by the second wife.

VII. François de Pardieu, Knight, Seigneur of Avremesnil, Batiste, la Motte-Aubretton, Bouelle, and Nesle; head of the nobility of the district of Caux in 1649, and died 20 Sept. 1662. He had married, 4 June 1624, being then Captain of Infantry, Marie de Bailleul, daughter of Charles, Seigneur of that place, and of Marie Martel. Their children were:

1. Charles, who follows;
2. Louis, Seigneur of la Motte;
3. André, Seigneur of Catteville, died in the service of the king in 1668;
4. Jacques, Seigneur of Franquesnay, First Lieutenant of the King in the Island of San Domingo, where he gave great proofs of his valor. He was killed, 21 Jan. 1691, in a battle with the Spaniards;
5. And Marguerite, married in 1668 Jean Dyel, Esquire, Seigneur of Clermont.

VIII. Charles de Pardieu, Knight, Marquis of Avremesnil, Seigneur of Bouelle, Batiste, and other places, Captain of Cavalry, Elect of the nobility of the district of Caux, 10 May 1674; died 18 Nov. 1680. He had married, 7 June 1661, Constance Hippolyte de Montigny, daughter of Philippe, Knight, Viscount of Dreux, Baron of la Coudraie, etc., House Master in ordinary of the King's Chamber, Captain of the Guards of the Duke of Longueville, Governor of Dieppe, and of Anne de Dangeul. Their children were:

1. Philippe, who follows;
2. Guillaume, called the Knight of Avremesnil, officer in the Navy;
3. Joseph, Captain of Cavalry;
4. And Anne, who married in 1683 Jean de Clercy, Knight, Seigneur of Angiens, Silleron, etc.

IX. Philippe de Pardieu, Knight, Marquis of Avremesnil, Seigneur of Bouelle, etc., Colonel of a Regiment of Infantry, and Knight of Saint Louis, died 15 Mar. 1746. He had married, 20 Apr. 1696, Geneviève du Mesniel de Sommary, daughter of Louis du Mesniel, Knight, Marquis of Sommary, and of Geneviève Bigot de Graveron de la Turgère. From this union came:

1. Philippe, Musketeer of the King's Guard, who died in 1723, without having married;
2. François Louis Joseph, who follows;
3. And Constance Geneviève Catherine Louise, who married in 1724 Louis Augustin de Canonville, Marquis of Raffetot, and had issue.

X. François Louis Joseph de Pardieu, Count of Avremesnil, Knight of Saint Louis, Inspector of the seacoast of Upper Normandy, married 17 Feb. 1738, Gabrielle Elisabeth de Beauvau, daughter of Gabriel Henri, and of Marie Madeleine de Brancas, daughter of Louis François, Duke of Villars. Their children were:

1. Louis Elisabeth, who follows;
2. And Charlotte Candide, died young.

XI. Louis Elisabeth, Marquis of Pardieu, Colonel in the Grenadiers of France, 21 May 1771, and Colonel of the Provincial Regiment of Alençon the following August, married, 27 June 1763, Elisabeth d'Arquistade de Saint-Fulgent. The issue of this union were:

1. Louis Joseph Elisabeth Centurion, called the Viscount of Pardieu, born 8 Oct. 1767;
2. Charles Gabriel, called the Baron of Pardieu, born 2 Dec. 1768;
3. Christophe Valentin Marie, called the Knight of Pardieu, born 3 Feb. 1770;
4. And Victor Antoine Elisabeth, born 6 May 1772.

PARDIEUS IN FLANDERS

There was in Flanders a branch of the House of Pardieu, which was greatly distinguished by military exploits. The two best known Seigneurs of this branch were:

Jean de Pardieu, Seigneur of la Motte, in Artois, Superintendent of the Fortifications, who for a long time was in command of the horse and foot soldiers of the Emperor Charles V and of King Philip II (of Spain). He died 24 Dec. 1554, and was buried in the Chapel of Saint Catherine of the Church of the "Religieux Dominicains de St. Omer," where his epitaph may be seen.

And Valentin de Pardieu, his son, Knight of la Motte, Count of Esquelbecq, who became Grand Master of the Spanish Artillery, Colonel of all the Flemish Infantry, Governor of Gravelines, etc., and was killed in the attack of Doullens, 16 July 1595, aged 65 years, greatly regretted by the Spaniards whom he commanded. His body was first carried to Arras, then to Saint-Omer, near his father, and at last to Gravelines, over which he had been Governor for 22 years, and was buried with pomp in the church of Saint Willibrord, where we may see his epitaph at the foot of a magnificent tomb of white marble, surrounded by eight crests, representing his arms and those of his connections. He founded the College of la Motte at Douai.

Thus far we have traveled with M. Sorbier, of the College of Heraldry of France, who gives as reference for Pardieu the Armorial of Hozier, I. 424, 563; II. 839; IV. 57, 369. The arms of the noble House of Pardieu are described as or, a lion passant crowned gules; crest, a swan issuing argent.

Even in the absence of proof of connection with the family of George Pardee in England, it is of interest to know that a family of similar name flourished in Normandy. The pronunciation of the name Pardieu to-day approximates very closely to Pardé.

We find also in the Armorial of Hozier, in the Register of Normandy, the registration at Rouen, on 22 April, 1701, of the arms of Benoist de

CHAPTER III

GEORGE PARDEE IN ENGLAND

Prepared by Richard Holworthy, of London, England

UNTIL recently, nothing was definitely known about George Pardee, the ancestor of the American Pardees, prior to 1644, when he was first mentioned in the New Haven records as being apprenticed to Francis Brown. The only clue to his Old World antecedents was afforded by the known fact that he had studied Latin in his youth, making him competent to serve as rector of Hopkins Grammar School in New Haven.

In 1922 Mr. J. Homan Pardee, of Buffalo, New York, instituted a search to locate the English ancestry of George Pardee, and in the course of this search employed the services of the writer of this chapter and his partner, Miss Dorothy O. Shilton. A tremendous amount of work has been done, and many classes of records have been searched document by document, and although there was absolutely no indication as to the locality in England from whence the family came, the undertaking was blessed with a successful issue, and the positive results obtained are set forth below.

ANTHONY PARDEE

The first reference we have to Anthony Pardee, father of the emigrant, is his marriage at Pitminster,* near Taunton, Somerset, on the 3d May, 1614, to Anstice Cox. In the entry in the parish register the name of his father, John Pardee, is given, which is most uncommon at that date, and consequently we may assume that he was a man of importance in the parish. Unfortunately his baptism is not recorded at Pitminster, so it is evident that the family migrated from elsewhere after his birth. Anstice was the youngest daughter of John Cox of Pitminster, where she was baptised on the 25th June, 1587; she had three sisters: Margaret, baptised on the 4th October, 1577, buried on the 15th September, 1596; Elizabeth, baptised on the 24th January, 1579/80, and Grace, baptised on the 24th March, 1582/3, buried on 5th October, 1606. John Cox married at Pitminster Alice Walsbeer, on the 21st January 1576/7; she was buried on the 15th October, 1607; there is no record of his death, but he survived her.

The very important fact that Anthony Pardee was the school-master of Pitminster was found in an entry in an Act Book of the Consistory Court of the Bishop of Bath and Wells, in which the Lord's (i.e. Bishop's) Official appears against him "For teaching School without a licence"; he objected to the charge, but was ordered to procure a licence, and was fined 18^d.

* The manor of Pipeminstre was given by Hardicanute to the Church of Winchester, but in the time of Henry I was given to the Priory of Taunton. There was probably a Saxon church on the site, and some suppose that the square base of the tower was Saxon. The church of St. Andrew and St. Mary at Pitminster, as the name was later spelled, is a beautiful specimen of the Gothic style of architecture, consisting of nave, chancel and two aisles. It has been rather heavily restored, but the tower-arch is thought to be early Thirteenth Century. The tower is peculiar, having a square base, with octagonal top, surmounted by a wooden spire covered with lead. On the south side is an old sun-dial, a picture of which is

In those days it was not unusual for schoolmasters to enter into Holy Orders, which it was possible for them to do without having previously taken a degree at one of the Universities. Anthony Pardee entered the church in this manner, and was licenced as curate of St. Mary Magdalen, Taunton, on the 25th January, 1627/8, by William, Bishop of Bath and Wells—this was the famous William Laud, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, beheaded in 1645. Anthony was ordained priest on the 9th March following, by Robert, Bishop of Bristol. It is doubtful whether John Goodwin or Edward Clark was vicar at the time of his first serving at St. Mary's; probably the former, but only for a short period, for early in 1628 Clark was in charge.

A certain Anthony Purdie of St. Cuthbert, Wells, was cited on the 8th June, 1626, to appear in the Bishop's Court to answer Elizabeth Pounsett in a matrimonial cause. Subsequent references to this man proved that he was a different individual to Anthony Pardee.

William Sclater, D.D., rector of Pitminster, who was probably instrumental to Anthony entering the church, died in 1627; his will is dated on the 29th June in that year, and Anthony appears as one of the witnesses: he did not live long after this, as the will was proved on the 22d October following. Sclater was presented to the rectory by John shown in the text. There are six bells, of which the oldest bears the date 1630. At the time of the Dissolution the manor was presented by Henry VIII to Humphrey Colles, Esq., who made Barton Grange his principal residence and whose tomb now rests in the chancel within the Sacrarium. Robert Treat, Governor of Connecticut, was baptized in Pitminster Church just a year after George Pardee was baptized there. The Treat family have presented the church with a handsome Memorial.

The monuments on the north and south of the Chancel are of alabaster and of the early Seventeenth Century. The one on the north side has a circular arched canopy divided into square compartments, colored blue with gilt roses in the center. The chapel on the north side contains a piscina with the remains of a pedestal upon which probably the figure of Our Lady once rested. On the north window of this chapel are some fragments of ancient glass. The baptistery contains an interesting font (see picture on page 12) with carved panels, representing on the north panel St. George vanquishing the dragon, on the east Christ blessing little children, and on the south a pilgrim with two kneeling peasants.

of the church, and wore a surplice, which he had previously rejected. He published several volumes of sermons, and was author of other works, which were published posthumously, under the editorship of his son.

Early in 1631 Edward Clarke, vicar of St. Mary, Taunton, died, and in his will appears the following item, "I give unto Mr. Pardy five pounds to bee paid within two yeares of my decease." In September of the previous year Clarke was presented by his churchwardens at the Bishop's Visitation, for not wearing a surplice at the administration of the Sacrament, which points to a leaning towards non-conformity, and may have some bearing on an entry in an Act Book, commencing on the 29th March, 1631, in which appears, "Mr. Anthonie Pardee Clarcke. Suspected. The same not to be examined before the next visitation"; and in another book, commencing the 13th October, 1635, there is a similar entry. These entries refer to his being "suspected" of non-conformity. Apart from these, however, there is ample evidence that Anthony was a Puritan, as will be seen later. Clarke was succeeded by the famous George Newton, who was conspicuous for his absence from his cure during the troublous times to come, and was himself deprived for non-conformity on the 24th August, 1662. When the "Declaration of Sports" was issued by the council at the instance of Charles I in 1633, and ordered to be read in all churches, Newton told his congregation that he had read it as the commandment of man, and immediately after he read the 20th Chapter of Exodus as the commandment of God, informing his hearers that the two happened to be in contradiction to each other, but they were at liberty to choose which they liked best. In 1654 he was appointed by Cromwell, one of the Commissioners for ejecting scandalous, ignorant and inefficient schoolmasters.

In December 1631, Anthony Pardee was again before the Court, but unfortunately no particulars of the cause have been found, beyond the fact that the charge "was disputed," and that the case was adjourned fortnightly for some months. On the 13th of the same month there is an entry in an Act Book that he was to receive a licence to preach, on the application of Thomas Hellier, made the 25th November.

A further citation to appear before the Bishop's Court was issued on the 3rd May, 1632; in this case it appears that he had given a certificate that banns of matrimony had been thrice published for the marriage of Henry Jellet and Ann, his wife, whereas they had only been published twice. He duly appeared, and answered that he had, "by meere mistake" issued the certificate. He was dismissed with a warning, but Jellet and his wife did not get off so lightly, for they were ordered to confess incontinency before marriage, before the minister, churchwardens and twelve parishioners, though the mistake was entirely that of Anthony Pardee! On the 22d September, 1635, he was cited in a similar case, James Adrie and his wife being the unfortunate couple.

The last entry to Anthony in the Act Books was on the 30th April, 1632, when he appeared in Court to answer the Lord's Official, but beyond the fact that it was connected with Curry Rivell, a parish some 12 miles from Taunton, and that he was warned to appear and give evidence concerning the matter, nothing is known. It is unfortunate that his evidence cannot be found, as it would have given his birth-place—the probable clue to the earlier pedigree of the family.

Anthony Pardee signed the Protestation Oath Roll in March 1641/2, though unfortunately neither of the names of his sons appear. It must not be taken, however, that they refused, for in that case records would have been found, as the oath was more or less enforced. This Oath was the outcome of an Act of Parliament by which all men had to sign allegiance to Charles I ; its value was soon to become apparent !

Mr. Richard Holworthy)*

REV. GEORGE NEWTON

In an endeavour to obtain references to the family, a complete search was made of all wills relating to Pitminster, Taunton and adjoining parishes between 1600 and 1660. It was entirely owing to this search that it was discovered that Anthony Pardee was a priest and that he was, in fact, in charge of the parish of St. Mary Magdalen, Taunton, during the various sieges by the Royalist forces, the vicar, George Newton, having decamped to St. Albans at the first sign of danger. It is remarkable, too, that in no history of Taunton during the Civil War does his name appear, for, that he necessarily took a leading part, ministering to and encouraging his parishioners, cannot be doubted.

The evidence thus discovered was the endorsement on the will of Joane Babb of Trull—a parish adjoining Pitminster—proved on the 31st December, 1633, before "Master Anthony Pardey, clerk, surrogate for the Venerable Samuel Ward, Archdeacon of Taunton." The inventory of her goods was also exhibited before him, and the original Commission, in Latin, which is attached to the will, is addressed to the "rector, vicar or curate of the parish church of Trull or Taunton Magdalen or his deputy," to administer the oath to the executor, and on the back is an endorsement, certifying that the Commission had been duly carried out, signed "Antho: Pardee."

Afterwards numerous references were found to his acting as surrogate for the archdeacon, the earliest being on the 14th October, 1630, concerning the will of John Hellier of Taunton, and on the 18th April, 1631, the executors of his old vicar, Edward Clarke, were sworn before him. There are eleven other instances, the last of which, dated the 27th January, 1643/4, concerning the will of Henry Butt of Taunton, is of special interest, proving Anthony's presence in the town a few months after it had been taken by the Royalist army. The endorsement is in his own handwriting in Latin, bears his signature and is here reproduced.

There are several references to bequests to Anthony found in these wills, which are as follows. On the 9th April, 1638, Henry Reeve of Taunton—"I give unto Mr. Anthony Pardey Tenn Shillings." In that of Edward West of Trull, in 1640, after a bequest to George Newton appears, "Item, I give and bequeath unto Mr. Anthony Pardey Curat of Taunton aforesaid x^s." On the 15th July, 1640, Richard Pittes of Taunton, "Item I give and bequeath to Mr. Pardye Clarke fyve pounds"; in that of Joan Davies alias Welshman, dated on the 14th May, 1642, "Item I give to Mr. Anthony Pardy of Taunton Fortie shillings." The bequest of Robert Mogaridge of Taunton is specially interesting, being made on the 10th May, 1645, during the great siege; in it, subject to the death of his daughter without issue, he divides the income of his estate into five parts, one of which is given "for the maintenance of the cause for King and Parliament in the Garison where I shall dye soe longe as the Parliamente lasteth to unite them in love." He further bequeaths to Mr. George Newton "late" of Taunton 40^s, and "Item I give Mr. Pardie fortie shillings." This bequest proves beyond all doubt that Anthony was present throughout the sieges, and Newton was absent.

In his position as curate, Anthony was often called upon to sign certificates that a penance which had been inflicted on the parishioners for various offences, such as slander, and so on, had been duly carried out. These penances were very numerous, and as they had to be enacted before one of the clergy, must have occupied quite a lot of time. A reproduction of one of these documents, signed by him, is given on page 54.

Owing to the unsettled times in which he lived, it is only possible to obtain these somewhat disconnected references to his life; there was little time for recording events of minor importance, and even if recorded, they were probably lost or destroyed. But behind the simple entry in the register of St. Mary, that on the 14th January, 1645/6 "Mr. Anthony Pardee" was buried, lies a long story of terrible privations, which cut short the life of the father of one of America's earliest scholars.

GEORGE PARDEE

It is now necessary to consider the question, whether Anthony's son George is identical with our George of New Haven? The following reasons may be adduced for making the identification:—

- First. Very considerable research in many parts of England has failed to disclose another family who consistently spelled their name with the final "ee." Several families of Pardy, Pardie, Pardye, etc., were found, but searches proved that there was no George who could be identical with the emigrant.

The carefully prepared sheepskin parchment church register of St. Andrew and St. Mary, Pitminster, from which the above record of baptism was taken, dates back to 1545.

This certificate was furnished by the present Vicar, the Rev. Alfred Hawken.

Second. The age of Anthony's son George is readily harmonized with the known facts of the career of the American George Pardee.*

Third. Under the auspices of Anthony's vicar, the Revd. George Newton, a body of emigrants, with "an ancient maid, one Mistress Poole," as their leader, sailed in 1636, for New England, and there founded Taunton, Mass. Anthony was, therefore, intimately connected with and assisted in, this movement, and must have received accounts of the new country from relatives of those who had sailed, amongst whom were the Treats from Pitminster; Thomas Trowbridge of Taunton, who had taken part in the settlement of New Haven and returned to Taunton before George emigrated, leaving his younger sons there; and the Revd. Nicholas Street from Bridgewater and of a Taunton family, who was at Taunton, Mass., and afterwards moved to New Haven. The one place, therefore, where George would go, would be New Haven, where he would be among friends.

Fourth. It has been proved that Anthony was a schoolmaster before he entered into Orders, and that he was a Latin scholar. The emigrant was a schoolmaster, and was the only available man in the colony capable of teaching Latin, which he learned in his youth. A knowledge of Latin, sufficient to teach it, was a rare accomplishment in those days, and it is not unnatural to suppose he was intended to follow his father's vocation. The writer of this chapter has formed the theory that George's elder brother, John, was also a schoolmaster, probably at Taunton Grammar School; a position he might easily have obtained through his father's influence, but unfortunately there is no definite proof to support this point.

* No statement of the age of George Pardee has been found in any American record. No record of his death, or age at death, is extant. It is important to emphasize this, because various statements as to the year of birth have appeared in previous publications, which do not harmonize with the date of baptism at Pitminster. Most of these statements may be dismissed as mere guesses. The only one deserving attention is found in Dodd's "East Haven Register," published in 1824, page 163, to the effect that George Pardee died 1700 aged 71. Dodd could have obtained the year of death from the Probate records, and may have estimated that he was 14 or 15 (the usual age) when he was apprenticed in 1644, which would make him about 71 when he died. If he took the age from a gravestone which is no longer in existence, it may be surmised that it was already crumbling when Dodd read it, and that he misread "76" or "77" as 71.—Editor.

Fifth. It is known that the emigrant was a Puritan. That Anthony was also, is beyond doubt, otherwise he could not have remained in charge of St. Mary's during the occupation by the Parliamentary troops, nor could he have served under such staunch Puritans as Sclater, Clarke and Newton without sharing their opinions. Besides we know he had himself been suspected of non-conformity.

Sixth. No information of a negative nature has been discovered.

All these factors, taken together, seem to prove conclusively that George Pardee of New Haven is identical with Anthony's son.

The story of the boyhood of George can only be reconstructed by theorising. He was probably educated at the old Grammar School at Taunton, which was in his father's parish, and that he received additional instruction in Latin from his father can hardly be doubted. It was probably his intention to become a schoolmaster, and eventually enter into Orders, as his father had done, but such intentions must have been cut short by the outbreak of the Civil War.

Taunton—the key to the west of England—became a centre of contention between the rival armies. In August 1642 it was occupied by Sir William Waller for the Parliament, but it was soon threatened by a Royalist army under Hopton, then in Devon. In consequence an order was issued by Parliament, addressed to the mayor, justices and chief burgesses of Taunton, to muster all persons fit for war in the borough, and all other persons that voluntarily offered themselves; to appoint officers, arm, train and put them in readiness to defend the town. Among these we may count George and his brother John, and it is fairly safe to assume that the sons of the curate of St. Mary's would be appointed to some office of trust. Soon after, in June of 1643, the town was attacked, and taken by the Royalists. George is known to have had some bodily handicap, probably lameness; this may well have been the result of a wound received in some skirmish before the town surrendered. It was probably at this juncture that George, to escape the persecution of the Royalist garrison, decided to follow his fortunes in the new country, and went to New Haven. There were the Treats of Milford a few miles distant, probably friends of his youth; the younger sons of Thomas Trowbridge, whom, as already stated, he had left in New Haven when he returned to Taunton, before George emigrated; it would be interesting to know what part Trowbridge played in deciding George's future! There was later the Revd. Nicholas Street, probably a friend of his father. Mr. Matthew Gilbert, who played a leading role in the settlement of New Haven, and later Deputy-Governor of the Colony, was probably related to Street, whose mother was a Gilbert, which suggests a Taunton connection with the New Haven Gilberts. And there were all those others who sailed in 1636, many of whom he must have known in his childhood. Thus George Pardee would not have been friendless on his arrival in a strange land.

PITMINSTER AND TAUNTON

About four and a half miles south by west of Taunton, beautifully situated, at the foot of the Blackdown Hills, lies the little village of Pitminster. A shorter route may, however, be taken through the beautiful Park of Barton Grange, once the residence of Humphrey Colles, to whom Pitminster was granted by Henry VIII at the Dissolution of the Monasteries. The church, which is dedicated to SS. Andrew and Mary, is a fine specimen of Gothic architecture; the tower is peculiar, having a square base, with an octagonal top, surmounted by a wooden spire covered with lead, and on the south side of the church there is an old sun-dial, which will be seen in one of the plates. The old font, which must have been used at the baptism of George Pardee, and other members of the family, is in wonderful preservation. There still remain many old seventeenth century cottages, with their thatched roofs and whitewashed walls, each standing in its own little garden. It is a very good example of an old English rural village.

The tranquil life of the Puritan inhabitants was rudely disturbed at the breaking out of the Civil War, and they suffered great hardships during the various sieges of Taunton at the hands of the Royalist army, who occupied the village. As in other places in the vicinity, the inhabitants for self preservation moved elsewhere—many doubtless seeking an asylum in Taunton itself. It was at Pitminster that the Parliamentary army under Colonel Ralph Weldon rested on Sunday, May 11th, 1645, after having raised the siege of Taunton on the previous day, and his report to Sir Thomas Fairfax, announcing this success, was dated from Pitminster.

The ancient county town of Taunton was formerly noted for its woollen manufacture, a business in which some of the Pardees were interested, as will be shown hereafter. It was an ancient borough by prescription, but its first Charter was granted in 1627 by Charles I a few months before Anthony Pardee went to St. Mary's; the first mayor being Andrew Henley, whose will was proved before Anthony Pardee.

On account of the part played by Taunton during the Civil War, Charles II on his restoration demolished the walls, and took away the Charter, which, however, he renewed a few years later.

SIR THOMAS FAIRFAX

The people of Taunton were, with few exceptions, Puritan to the backbone, and consequently somewhat intolerant. An interesting little side-light was found in an Act Book of 1637, from which it appears that one Thomas Bull was cited to appear in the Bishop's Court for saying that the setting up of organs in St. Mary's church "was but idolatry." It would thus appear that an organ was first installed in Anthony Pardee's time; the present pulpit was erected in 1633, and several fine pieces of plate were given to the church while he was curate there.

large and magnificent building, in the decorated and later styles of English architecture, consisting of a chancel, nave and five aisles, two of which may have been added to the original building, separated by four rows of clustered columns. The tower, which is one of the finest in the county, is 121 feet high, exclusive of the pinnacles of 32 feet, beautifully carved. From the top may be seen an extensive and building was demolished by Queen Ethelburgh, after expelling Eadbrecht, king of the South Saxons, who had seized it. Another castle was said to have been built on the same site by the Bishop of Winchester in the reign of William the Conqueror. In 1497 it was seized by Perkin Warbeck, and during the Civil War, it played a leading part in the defense of the town. Toulmin, in his History of Taunton, states that breaches made by cannon could still be discerned.

ANTH^y ASHLEY COOPER, EARL OF SHAFTESBURY

The old Grammar School, situated in Corporation Street, where George Pardee probably received his education, was founded in 1522

by Richard Fox, Bishop of Winchester, being endowed in 1554 by the Revd. William Walbee.

There are several old almshouses in Taunton, two, those of Robert Gray and Dorothy Henley, having been founded while Anthony Pardee was curate of St. Mary's.

During the Civil War, Taunton, which was considered the key to the west of England, was the object of a vigorous struggle between the contending forces. Soon after the commencement of hostilities in 1642, it was occupied by Sir William Waller for the Parliament. It was soon after threatened by the Royalist army under Lord Hopton, then sweeping through Devon, in consequence of which, Parliament issued an order on the 4th March, 1642/3 to the mayor and others to muster the trained bands for the defense of the town. None too soon, however, for early in June the combined forces of Prince Maurice, Hertford and Hopton, joining at Chard, advanced to Orchard, two miles from Taunton. The garrison not being considered sufficiently strong to defend the town, it was ordered by Colonel Popham to march to Bridgewater, with all arms and ammunition, and to throw the ordnance and carriages into the moat of the Castle. The inhabitants were infuriated at this, and prevented the guard from leaving, with the result that a large quantity of arms and ammunition fell into the hands of the enemy. Two of the townspeople went out to treat, but nothing being concluded, the Royalists advanced and occupied the undefended town, demanding a composition of £8,000, which was duly paid. Lord Hertford remained in Taunton for some days, and on leaving appointed Sir John Stawell, Governor. The town remained in their hands for just over a year.

On the 8th July, 1644, soon after the battle of Marston Moor, it was again taken by Colonel—afterwards the famous Admiral—Blake, who had successfully withstood a long siege in Lyme Regis, and Sir Robert Pye, for the Parliament. Blake, a local man, born at Bridgewater, was appointed Governor, and he must have been well known to Anthony Pardee.

Soon after, Taunton was attacked by a force of some 3,000 Royalists, but Blake sent out a party which entirely routed them. It remained, however, more or less in a state of siege, and on the 6th November, 1644 Waller was ordered to relieve the town, but this he was not able to undertake; in the following month Major General Holborn was directed to push westward through Dorset to its relief, and being joined by Sir Anthony Ashley Cooper, on the 10th December succeeded in throwing much needed supplies into the town.

On the 11th March, 1645 a Royalist army of 10,000 men laid siege to Taunton; the defense was one of the outstanding features of the war; the resolution of Blake was gallantly supported by the inhabitants, and there can be little doubt that John Pardee, and possibly other members of the family, took part, while the Revd. Anthony Pardee was active in other directions. This siege lasted for 59 days, during which time further supplies were brought into the town by a body of troops under Vandruske, a German, who broke through the enemy ranks. Conditions, however, became so appalling that Blake announced that he would not surrender until he had eaten his boots, and tradition tells us that the defenders had but one half-starved hog left, which they drove round the walls, prodding it to make it cry, to deceive the besiegers into the belief that fresh supplies had been thrown in.

These were the conditions the gallant defenders were in, when at 4 o'clock on Sunday, the 11th May, the news ran through the streets that the relief force had arrived; it consisted of some six or seven thousand men under Colonel Weldon—little more than half the number of the Royalists. At the time the Revd. Thomas Welman, vicar of Luppit, near Honiton in Devon, who had fled to Taunton, was preaching in St. James' Church, when some ran in, crying "deliverance," whereupon the congregation started running out, but he prevailed on them to return and offer up thanks for their delivery.

Colonel Weldon had sent a party of horse right up to the walls, and then withdrew to Pitminster, making his entry into the town on Monday, the 12th May.

The Royalists had been under the impression that Fairfax, with his whole army, had come to the relief, and finding it was but a comparatively small body, Goring, with the united forces of Hopton, Berkeley and Grenville, attacked Weldon, and driving him into the town, commenced a second siege on the 20th May, which lasted for five weeks being raised on the 3d July on the approach of Fairfax, though a few days later, on the 8th, he attempted to take the town by surprise. From thence forward Taunton was left in peace, but, as already stated, Anthony Pardee did not long survive to enjoy it.

On the anniversary of the relief, sermons were preached for some years, including three by Anthony Pardee's vicar, George Newton, which have been printed. The following historical song was written on the subject, and gives some idea of the conditions in the town during the sieges:

The eleventh of May was a joyful day,
When Taunton got relief;
Which turn'd our sorrows into joy,
And eas'd us of our grief.

The Taunton men were valiant then,
In keeping of the town,
While many of those, who were our foes,
Lay gasping on the ground.

When Colonel Massey, of the same,
Did understand aright;
He, like a man of courage bold,
Prepared himself to fight.

With that our soldiers, one and all,
Cast up their caps, and cry'd,
What need we fear what man can do,
Since God is on our side.

Long time did Goring lie encamp'd
Against fair Taunton town;
He made a vow to starve us out,
And batter our castle down.

Within our castle did remain
(A garrison so strong)
Those likely lads which did unto
Our parliament belong.

GEORGE, LORD GORING
1645

From the original of VanDyke

Before day-light appear'd in view,
The news to them was come;
That Goring, and his cursed crew,
Were all dispers'd and gone.

But who can tell what joy was there,
And what content of mind
Was put into the hearts of those,
Who'd been so long confin'd.

Our bread was fourteen-pence per pound,
And all things sold full dear,
Which made our soldiers make short meals
And pinch themselves full near.

Our beer was eighteen-pence per quart,
(As for a truth was told)
And butter eighteen-pence per pound,
To christians there was sold.

The cavaliers dispers'd with fear,
And forced were to run,
On the eleventh of May, by break of day,
Ere rising of the sun.

GEORGE PARDEE'S RELATIONS

Anthony Pardee had seven children, all baptised at Pitminster, of whom George was the youngest but one; they were:

1. Elizabeth, baptised on the 6th February, 1614/5; married Thomas Branscombe at St. Mary, Taunton, on the 17th March, 1642/3.
2. Martha, baptised the 1st December, 1616.
3. John, baptised on the 21st May, 1618, of whom presently.
4. Grace, baptised the 19th November, 1620. Possibly buried at Pitminster on the 16th May, 1680.
5. Katherine, baptised on the 27th January, 1621/2.
6. George, baptised on the 19th February, 1623/4. The Emigrant.
7. Barbara, baptised on the 12th September, 1626.

John, the elder son of Anthony Pardee, lived in Taunton, and of him we have but a few fleeting glances. He was a witness to the will of Joane Thorne of Taunton, widow, on the 25th November, 1650, and also that of Richard Gradon of Taunton, tailor, dated on the 4th March, 1650/1; in the latter Edward Peurdey or Purdye, who will be referred to later, was appointed an overseer. Lastly he appears as a witness to the will of Thomas Quarrel of Taunton, gent., on the 30th July, 1652.

Though John Pardee lived and died in Taunton, and was described in his will as gentleman, he does not appear to have held any property there. A complete search of the Court Rolls failed to produce a single reference to him. This may, however, be accounted for; if he was a master of the Grammar School, and lived in it, he would not appear in the Court Rolls, unless he held property as an investment, or by descent, which, however, was not the case. He was buried at St. Mary, Taunton, on the 14th December, 1655. In his will, which is dated four days before his burial, probably made on the day of his death—he leaves to his three surviving children £30 each, the interest of which was to be paid to his widow toward their maintenance. He appointed Christopher Gill of Taunton, inn-holder, and Edward Pardy of Taunton St. James, tanner, his overseers, giving them a pair of gloves each. The will was proved on the 7th February, 1656/7 by his widow. John and Eleanor had four children, all baptised at St. Mary's:

1. John baptised on the 15th October, 1648, of whom presently.
2. Anthony, baptised on the 20th October, 1650, living in 1667.
3. Edward, baptised on the 20th July, 1652, buried on the 8th October, 1655.
4. Ellenor, baptised on the 5th November, 1654, buried on the 27th March 1656.

Eleanor, the widow, married secondly at St. Mary's on the 3d February, 1657/8, John Yewens, or Ewens, by whom she had two sons, Edward and David. She married thirdly John Swayne of Taunton, inn-holder, as his second wife. He had a daughter Dorothy, but it is uncertain whether she was the mother. John Swayne made his will on the 28th March, 1667, and in it mentions his stepsons John and Anthony Pardee, and Edward and David Ewens.

FAMILY CONNECTIONS OF GEORGE PARTEE IN ENGLAND

After the death of her third husband Eleanor appears to have moved to West Monkton, for on the 25th November, 1676, we find her, with a number of other people, including Ann, wife of John Pardy of the same place, comber, summoned for riotously rescuing one John Sampson from custody, and were themselves arrested in consequence. Who this Ann Pardy was, is uncertain; one would suppose her to have been the wife of Eleanor's son John, but we know he was already married to Thomasine Pearce, who survived him; possibly a mistake was made in the writ. Unfortunately the registers of West Monkton do not exist before 1710, so no information can be gleaned from that source.

John Pardee, son of John and Eleanor, and grandson of the Revd. Anthony Pardee, married Thomasine Pearce at St. Mary, Taunton, on the 14th April, 1670; they had four children, all baptised at St. Mary's:

John, baptised on the 21st September, 1673, buried on the 8th March following.

John, baptised on the 19th May, 1678.

Dorothy, baptised on the 17th July, 1681.

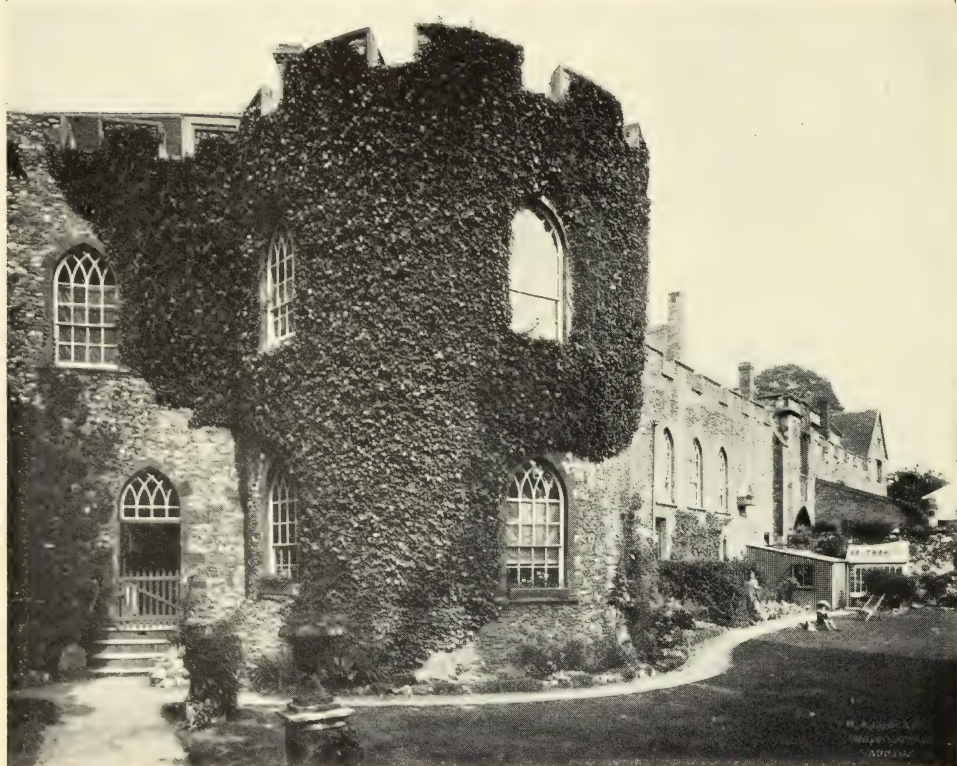

William, baptised on the 11th April, 1690.

He was buried at St. Mary's on the 26th May, 1700, and administration of his goods was granted to his widow, Thomasine, on the 28th September, 1700, the bondmen being John Pardy of Taunton, presumably his son, and Joan Ewens, probably some relation of his stepfather John Yewens or Ewens. No attempt has been made to trace this branch of the family further down.

We must now return to Pitminster, where entries appear in the registers to Nathaniel, Robert and John Pardee, who were almost certainly brothers of the Revd. Anthony Pardee. The entire absence of testamentary records concerning the earlier generations in Pitminster and Taunton makes identification exceedingly difficult, though there can be little doubt as to the accuracy of the following statements.

Nathaniel married Jane Northam on the 21st October, 1617. She was the daughter of John Northam, and was baptised at Pitminster on the 13th May, 1593. They had two children baptised at Pitminster, Peter on the 5th (?) August, 1618, and Mary on the 29th August, 1619; she married John Peeke on the 27th September, 1654. Jane was buried at Pitminster on the 7th January, 1648/9. No further reference is found to Nathaniel at Pitminster. He was evidently interested in the woolen trade, and moved into Devon, for on the 22d June, 1648, described as a druller of Chudleigh, he appears to have got in some difficulty, when a John Pardee stood surety for him to appear at the Sessions to answer "for beinge with Christopher Willson when he tooke the geese." According to the evidence of Wilson, he and Nathaniel were travelling from South Tavistock to Chudleigh about a month before, and seeing a flock of geese on Dartmoor, about three miles from Withicombe, he killed and took away five of them to Chudleigh, but, he says, he paid the owner John French 20^s for them.

Nathaniel Pardee, in his evidence, said that he had no hand in the business, and advised Wilson not to take the geese, but notwithstanding he did so. He does not, however, confirm Wilson's statement, that the birds had been paid for!

It is not clear as to who John Pardee, the surety, was; he cannot have been Nathaniel's brother, John, as he was dead; possibly he was another son of Nathaniel, not born at Pitminster. There is little doubt, however, that he was identical with John Pardy of Chudleigh, who had a daughter Sarah baptised there in 1661. A search of the Chudleigh registers produced a number of entries, commencing in 1649, with the baptism of Mary, daughter of Edward Pardy, but no further references to Nathaniel were found, so apparently he did not remain long in that parish.

On the 22d October, 1623 at Pitminster is recorded the burial of Grace, wife of John Pardee. This may refer to the wife of John, father of Anthony, but more likely to John, whom we presume to have been his brother, as there is no evidence that the father ever lived at Pitminster. This John married secondly on the 17th January, 1625/6 at Pitminster, Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Scadden; he predeceased her, as in the entry of her burial on the 16th August, 1646, she is described as a widow. The Scaddens were an old Pitminster family, and there are numerous references to them in the register; in the Session Rolls of 1655, there is an interesting entry to a member of this family, one, Jane Scadden, a widow of Pitminster, who was charged with "finding stolen goods by astrologie."

In the will of Hugh Batt of Angersleigh, a parish adjoining Pitminster, made on the 3d July, 1637, is a bequest of 2s to John Pardee, which may relate to this John, or possibly to the son of Anthony, as there are various references to Taunton in the will.

The only member of the family who remained at Pitminster was Robert Pardee. It is not known whom or when he married, but he had the following children, all baptised at Pitminster:

Hannah, baptised on the 28th October, 1621.

Elizabeth, baptised on the 8th June, 1623; buried on the 22d February, 1623/4.

James, baptised on the 1st January, 1624/5; buried on the 7th March following.

John, baptised on the 12th February, 1625/6, of whom presently.

Nathaniel, baptised on the 21st July, 1633.

Robert Pardee signed the Protestation Oath Roll of 1641/2 already referred to. He was buried at Pitminster on the 4th April, 1658.

John, son of Robert Pardee, had a son Homer, baptised on the 29th January, 1653/4 at Pitminster, and on the 28th June, 1656, another son, Virgil. The latter married Elizabeth Pole at Pitminster on the 11th August, 1687; she was buried on the 9th May following, and he, described as a weaver, on the 4th November, 1698. That he had other children is proved by an entry in an Act Book of about 1665, in which he is presented for absenting himself from church and for not having his children baptised; from this it may be assumed that he was a non-conformist.

Contemporary with John, there was a Samuel Pardee, who had a daughter Joan, baptised on the 19th November, 1654, and a son (unnamed) on the 4th May, 1658. Joan married Herimiah (Jeremiah) Staple on the 27th May, 1684. Samuel's baptism has not been found, but he was probably another son of Robert, born between 1626 and 1633.

There are several other Pardees at Pitminster who cannot be identified. Judeth Pardee married William Hering on the 28th September, 1646; Grace Pardue, buried there on the 16th May, 1680, may be identical with the Revd. Anthony's daughter; and Elizabeth Pordue married John Porsey at St. James, Taunton, both being described as of Pitminster.

So much for the immediate family of George Pardee, the emigrant. We now return to Taunton, where, apart from Pardee, there are a number of references in the registers to possible variants of the name, such as—Pard, Purdie, Pawdie, Paudy, Pordue, Porday and Pady. Too much attention must not be given to the spelling of a name, as it must be remembered that the entries in the registers were probably made by a more or less illiterate clerk. Phonetically, there is little difference between Purdie and Pardee in Somerset, but actually there are no references to the Purdies of Taunton in wills or other documents spelling their name Pardee, though John, son of the Revd. Anthony Pardee, appoints Edward Purdie, the son of George Purdie, an overseer of his will, referring to him as Pardy; had he been a relation, surely John would have spelt the name, as he did his own, with the final "ee." The appointment can, however, be easily explained, for we learn from Edward's will that Eleanor, wife of John Pardee, was his kinswoman, and it was a common thing for a man to appoint as his overseer a relation of his wife's, as more likely to consider her interests than one of his own family might be. Further the Purdies are found in Taunton long before the Pardees at Pitminster; on the evidence the writer does not consider them the same family. However, it is not impossible that George Purdie was a brother of the Revd. Anthony and that the emigrant was named after him. Purdie is not an uncommon name in Somerset; at Closworth there were Robert and Richard Purdie, the famous bell-founders, who also appear to have lived for a time at Glastonbury, probably in connection with their work; the family had been settled in Closworth for some generations previously. These two brothers re-cast the bells of Pitminster in 1630, and St. Mary, Taunton, about the same time, but this is merely a coincidence, as being the principal bell-founders in the district, they were employed in a large number of parishes in Somerset and the adjoining counties. Records relating to the Purdies will appear in the next chapter, so more need not be written of them here.

JOHN PARDEE

As already stated, nothing is known concerning the father of the Revd. Anthony Pardee, and it is doubtful whether he ever lived at Pitminster. That he came of good yeoman stock,—the backbone of England—is undoubted, and judging by the name, the family was almost certainly of French origin. It must be remembered that a schoolmaster might come from a long distance to fill a suitable vacancy; thus it might be necessary to go far afield to find his original home. By carrying out an extended search of all registers where the name occurs, the information should be found, and there would be no great difficulty as to identification, for if entries were found, giving Anthony, Nathaniel, John and Robert, as sons of a John Pardee, no further proof would be necessary.

There were families of Pardy in Dorset, Hereford, Gloucester, Warwick, Worcester and adjoining counties; the spelling Pardee occasionally appearing. One tradition in the family is to the effect that they came from Wales or the border; the wills at Hereford have been searched, but without finding any clues. In Gloucester there are several wills, including an Alice Pardee at Winchcomb in 1590. A Thomas Pardye of Hewelsfield made his will on the 1st April, 1571, and in it mentions his sons Richard, Anthony, and John, who all appear to have been of age at that time; Anthony died in 1590, administration being granted to his elder brother, on the 28th July of that year. Of John nothing is known, but he is a possible father of Anthony the priest, though he would probably be a generation too early. Unfortunately the registers of Hewelsfield do not commence until 1664, so that no assistance is forthcoming in that direction.

On the evidence before us concerning John Pardee, there is nothing to prove his identity; theorising in this direction is interesting but unproductive. The main object of the searches which have been made was to trace the English home of George Pardee, the emigrant, and this having been satisfactorily concluded, enquiry into his more remote ancestry may be left until some future date.

RECENT DISCOVERIES

At the last moment, while the foregoing was already in type, Mr. J. Homan Pardee received from Mr. Holworthy a transcript of important records just discovered by him in England, which bear out in a remarkable way the deductions stated in the sections above. The baptism of Anthony Pardee, as well as those of the other Pardees who appeared with him at Pitminster, have been located in the parish registers of Uffculme, Devon, which is just over the border of Somerset.

1591. "July. The xxvijth day was Anthony y^e son of John Perdee Christed."

1592/3. "March. The xth day was Rob^t y^e son of John Perdey Christned."

1596. "June. The xixth day was Nathanyell the sonne of John Perdey Christned."

1599. "Septemb^r. The second day was Sara the daughter of John Perdee Christned."

1600. "Aprill. The xth day was Sara y^e daught^r of John Pardee buried."

1601. "August. The xxth day was John Perdee the sonne of John Perdee Christened."

I, Antonie Pardee, of the County of Essex, in the State of Massachusetts, do hereby certify that the within and foregoing is a true and correct copy of the original of the same, as the same appears by the records of the Court of the said County of Essex, in the said State of Massachusetts, at the City of Boston, in the County of Essex, in the State of Massachusetts, on the 10th day of June, 1617.

Antonie Pardee
Justice of the Peace for the County of Essex

Here we have Anthony, Robert, Nathaniel, and John, the same four who appeared a few years later in the Pitminster records; and considering the relative proximity of Uffculme to Pitminster, and the known fact that Anthony's father was named John, there can be no doubt whatever of their identity, and the Pardee line is established one generation farther back.

A bond has been found in the Wells Diocesan Registry, of Bawdwin Knight of Pitminster, yeoman, son-in-law and administrator of the goods of John Hill, late of Pitminster, deceased, dated 13 May 1617. The bondmen were Giles Barrie, gent., and Anthonie Pardie (Pardee in the signature), driller, of Pitminster. It was signed in the presence of William Sclater (vicar of Pitminster) and George Harris. By driller is probably meant druller, which was the occupation of Anthony's brother Nathaniel, a circumstance which confirms the inference that the family was interested in the woolen trade.

The career of Anthony Pardee therefore offers certain analogies to that of his son. Anthony was educated to a trade, became a school-teacher, and finally a clergyman. George apparently was not brought up to a trade, but was educated for a teacher, probably with the view to following in his father's footsteps and eventually entering the Church. With his plans negatived by the outbreak of the Civil War, and his emigration to the American Colonies, he learned a trade, and later became a teacher. That George was able, despite unfavorable circumstances, to carry out his ambitions to so large an extent, was a triumph of character over environment.

Court held 19 May 1637 at St. Mary's Taunton. Viewing the chancel of Taunton Magdalen I find that the communion table wanteth not above one inch in length of five feet, and in breedth one inch in breedth. It is placed close to the East wall the ends north and south, the rail above the table taken away and the rails on the north and south sides removed nearer the walls on each side so far that there is a yard into three inches at each end of the said table for the minister to stand or kneel between the same and the rails. Further about the removal of the desk to make room for two rows of communicants to kneel &c. (signed) Walter Travers. (Wells Diocesan Registry, Act Book 1635-8. f. 157.)

1637, May 19. Taunton Magdalen. George Newton, clerk, vicar there. Summons issued. That the said George Newton gave advise and counsel to Henry Godsall one of the churchwardens there to cut the communion table in the chancel of their church either altogether or very nearly square, the said table haveing been shortly before turned the rnd or narrow parts thereof set north & south by his lordship's order. It appears this day that about half a year ago the said communion table was cut shorter & that Mr Roger Hill of Taunton, the said Godsall & Newton being together before it was cutt & saying that he could not administer the Communion in the chancell there until there was room made for him to stand or kneel at the north part of the said table as it now standeth & the said Godsall saying that the then rails about the table might be enlarged & made broader but Hill replied there would not be room for the communicants to kneel. Then follows the evidence of Godsall; he mentions that John Wookes the joiner cut the table, &c. (Wells Diocesan Registry, Act Book 1636/7, ff. 115-7.)

1637, June 24. Taunton Magdalen. Against Master George Newton, vicar. The petition of Roger Hill to allow the desk to remain until Michaelmas. (Wells Diocesan Registry, Act Book, 1635-8, f. 165.)

To acknowledge his fault in church. "This was done accordingly. Testes Antho Pardee curat ibidem." Witnessed by Nicholas Smith et John Bellamy, Church Wardens. (Wells, Bishop's Registry, Bundle of Misc: Papers.)

Richard Purdey appears as a witness to the will of Robert Curtise of St. John, Glaston, Sackmaker, dated 29 Sept. 1613, proved 16 Aug. 1614. (Wells, Diocesan Registry, Original Will.)

Depositions taken 22 Mar. 1631 relating to the Bells of Pitminster Church, which were recast by Richard and Roger Purdie, well-known Bell Founders in Somerset, who also recast the Bells of St. Mary, Taunton. The deposition of Richard Purdie describes him as of Staford in the parish of Barweeke, where he has lived for three years, and before that he lived at Glaston for 20 years, and before that at Closworth, and is aged 60 years. (Wells, Bishop's Registry, Loose Depositions 1536 to 1754.)

A family of Purdue or Pardue appears at Closworth as far back as 1550, and probably much earlier.

The will of Joane Babb of Trull, widow, dated 1 June 1630, proved at Taunton 31 Dec. 1633 before Master Anthony Pardy, clerk, surrogate for the Venerable Samuel Ward, Archdeacon of Taunton. The surrogate's commission (the first part translated from the original Latin) follows: Samuel Ward, D.D., Archdeacon of Taunton, to our beloved in Christ the rector, vicar or curate of the parish church of Trull or Taunton Magdalen or his deputy whomsoever, greeting in the Lord. For presenting and in due form of law administering the within-written oath to a certain Christopher Babb, son and executor of the will of Joan Babb, widow, late while she lived of the parish of Trull aforesaid, deceased, we commit to thee (of whose faithfulness, holy learning and ability in conducting business we have great faith in the Lord) our place in this behalf and we grant full power in the Lord by the tenor of these presents. The will of William Sclatter of Pitminster, co. Somerset, Doctor in Divinity, dated 29 June 1627, proved 22 Oct. 1627, was witnessed by Antho: Pardee. (P.C.C. 94 Skynner.)

A member of Anthony Pardee's parish had insulted a woman of the same parish in a gross manner characteristic of the coarse speech which was prevalent in the Seventeenth Century. The matter was brought before Chancellor Duke, of the Bishop's Court, and the offending party was ordered to make a public retraction in church. Refusal to carry out this order would have meant excommunication from the church. The apology was made, and Mr. Pardee witnessed the order as Curate, testifying that it had been carried out. A transcription of the order follows:

CHAPTER V

GEORGE PARDEE IN NEW HAVEN

BEFORE delving into the early records and extracting from them an account of the career of George Pardee, it will be enlightening to consider briefly his antecedents, and the conditions of life in the New Haven of his generation.

George Pardee was a younger son of a churchman, and his family had for some time been settled in the neighborhood of Taunton, England. In this town originated the family of the Rev. Nicholas Street, who became pastor of the church in New Haven several years after the young Pardee made that town his home. Mr. Thomas Trowbridge, of a Taunton family, also emigrated to America; but about 1641, leaving his younger sons in New Haven, he returned to England. It is not improbable that George Pardee may have learned of New Haven directly from Mr. Trowbridge. The Treat family of Connecticut was from Pitminster, where George was born.

The Civil War in England broke out in 1642, and in the same year the Parliament forces, aided by the local trained bands and the inhabitants, took possession of Taunton. The following year, the forces of the Marquis of Hertford drove out the Parliament forces and temporarily took possession of Taunton in behalf of the king. That a youth of George's age and Puritan sympathies took an active part in these stirring events, is most probable; it may even be hazarded that his disability, which is later referred to, was the result of a wound or an accident which befell him while participating in this conflict. While this is mere speculation, it is strengthened by the fact that George first appears in New Haven in 1644, just a year after Taunton was seized by the royalist forces. His migration to America, therefore, occurring before the final triumph of the parliamentary faction, may be viewed in the light of a political exile.

New Haven had been founded but six years before George became an inhabitant. Conditions of life were of necessity very primitive in character. In the England of this period, wealth was chiefly derived from lands, that is to say, the rents received from tenants. But in New England, land was plentiful and any acceptable person might acquire land, on the condition that he cleared and cultivated it. Except for the clergy, the professions did not flourish. A man must derive his living from the soil or from a trade; there was little demand or opportunity for scholarship, for the arts, or for culture.

Facing College Street, Yale College appears on the left, and the State House on the right. On the Green, to the right of the State House, may be seen Center Church, of which the first George Pardee was a member over 280 years ago.

Into this primitive environment, only one degree removed from the wilderness, came George Pardee, equipped with a knowledge of Latin. He had not been trained in a trade, and perhaps lacked the physique required for the pursuit of agriculture. He had to face conditions as he found them; in some way he must become a producer and win for himself a place in the new environment. It was customary to apprentice boys, but usually not grown men, to learn a trade. George was nearly of age; nevertheless, he consented to serve an apprenticeship in order to learn a trade which would make him of use to the community in which he had settled.

An apprentice in those days was a "servant," and the man to whom he was apprenticed was his "master." These terms did not then, as now, carry a sense of class distinction. A boy was often apprenticed to his uncle; or it often happened that an apprentice later married his "master's" daughter. In accepting this arrangement, George in no way lowered his social position, but he did contract to work for the same employer for five years, and he was not free to marry during this period.

From this point, we shall let the records tell the story. It is a fascinating story, how this young man, under the most unfavorable conditions, adapted himself to a new environment. Beginning with nothing but his own personal worth and breeding, persevering in uncongenial tasks, and discharging to the best of his ability whatever duties he assumed, he was ready, when the opportunity came, to step into the higher position for which his birth and early education had intended him.

On 5 June 1644, "Itt was ordered thatt George Pardy shall dwell wth Francis Broone as his apprentice, for the tearme of 5 yeares from henceforwarde dureing w^{ch} time the said Francis is to doe his endevo^r to teach him the trade of a taylor."

This is the first mention of George Pardee in the New Haven records. His "master," Francis Brown, is said to have been born at "Ratlif," co. York, England, in 1610, married Mary Edwards in 1636, and was an original proprietor of New Haven in 1638. He was a man of good repute and standing in the community, but appears to have possessed a hasty temper, which a few years later embroiled him with the local authorities at the time of the restoration of Charles II and the dispute between New Haven and Connecticut Colonies.*

George apparently gave satisfaction during his apprenticeship, and in addition to learning a trade helped Brown in tending the ferry across the "East River," as the Quinnipiac River was called. There being no bridge the dwellers on either side were greatly inconvenienced, and only a few possessed boats or canoes of their own. It was voted, on 16 June 1645, that a ferry service should be established, with constant attendance from sunrise to sunset except on the Sabbath and meeting days, the rate charged varying from one to two pence according to the number carried on each trip. "And Francis Browne upon the considerations before expressed, accepted the service upon tryall; and his man being lame & so not able to carry on the service at all times, he [i. e., Brown] is left to his liberty to come to the generall traynings as the occasions of the ferry will permitt."

* The antecedents of Francis Brown are stated in the Bible of a great-grandson. When his son John, who was somewhat "wild," was in trouble, Brown adopted a defiant attitude towards the New Haven Magistrates, and (although a Puritan) seems to have welcomed the Restoration.

From this, we learn that George was lame, which was probably the reason for his being apprenticed to learn a light trade. He did, however, assist in carrying on the ferry service, and evidently to the satisfaction of all concerned, for five years later he succeeded Brown as ferryman. We read, under date of 3 Oct. 1650: "Francis Browne propounded that he might lay downe the Ferry: he was desired to keepe itt till another could be provided, and Geo: Pardy was desired to come speake wth the Governer to see if hee bee willing to keepe it: and if not he, William Paine."

From 1644 to 1649, George had been a member of Brown's household, living at the farther end of East Water street, facing the harbor. At the time Brown resigned the ferry, George had been a free man for a year, his apprenticeship having been served. It is probable, however, that he continued to live with Brown, receiving wages for his work both as tailor and as assistant ferryman. He was now on the point of marrying, and until he could establish his own business he doubtless felt that the fees from the ferry would prove a welcome addition to his income. There was competition for the position, for a year later (8 Oct. 1651) we read: "Upon a question betwixt George Pardy & William Paine aboute keeping of the Ferry, it was put to the Court to determine: who by vote declared that Geo: Pardy keepe the Ferry and dilligently attend it till the Court see cause to consider it againe."

On 20 Oct. 1650, George had taken to himself a wife. His bride was Martha Miles, then aged perhaps about seventeen, eldest daughter of Deacon Richard Miles. Her father, an original proprietor of New Haven, had come here from Wormley, co. Hertford, England, with his wife and three children, and three more children had been born to them in New Haven. Martha's mother, the first Mrs. Miles, had died in or shortly after 1644, and her father had contracted a second marriage with a well-to-do widow, Mrs. Katherine Constable. The Miles family was respected and of high standing in the community; not only was Martha's father a deacon in the church and at one time Magistrate (town judge) in New Haven, but her two sisters were soon to become the wives of clergymen,—Mary of the Rev. Thomas Hanford of Norwalk, and Anna of the Rev. Samuel Street.

Just where the newly-married couple made their home for the next two years is not positively known, but attendance on the ferry probably made it convenient for George to take his bride to the home of his friend and late "master," Francis Brown, with whom he appears always to have remained on the best of terms. Here, too, was probably born George's first son, John, who was destined to survive but two years. But it was natural for the young couple to desire a home of their own; George had been scrupulously hoarding those penny fees* from the ferry passengers with this end in view, and perhaps Martha's father was able and willing to render assistance. At all events, under date of 1 Feb. 1653, we learn that "Robert Pigg passeth over to George Pardee his house and home lott, lying beetwixt the house of John Hall and the house that was Jonathan Marshes, wth what addition was after given to them lotts by the Towne out of Oystershell feild, and all the land w^{ch} was given to Robert Pigg on the east side of the great river, wth what commonadge doth or may belonge to the said house and lott."

Robert Pigg, together with Francis Brown and others, had been granted land in 1648 in the Oystershell Field, which stretched from State street on the west and Chapel street on the north towards the harbor on the south and the mouth of the Quinnipiac River on the east. Although some of the land was across the river in East Haven, the house stood on the New Haven side. It had been built by Robert Pigg but four or five years before, and while it would not have appealed to the modern taste as commodious, it served the needs of the small but growing Pardee family. Here the firstborn son died; here were born the next four children, John, George, Mary, and Elizabeth; here the young wife, Martha Pardee, was to die after but eleven years of married life.

But we are getting ahead of the story. The Pigg house, although not as convenient to the ferry as Brown's house had been, was still near enough to permit George to continue as ferryman. We can picture him working at his trade, planting and cultivating his garden for kitchen purposes, and called away at times to carry passengers across the river near the spot where the Tomlinson Bridge now affords a less troublesome crossing. One can but wonder how a would-be passenger on the East Haven side made his desires known to the ferryman on the New Haven side; perhaps some set of signals was prearranged.

* Considering the small amount of currency in circulation and the consequent high purchasing power of money, the fees were actually better compensation than one might suppose. The 1650 English penny was equal in purchasing value to a 1920 quarter-dollar.

On 4 April 1654, George, being now a householder, took the Oath of Allegiance, but for reasons unknown to us he was not admitted a freeman of the Court until 16 June 1662, when he "tooke the Freeman's charge." There is very little recorded of George during these years, and this in itself speaks volumes for his quiet, unassuming character, and for the conscientiousness with which he attended to his own affairs; for in the New Haven of those days, the most trivial offenses were considered matters for the magistrates to deal with. If George had unwarily tipped a passenger into the water, or cut a trouser leg too short, the court records would have been full of it; their silence implies that he did his work well. Nevertheless, we get occasional mention of him, as in March 1655, when "they w^{ch} were appointed to stake out the way at dragon poynt,* were desired to hasten to doe it, and now James Byshop was appointed in stead of Mathew Row, and George Pardy in stead of Francis Browne."

Again, on 4 March 1656, "Timothy Ford, on behalfe of himselfe, George Pardy, and Richard Johnson, entered an action against Allen

* Fair Haven.

Ball for three or foure cannooes, w^{ch} the said Allen lost of theirs." It is regrettable that the circumstances are not fully related, for we cannot but feel curious as to Ball's object in borrowing canoes, as well as how he could be so careless as to lose so many of them. But although "severall witnesses were examined," the case was not clear, and the Court finally advised the litigants "to indeavour a loving and peacable end betwixt themselves," and thus the case was settled out of court.

In the seating of the meeting-house, in February 1656, George Pardy, with George Smith, John Thomas, and James Clarke, occupied the fourth row "on y^e stile on both sides the dore." In the sixth row of "y^e side seates, all alonge," sat Goodwives Tichenor, Leek, Pennington, and Pardy. Six years later, in January 1662, a new seating had become necessary; in "the long seat next the wall" we find "John Gilbert, Geo. Pardee, W^m Holt," while Goodwife Pardee had been moved up to the third row of "side Seates above the doore," her neighbors being Sister Thomas and Goodwives Gibbons and Rowe.

The inconvenience to which attendance on the ferry subjected George is brought out in the following record, 28 Jan. 1655: "It was propounded that it might be considered how the ferryman might conveniently live at the ferry-point. Jn^o Coop^r informed the Court that he hath had some speech with Geo. Pardy, y^e ferry-man, aboute it, and he is willing to build himselfe a house and live there, if he had but a convenient way for his cattell to come to his house. The motion was well approved, and refferred to y^e Townsmen, y^e whole consideration of the buisnes, whether a fenc may be runn upon the banke-side to the Ferry-house, and so into the flatts there; and if they see cause, they may call any quarter togeth^r to consider how the fenc may be made, and issue it so as they thinke will be for the best good of the Towne." We can find no evidence that this appeal brought any results, and for aught we know to the contrary, the Pardee family continued to live in the Pigg house.

On 7 Oct. 1661, "George Pardee by reason of some bodily weakness being disabled for the worke of the Ferry, did (as was informed) desire the Towne to provide another for y^t imploy^{mt} w^{ch} was left with y^e Townsmen to take care of." For sixteen years George had served at the ferry, and for the past ten years he had been the official ferryman. During all this time, there had not been a complaint against the efficiency of the service. From later records it appears that Francis Brown, whose sons were now old enough to help with the work, again assumed charge of the ferry.

In 1658, Edward Hopkins, formerly Governor of Connecticut Colony, bequeathed the residue of his estate in New England for educational purposes, with an additional amount to be paid out of his English estate after the death of his wife.* Before this time, each town in the jurisdiction of New Haven Colony had had a town school, where elementary subjects were taught. There had long been talk of establishing a college or a collegiate school in New Haven, but funds for this purpose had not been forthcoming. Now, in 1660, encouraged by the Hopkins bequest, and in anticipation of the receipt of a portion of it, a Colony School was founded, for the teaching of Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, as well as English and arithmetic. The aim of the school was to fulfil the desire of the donor,—the bringing up of hopeful youths “for the service of God in church and commonwealth.” Thus was founded Hopkins Grammar School; antedating Yale College by forty years, it still flourishes, the third oldest preparatory school in the country.†

The first schoolhouse was located on the New Haven Green, near Church street, in front of the meeting-house. The first school-master was the Rev. Jeremiah Peck, who began teaching in October, 1660. In 1662, the school was in a bad way; not many had taken advantage of the opportunities it offered, and some of the towns in the Colony doubtless objected to contributing to its support. Just at this time, Connecticut Colony obtained a new charter from King Charles II which abolished New Haven Colony by including it within the bounds of Connecticut. It was a time of turmoil and confusion; the New Haven people did not immediately submit to this coup d'etat, and the matter was not definitely settled, by the submission of New Haven, until three years had passed. During this time of uncertainty, the fate of the new school was in jeopardy. Recompense Osborn, a recent Harvard graduate, taught during a portion of the school year 1662-1663. There must have been a period when the school was closed between the incumbencies of Mr. Peck and Mr. Osborn, and the New Haven authorities were fearful lest they should lose their portion of the Hopkins gift by default. The Hopkins funds had not yet been received, and in view of the unsettled political situation, it was probably deemed inadvisable to tax (or to attempt to tax) the other towns in New Haven Colony for the support of the grammar school. The township, having to foot the bill out of its own resources, could scarcely afford to engage the services of a college graduate, and it was at this juncture, and because of the circumstances just described, that George Pardee became the third rector of Hopkins Grammar School *

Mr. Osborn having departed for Long Island slightly before the expiration of the school term in June 1663, a town meeting held on the 15th of that month considered the selection of his successor. "The Deputy Govern^r† informed the towne Concerning y^e necessity of have-

The matter being largely debated it was generally expressed that they was welsatisfied in y^e person & desired he might be encouraged; but for his allowance, George Pardee was desired to propound to the towne. But he shewed himselfe not very free to propound any summe But declared That it would take up his whole time, & he had a family to provide for, & therefore desired a competent maintenance for y^t. * The term "rector," as applied to the head of the school, came very early into use, and is still (1925) employed. It is, however, perhaps an anachronism, since the contemporary records refer to Pardee as "school-master." The official publication of the school employs the term "rector" for all of the heads of the school from first to last.

to teach english, & to carry them on in lattine soe far as he could, alsoe to learne them to write; something was spoken about teaching arethmaticke as very necessary in these parts: George Pardee further s^d that he had lost much of what learning he formerly had attained, but if he had a competent maintenance allowed him for his family he should give up himselfe & time wholly to y^e worke for y^e regaineing of w^t he had lost, but if y^t could not bee, he must take all opportunities evenings & mornings in other wayes for the supply of his family: The busines was debated, & some exprest themselves to this purpose,

During these negotiations, George conducted himself with his usual modesty and reticence. While frankly admitting the limitations of his scholarship, he showed that he intended to discharge his new duties with the same conscientiousness which he had exhibited in his work at the ferry. The stipend allowed by the town was just half of what the Rev. Mr. Peck had received as school-master, and George could eke this out with whatever he could induce the parents of the scholars to pay.

George was still living in the south-eastern section of the town, near the end of East Water street, a considerable distance from the school-house. His first wife, Martha Miles, had died early in 1662, leaving him with four young children. The conditions of life in New England at that time were such, that for a man in his situation an early remarriage was an economic necessity. On 29 Dec. 1662, a few months before he became school-master, George married a second time. The town records give the name of his bride as Katharine Lane. Her parentage has not been found.*

Two months after George's appointment as rector of the school, Mr. Davenport, trustee of the Hopkins fund, sent word that a desirable man (doubtless a Harvard graduate) was available for the post. "George Pardee was sent for, & acquainted with y^e buisines, & he was asked if he was free to Leave the schoole at his halfe yeares end? He answered y^t he looked upon himselfe ingaged for a yeare & thought to proceed in it except the towne saw cause to put him off." The town was not eager to pay the larger salary which a college graduate could command, and as a matter of fact, there were no boys far enough advanced in their studies to justify the immediate employment of a more finished scholar; so the town decided "that George Pardee should continue his yeare." A year later, on 28 Apr. 1664, the question was before the town again. Mr. Davenport explained the situation with regard to the Hopkins funds, and gave definite assurance that New Haven would receive its share. "There was a question propounded, what the p^rsent schoole-master should doe? It was answered, that he may be kept in, till another be had; some objections was made against alloweing a Sallary to teach English; much debate there was, but nothing Concluded about it at this time."

George completed his year in the following June, and on the 27th "The Deputy Governo^r propounded to the Towne about the schoole-master, his yeare being Lately expired, whether they doe not thinke meete he should goe on in his worke as formerly untill M^r. Chancie come?" Mr. Israel Chauncey decided not to come to New Haven, however, and George continued as rector for four years, until 1667.

Teaching school was not a sinecure in the Seventeenth Century. School began at six or seven o'clock in the morning and lasted all day, with a recess for dinner. There was only a two weeks' vacation during the year. George Pardee taught the reading and writing of English, Latin (called "grammar"), and arithmetic. Some religious instruction was also given, chiefly the catechism, and on Monday the schoolmaster corrected boys who had misbehaved at church the day before.

* A Katharine Lane married, 8 Nov. 1653, John Tuttle of New Haven and had a large family. Possibly she was a widow and mother of George Pardee's wife. The only Lane in the neighborhood of New Haven was John Lane of Milford, who left a widow Mary and mentioned no daughter Katharine in his will. Some of the previous accounts of the Pardee family call George's second wife Rebecca Lane; this assumption being based on a conveyance dated 1689 in which George referred to his then wife as "Rebecka."

The political dispute between New Haven and Connecticut had now been settled by the merging of the former with Connecticut. The town was afraid of losing the Hopkins legacy because Mr. Davenport, the surviving trustee, insisted that the terms of Mr. Hopkins' will should be fulfilled to the letter and that the grammar school, by teaching "the 3 Learned Languages, Lattine, Greeke, & Hebrew," should qualify as a true collegiate school. Therefore, in April 1667, Samuel Street was appointed rector, and the following year Mr. Davenport, by a deed of gift, turned over the Hopkins funds to a town committee which functioned as a Board of Trustees. The new rector, a son of the Rev. Nicholas Street, had been graduated at Harvard College in 1664, and towards the close of that year had married Anna Miles, youngest sister of George Pardee's first wife. He was thus brother-in-law of the retiring rector.

In 1665, George acted as attorney* for the younger John Davenport in a court case. His father-in-law, Dea. Richard Miles, died on 7 Jan. 1667, and in his will, drawn a few days previously, remembered the children of his deceased daughter, Martha Pardee. The seating of the meeting-house was again changed in Feb. 1668, and with seven others George occupied the "long seate by y^e wall." Where the second Mrs. Pardee sat is unknown, as the seating of the women is not given. In 1668, George's old friend and neighbor, Francis Brown, passed away, and George again succeeded him at the ferry.

On 18 Jan. 1669, "The Townes-men (on behalfe of George Pardee, y^e p^rsent fferryman) propounded, That in reference to y^e settling of the fferry at y^e Red Rocke, according to y^e Recommendation of the Gen^{ll} Assembly to this towne, That the towne would graunt him liberty to purchase some Land of the indyans about the quantity of 20 acres or more adjoyneing to the s^d place. This proposition was Left to y^e Townes-men to settle, provided y^t his purchasing of the Land be not p^judiciall to y^e fferry, & that they doe not damnify the proprietors of the necke." Something over a year later, the town gave him permission to buy this land. In the Spring of 1674, he was authorized (as a means of fire prevention) "to burne about Dragon point† to y^e fresh meadowes."

(Showing the geographical ideas which prevailed in 1663, when George Pardee was Rector of Hopkins Grammar School)

After serving as rector of Hopkins Grammar School for about six years, Mr. Samuel Street accepted a pastoral call, and was installed, 22 Apr. 1674, as the first settled minister at Wallingford. George Pardee was again appealed to, and consented to fill the breach. On 28 Apr. 1674, "Captⁿ John Nash alsoe informed y^e towne what agreem^t the Committee had made with George Pardee, y^e p^rsent schoole-master, viz. That he is to have 18^{lb} per annum out of the towne treasury at y^e ancient towne price, & the benefitt of the house, barne, & homelott formerly M^r Evances, or if the price be altered to y^e merch^{ts} price then but 16^{lb} out of y^e towne treasury." The Evance house, which had been acquired two years before by the school trustees, was located at the south-west corner of College and Elm streets facing the Green.* It was not a new house, but was probably larger and better than the one which the Pardee family had occupied until this time, and because of its central location it was very convenient to the school. Here George and his family resided, rent free, so long as he remained rector of Hopkins.

But the old problem came up again. The town was willing to contribute towards the salary of a teacher, but felt that an instructor in the ancient tongues should be paid out of the funds in the hands of the Hopkins trustees. These funds were not yet, however, producing a steady income, and there was difficulty in obtaining a more proficient Latin teacher. The whole matter was discussed at length in town meeting, 8 March 1675. Mr. William Jones, the magistrate, complained that the school was not being conducted as a collegiate school, in violation of the terms of the Hopkins legacy. The town maintained that "after M^r Street left y^e schoole they waited one yeare and had noe schoole at all provided, nor any course taken to teach boys or youth in any kind of Learning, and y^e Towne being thus destitute they thought it but duty to provide such a schoolmaster as they could, and y^e last Spring procured George Pardee to keep a schoole to teach youth to read English and y^e accidence and any Grammar ruels as farre as he could, and to write, and severall persons sayd they found some fruit of his labour in theyer children & did desyer he might goe on yet longer."

But before this year (1675) had progressed much further, educational problems were overshadowed by the outbreak of King Philip's War. Tidings came of Indian massacres and the burning of Springfield; fortifications were built for local defense, and troops were raised to take part in the winter campaign against the Narragansetts. It is extremely probable that George Pardee's eldest surviving son, John, served as a soldier in this campaign, for in 1680, when the third division was laid out to proprietors and their heirs, provision was made for those who had served in the late war, and John, although having no estate, was allowed four acres. John survived only to 1683, and died unmarried.

On 26 Feb. 1678 the town of Wallingford "admitted George Pardey a Planter provided he procure himself a home lot and the Town promises him to be accomodated with other land as they hope to his satisfaction when he & the Town comes to speak together." Wallingford had been founded eight years previously by New Haven people, some of whom were connected with George by marriage. Possibly overtures were made by the town in the hope of securing a school teacher. In any event, negotiations were dropped, and George remained in New Haven.

The question of the school was again before the town in July 1677, and the town "did Leave it wth y^e Committee for y^e schoole, to provide a sufficient schoolem^r, who shall not only teach y^e Grammar & y^e Languages, but allsoe to perfect y^e youth in reading English, they being entred in y^e primmer, & to teach to write a legible hand." Apparently the committee (i. e., the Board of Trustees) was satisfied with George Pardee or found it difficult to obtain the services of a teacher who was better acquainted with the ancient tongues, for he appears to have been retained as rector until 1681, or possibly 1682. In the latter year, Ensign Samuel Munson returned from Wallingford to New Haven, and about that time succeeded George as rector. The earliest record book of the school shows that Munson was teaching there in January 1684 and had been doing so for some time before that; but a few months later he in turn was succeeded by John Harriman,* a Harvard graduate. It was about this time that the Trustees considered admitting both sexes to the school and reached the famous decision "that all Girles be excluded as Improper and Inconsistent wth such a Grammar Schoole."

Thus ended the connection of George Pardee with Hopkins Grammar School, after at least eleven years of service as rector, and in June 1683, George Pardee Senior of New Haven was licensed to keep an ordinary,† and as late as 1690 had his license renewed.

Just where the Pardee family lived after removing from the Evance house in the neighborhood of 1681 is not positively known, but they did not return to the Pigg house on Water street. George retained possession of this house, however, until 1692, as several records attest. In June 1674, "Rum Tom," an Indian, was complained of for being drunk and "breaking open the door of George Pardee his house at the ferry." On 21 Feb. 1684, he had recorded to himself a certain homelot containing 2½ acres, which was "known and owned to be in the quiet possession of the said George Pardee for many years past." That this was the Pigg lot is indicated by the bounds, which were south on the highway, east on Eleazer Brown, west on John Stevens' homelot, and north on Oystershell field. In a conveyance to his son Joseph in 1689, he allowed him one-half of the yearly rent or improvement of his homelot by the water side between John Stevens and Eleazer Brown. But on 21 April 1692, he sold to Eleazer Brown a homelot containing 2½ acres, bounded west on John Stevens, Sr., north on the common field, east on Eleazer Brown, and south on the sea. Thus the Pigg homestead, the first home of George Pardee's family, passed into the possession of a son of his old friend, Francis Brown.‡

The last deed is of especial interest, for it is signed by George Pardy senior and by Rebecka Pardy. Rebecca is also referred to in 1689, as wife of George. On the evidence in hand, it must be assumed that she was his third wife, but her identity is unknown. Some have supposed that she was identical with Katherine Lane, and that the name Katherine is a clerical error for Rebecca in the original marriage record. This is possible, but the evidence is insufficient to admit of a definite solution of the difficulty. Whoever she was, she died after 1692, and before 1700, when George himself died.

* John Harriman's only sister was wife of Capt. John Miles, brother of George Pardee's first wife.

† An ordinary was an inn where meals were served without liquor. Innkeepers held a high social standing in Colonial days; the first Governor of Vermont was an innkeeper, and so were three generals of the Revolution.

George's last home was a house and one-acre lot which he bought before 1689 of Alling Ball, Jr. The lot was bounded north on Mr. Hooke's lot, south on David Perkins, west on John Gibbs, and east on the street. This Ball house stood on College street about midway between Chapel and George streets, and was not more than two modern city blocks distant from the Evance house where George had previously lived. It appears that George never lived in East Haven, and the statements heretofore published to the effect that he died in East Haven are inaccurate. In the 1690's, George acted with Mr. Jonathan Pitman as arbitrators in a quarrel between the sons of Francis Hall, deceased, of Fairfield, Conn. It is not clear why George, living so far away, should have been selected to serve in such a capacity, unless his fame as a fair-minded man had gone abroad. It is possible that he was related in some way to the litigants, and it may be worthy of remark that his eldest sister Elizabeth Pardee (born in 1615) was of proper age to have been wife of Francis Hall; that Mrs. Hall, the mother of the litigants, was actually named Elizabeth; and that, before making Fairfield their home, the Halls had settled first in New Haven, in 1641, before George came hither. These facts are suggestive, but may be without special significance.

George's children were now growing up. The older boys, John and George, had doubtless helped to tend the ferry in their youth. John appears to have been a soldier in King Philip's War, and died unmarried in 1683. Of the girls by the first marriage, Mary married Joshua Hotchkiss in 1677, bore three children, and died about 1684; Joshua, who served as Ensign in the militia, and as sheriff, was thereafter twice married. Elizabeth married in 1679 Thomas Gregory of Norwalk, by whom she had issue, and after his death became wife of Lieut. John Olmstead of Norwalk.

George Pardee, Jr., was a seaman in his youth, but does not appear to have followed the sea without intermission, for in 1698 he called himself "husbandman," and in 1702, "marriner." In 1676, at the age of 20, he married Mercy Ball, daughter of an early proprietor of New Haven, and the sister of Capt. Alling Ball, a leading citizen of East Haven. The following year, he purchased 33 acres of upland with 6 acres of meadow at Solitary Cove.* This was part of the farm originally granted to Thomas Gregson in 1644; it was situated in the village of East Haven, where Gregson had been the first white settler. In the village records, on 25 Dec. 1682, George is listed as having a family of five persons, and an estate of £66. Within the next few years, he acquired more of the Gregson farm, and in April 1700, his father, a few days before his death, conveyed several parcels of land to him. When the "half division" lots were laid out in 1705, he had nine persons in his family, and an estate of £148; his name appears first on the list, and but one East Haven proprietor had a larger estate.

George's children by his Lane marriage were one son and three daughters. The eldest daughter, Rebecca, married in 1699 Samuel Mix, a first cousin of her brother Joseph's wife. The contracting parties were older than was customary, Rebecca being 33 years old, and the bridegroom 36. Samuel was son of that Thomas Mix who came into a good estate by marrying a daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Turner, thriftily conserved this estate, raised a family of ten children, and gave his sons a good education. Samuel Mix, indeed, had studied under George Pardee at Hopkins Grammar School, and there is every reason to suppose that the alliance was pleasing to Rebecca's father, who, less than three months after the wedding, provided a home for the bride. On 2 Oct. 1699, George Pardee Senior, tailor, for £43 silver money of New England current as at the date hereof and £50 good merchantable provision pay of this Colony, conveyed to Samuel Mix a home lot of 2 acres in the town plot, bounded east by the marketplace, north by the street and land of John Mix, west by the lots of Joshua Hotchkiss and Theophilus Munson, and south by the lot of John Alling, "together with the Mansion house well spring and barn and fruit trees and garden yards and fences thereupon.”* George made it easy for his son-in-law to acquire this property, for his will, drawn two and a half years later, refers to the £93 as still unpaid. Rebecca (Pardee) Mix bore to her husband three sons. The eldest, Samuel Mix Jr. (1700-1755), B.A. (Yale 1720), M.A., served as Rector of Hopkins Grammar School from 1721 to 1729.

The next daughter, Sarah, was unmarried in 1700, and later married a Mr. Sayres of Elizabethtown, N. J.

SEALS OF HOPKINS GRAMMAR SCHOOL AND YALE COLLEGE

The youngest daughter, Hannah, married a Vickers or Vicars, whose first name has been given erroneously in previous accounts as Edward. It is true that an Edward Vicars came to the "Iron Works" in East Haven about 1670, and had a wife at that time. He was a runaway apprentice from Virginia, who bragged that he had shot his master, and was whipped for his profane cursing. In 1682, he was listed as having two persons in his family, indicating that his wife was still living. In 1684, he died, and administration on his estate was granted to his widow Hannah. Since Hannah Pardee was born in 1672, and was but 12 years old when this Edward Vicars died, it is impossible that she was his wife. So far as known, he left no children, and Hannah's husband doubtless was a member of some other and unrelated Vicars family. Most probably, he was Philip Vicars, of Fairfield, N. J.

The earliest mention of George's youngest son, Joseph, occurs in November 1682, in connection with the new church bell which the town had purchased to replace the drum which had been used until

Joseph was brought up to the joiner's trade, and had probably been apprenticed to learn it, though records of such apprenticeship are not extant. In 1689, being then in his 25th year, and on the day following his bride's 21st birthday, he married Elizabeth Yale. Her father,

* OLD BELLS—The first bell in New Haven Colony is that mentioned by Rev Dr. Bacon in his "Historical Discourses." In April, 1681, "there being a bell brought in a Vessel into the harbor, it was spoken of, and generally it was desired that it might be procured for the town; and for the present it was desired that Mr. Thomas Trowbridge would if he can, prevail with Mr. Hodge the owner of it, to leave it with him until the town hath had some further consideration about it."

In August the owner of the bell had sent to have it brought to the Bay in Joseph Alsop's vessel, "and it having lain so long it would not be handsome for the town to put it off." Thereupon, "after a free and large debate," it was voted that the bell be purchased. The price was £17. In April, 1682, the town was informed that the bell was now "hanged in the Turret" of the meeting-house, and in November the townsmen "had agreed with George Pardee for his sone Joseph to ring the bell for the town's occasions on the Sabbaths and other meetings as it was wont to be by the Drum and also to ring the bell at nine o'clock every night." In 1686 the bell was sent to England to be newcast and made bigger for the town's use, Mr. Simon Eyre offering to carry it out and back freight free.

The bell was brought back and finally sold by the town for the State House, and when the State House was torn down the bell was stored in the basement of the new State House about 1829. After a while some boys got it out, and ringing it broke it, and probably, as it was of some value as old metal, it may have been recast into another bell, and may now be doing use somewhere.—New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. XXXVIII, p. 227.

Thomas Yale, was a stepson of Gov. Theophilus Eaton, brother of Mrs. Edward Hopkins, and uncle of Elihu Yale, donor of Yale College. Her mother, Mary Turner, was daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Turner, first ranking officer of New Haven Colony, who had been lost on Lamberton's ship. A day before the wedding, George Pardee, "in consideration of a marriage intended and shortly to be consummated by the will of God between my son Joseph Pardy of New Haven and Elizabeth Yale daughter of Mr. Thomas Yale late of New Haven deceased and for the more comfortable accomodation of my said son," conveyed to him eight pieces of real estate. The first was "the new house I bought of Allin Ball of New Haven Junior," to which we have already referred in these pages, "reserving nevertheless the one half of the said house and appurtenances to the use of me the said George Pardy to dwell in, if need be, during my life as also to the use of my wife Rebecka in like manner, in case she survive me, dureing her widow hood." Among the other pieces were one half of the yearly rent or improvement of the Water street homelot, 34 acres on the west side of the Quinnipiac (bought of John Brooks and John Humiston), the improvement of some 3 acres in "the Neck" which "was given me by my Mother Miles," and land in East Haven and West Haven.

Even if (as seems likely) George had assisted his elder son George Jr. in the purchase of the Gregson property in East Haven, the generous terms of the above conveyance make it appear that Joseph was his favorite son. Or perhaps, in his pleasure because of Joseph's choice of a bride, he temporarily forgot his usual prudence. On 15 Apr. 1700, his father being then on his death-bed, Joseph released his rights under the terms of the conveyance of 1689. He states that since "the just rights of my other relations are not answered and secured but manifestly injured and invaded through the mistake of the scribe," he, with the consent of Elizabeth his wife, and in consideration of a new deed from his father, annuls the former one.

In April 1704, Joseph was listed as having six persons in his family, and an estate of £36. The same year, he had nearly 10 acres laid out to him in the Allingtowntown section of West Haven, and in 1709 he bought a large farm there and settled on it. Thus, the two surviving sons of George founded two branches of the family, the one in East Haven, the other in West Haven.

George Pardee made a will on 14 Apr. 1700, added a codicil the next day, and died before the 26th of the same month, when the inventory of his estate was made. A verbatim copy of his will and inventory is appended.

The records, both in what they tell us about him and in what they are silent about, reveal George Pardee as a man of fine character and high ideals. Coming as a youth to a new, undeveloped country, he immediately set to work to make himself of use to the community. He learned a trade and practiced it for a time with success. He assisted in operating the ferry and gave such satisfaction to those who used it that he became the official ferryman, and was even called back to this position a second time. This was an important and responsible position, for considering the primitive transportation facilities of the times, it was analogous to operating a railroad or steamship line to-day.

When the opportunity came for him to utilize his classical education by assuming the mastership of the Grammar School, he was quick to seize it, yet without thrusting himself forward or trumpeting his own abilities. The modesty with which he referred to his scholarly attainments is clearly shown in the official record. The position sought the man, because he was ready and prepared for it; the only available man, in fact, in the Colony at that time. That he discharged the duties of his new office with ability is proved not merely by the direct statement of the record to that effect, and by the fact that he was recalled to fill a second term as rector, but by the later careers of some of his pupils. Among them was Abraham Pierson, who was afterwards graduated from Harvard, and became the first Rector of Yale College.

His last occupation was that of inn-keeper, which in colonial days was considered a suitable one for a retired gentleman. Thus his life was busy and eventful to the end. The year of his death, he still called himself "tailor" in a deed. This at first seems somewhat surprising. But it should be remembered that men who have always been active find it difficult in old age to remain idle, and it is possible that he could not resist the entreaties of neighbors who still recalled his skill, to employ it in their behalf. However, he was then in comfortable circumstances, and perhaps it is more likely that in so designating himself we have merely another instance of his modesty. In England at that period, the teacher of a Grammar School was entitled to call himself "gentleman," then a coveted distinction; yet Mr. Pardee never made use of the term in describing himself in deeds, and this in itself is indicative of the unassuming nature of the man. Apparently he felt that good work in any line of endeavor is its own reward, and cared little for the honors and titles which successful achievement sometimes brings.

He was a man of good judgment, honest and thrifty. He was not an original proprietor of the town, hence all the property he acquired had to be bought and was not a gift from the town. We are not informed as to whether he brought any patrimony with him, and at best it could not have been large. It is indeed probable that he owed his worldly success entirely to his own industry and thrift. He purchased many pieces of real estate and never sold or disposed of any of it (except the Water Street house) outside of his own family. The small size of his estate when inventoried after his death was caused by the many valuable gifts he made to his children during his life. At one time he owned three houses with homelots, besides acreage in various parts of the town, while his eldest son at the same time held half of the great Gregson farm in East Haven.

He was a member of the Church, in good standing, until the time of his death. Of his personal character, it need only be said that he was never accused of the slightest deviation from rectitude, and that the youth were intrusted to his care for instruction in manners and morals. His amiability is evident from several of the records relating to him. His attachment to his children and care for them is shown by the gifts he made them during his lifetime. His name, though not one of the Biblical or Puritanical names most in favor, was bestowed on grandchildren and later descendants with frequency, indicating that he was held in loving remembrance.

CHAPTER VI

EARLY PARDEE HOMES AND LANDS

The Water Street Houses

"The names of y^e Tennants of oystershell field, beginning 1648. M^rch 10th""* include Francis Brown, 3 acres for the ferry, rent free, also Robert Pig, 2 acres, Francis Brown, 2 acres, and John Hall, 2 acres.

These men and the others to whom the grant was made built their houses on Water street, facing the harbor, and with Oystershell Field at the rear. George Pardee first lived in the house of Francis Brown.

On 1 Feb. 1652/3, "Robert Pigg passeth over to George Pardee his house and home lott, lying betwixt the house of John Hall and the house that was Jonathan Marshes."†

Apparently George Pardee occupied this house during the period when the ferry was at the end of Water street, during his first incumbency as rector of the Grammar School, and during his second incumbency as ferryman until the ferry was moved up the river to Red Rock about 1669/70. It was still owned by him on 21 Feb. 1684, when "George Pardee senior of New Haven having for many years past stood in the quiet possession of a certain home-lot . . . doth now record it," being 2½ acres, bounded south or southwest on the highway, east or southeast on Eliezer Browne, west or northwest on a homelot in possession of John Stevens and was at first belonging to John Hall, and north and northeast on Oystershell Field, "known and owned to be in the quiet possession of the said George Pardee for many years past."‡

This same property was referred to in Articles of Agreement drawn 12 Apr. 1682 between the Trustees of the Grammar School (to whom the town had granted Oystershell Field as an endowment) and twelve adjacent land-owners, among them John Stevens, George Pardy, and Eliezer Browne, relating to fencing between their land and Oystershell Field.§

On 21 Apr. 1692, George Pardy senior of New Haven sold to Eliezer Browne a home lot of 2½ acres, bounded west by John Steevens senior, north by the common field, east by Eliezer Browne, and south by the sea.||

The Ferry Farm

On 18 Jan. 1668/9, "The Townes-men (on behalfe of George Pardee, y^e p^rsent ferryman) propounded, That in reference to y^e settling of the fferry at y^e Red Rocke . . . That the towne would graunt him liberty to purchase some Land of the indyans about the quantity of 20 acres or more adjoyneing to the sd place."¶

On 14 Mar. 1669/70, "The towne by Vote graunted George Pardee his proposition in the substance of it, in reference to y^e fferry Land at y^e red rocke, as in a writeing p^rsented by the townes-men on his behalfe."*

It is difficult to tell how soon a house was built on this land. It would seem that attendance on the ferry would make residence in this vicinity desirable, and it is possible that George soon built a house there and dwelt in it until the Spring of 1674, when his second incumbency as rector of the Grammar School began, and he went to live in the Evance house on the corner of College and Elm streets.† Otherwise, he probably lived in the Water street house until he moved to the Evance house.

Under date of 28 Mar. 1699, we read that about the year 1669 George Pardee senior purchased a tract of land of the Indians at the Red Rock, bounded east by the foot of a Rocky hill that is on the east side of the Cold Spring Creek, south on the Indians' land, west on the meadow formerly Jonathan Lampson's, now the said Pardee's, and north by the East river and a bit or run of Water running into Martin's meadow, and he now records possession of the same.‡

Among the parcels of land conveyed by George Pardee to his son Joseph in 1689 was ½ part of the land and meadow at the ferry on the east side, and he mentions that he has given ½ to his son George.§ This was apparently only a "family arrangement," because as noted above George Sr. some ten years later had the ferry farm recorded in his own name. When on 15 Apr. 1700 Joseph annulled the conveyances of 1689, George Pardee senior of New Haven, tailor, conveyed to his son George (on the same day, 15 Apr. 1700) "the ferry farm and meadow belonging thereunto, with the privileges of the said ferry, only reserving forty shillings yearly out of the rent of the said ferry" to the use of the grantor in case he should demand the same; also a 4-acre lot of John Pardee and a 30-acre Third Division lot of the grantor's lying on the east side of New Haven East river, as well as all right in the commonage or undivided lands.||

The ferry farm thus passed definitely in 1700 to George Jr., and he on 17 Sept. 1702 conveyed it for love to his son Eliphalet,¶ the latter succeeding him as ferryman.

The Evance House

John Evance, an early proprietor of New Haven, built his house facing the market-place ("the Green"), on the south-west corner of College and Elm streets. His heirs having returned to England, we read under date of 9 Sept. 1672 that an Indenture was made between Mrs. Susanna Hatsell, Henry Hatsell, and John Evance, on the one part, and Mr. Thomas Lake on the other part, conveying to Lake the housing formerly Mr. John Evance's, and that the same had been assigned by Lake to Deacon William Peck, representing the trustees of the Grammar School.*

On 28 Apr. 1674, it was agreed that George Pardee, as part compensation for his services as schoolmaster, should have free rental "of the house, barne, & homelott formerly Mr. Evances."† That George actually occupied this house during his second incumbency as rector (1674 to 1682) is shown by a record of 31 July 1677, which states that the trustees "for three years had let y^e house & homestead bee for y^e use of y^e p^rsent schoolm."‡

As will presently be shown, George Pardee probably bought and moved into the Ball house about 1682, following his resignation as rector of the Grammar School. Yet, oddly enough, he later purchased the Evance house in which he had formerly lived, and conveyed it to his son-in-law Samuel Mix.

"Whereas Susannah Hatsell of London, widow, formerly the wife of John Evance, sometime of New Haven Merchant deceased, John Evance of London Merchant, son and heir of the aforementioned John Evance deceased, and Henry Hatsell of London, Esq.," did sell to Thomas Lake of Boston, and the latter to Deacon William Peck as trustee of the Grammar School, the housing formerly John Evance's; William Peck, by an order of the said trustees dated 13 Aug. 1691, does on 7 Sept. 1691 sell to "Richard Williams of New Haven practitioner in physic the above said dwelling house, orchard and garden now in his possession" containing by estimation 2 acres of land, being bounded east by the market place, north by the street and land of John Mix, west by the lots of Joshua Hoskins and George Scott, and south by the lots of John Yale and Joseph Mansfield.§

On 15 Mar. 1692, Richard Williams of New Haven, Practitioner in physic, with the consent of Sarah his wife, for £35 of merchantable beef and pork and Indian corn, conveyed to George Pardee senior, tailor, 2 acres in the town plot, bounded east on the market place, north on the street and John Mix, west on Joshua Hodgskis and Georg Scott, and south on John Yale and Joseph Mansfield, with the Mansion house and barn and fruit trees and garden and fences thereupon.||

On 2 Oct. 1699, George Pardee Senior of New Haven, tailor, for £43 silver money of New England current as at the date hereof and £50 good merchantable provision pay of this Colony at price current with the merchant, conveyed to Samuel Mix¶ one house lot containing 2 acres, being in the town plot, bounded east by the Market place, north by the street and land of John Mix, west by lot of Joshua Hotchkis and Theophilus Munson, and south by lot of John Allin, together with the Mansion house, well, spring and barn and fruit trees and garden yards and fences thereupon.

The Ball House

George Pardee probably bought the Ball house about 1682, when he moved from the Evance house, but neglected to obtain a deed. This omission was supplied many years later, as the following deed attests.

On 27 Apr. 1709, Allen Ball of East Haven, yeoman, for a valuable consideration paid by Mr. George Pardee of New Haven deceased, "hath sold & by these p^rsents doth sell assigne enfeoffe confirme & firmly make over unto his son Joseph Pardee of y^e same N: Haven Joyner all y^t my messuage or tinnamint now in the possession of y^e sd Joseph Pardee Consisting of one dwelling House & one acre of Land or home Lott," bounded east on the street, north on the parsonage lot and Nathaniel Mix, west on land formerly belonging to John Gibbs, and south on David Perkins.*

That this property had been purchased by George Pardee many years before his death is proved by his conveyance to his son Joseph on 28 Jan. 1688/9, which contains a grant of "the new house I bought of Allin Ball of New Haven Junior with the homelot belonging thereunto," containing one acre bounded North on Mr. Hook's lot, south on David Perkins, west on John Gibbs, and east on the street; "reserving nevertheless the one half of the said house and appurtenances to the use of me the said George Pardy to dwell in, if need be, during my life, as also to the use of my wife Rebecca in like manner, in case she survive me, dureing her widow hood."†

The above reservation indicates that George Pardee was living in this house in 1689, and it is almost certain that he died there. Joseph appears to have lived with his father until the latter's death in 1700, and he doubtless continued to occupy this house until 1709, for he did not sell it until three months after purchasing a farm in West Haven. The bounds indicate that the house was located on the west side of College street, near the middle of the block between Chapel and George streets.

On 30 May 1709, Joseph Pardee of New Haven Joyner conveyed to Mr. Jonathan Atwater merchant a home lot containing one acre with the dwelling house thereon erected, bounded north on the parsonage lot and Nathaniel Mix, south on the home lot of David Perkins, west on the lot formerly belonging to John Gibbs, and east on the street.‡

The belated conveyance from Alling Ball was doubtless obtained to enable Joseph Pardee to give a clear title to Jonathan Atwater, for the sale took place only a month after Ball gave his conveyance. Joseph Brown's map of New Haven as it was in 1724§ shows the location of Jonathan Atwater's house on College street, with that of Lieut. David Perkins on the south, and those of Mr. Heaton and Nathaniel Mix on the north. The house of John Gibbs on York street, at the rear of the Ball-Pardee-Atwater property, was occupied in 1724 (according to the map) by David Punderson, who was a nephew of Mr. Gibbs' wife.

The Gregson Farm

Mr. Thomas Gregson, an early proprietor of New Haven, and a younger son of the Gregsons of Sherrow-hall in Thurvaston, Derbyshire, "desired that he might have his 2^d divisio by the Sollitary Cove."|| This was on 1 July 1644.

† Ib., I. 442.

‡ New Haven Land Records, III. 236.

§ See Atwater's History of the City of New Haven, facing p. 24.

|| Hoadley: New Haven Colony Records, I, 142.

The Second Division land was in East Haven, and Solitary Cove was the former name of Morris Cove. The amount of the grant was 133 acres.* Mr Gregson was lost on Lamberton's ship in 1647; his widow Jane survived him until 1702.

On 1 Dec. 1677, Jane Grickson of New Haven conveyed to her daughter Phebe the wife of Rev. John Whiting of Hartford, 33 acres of upland with 6 acres of meadow at Solitary Cove; and on 18 July 1678, John Whiting of Hartford transferred the same property to George Pardee of New Haven.†

It has usually been supposed that this purchase was made by the first George Pardee. But inasmuch as the second George was already married at this time, and since no conveyance of the property from George Sr. to George Jr. appears on record, it is certain that the second George himself made the purchase, perhaps with financial aid from his father.

On 9 Aug. 1688, George Pardee Jr. purchased of Jane Gregson (for £5) one acre "on the Indian side."‡ On 7 Sept. 1691, Jane Gregson of New Haven, widow and administratrix of the estate of Mr. Thomas Gregson, deceased, for £20, conveyed to George Pardee Junior 20 acres of upland on the east side of New Haven harbour, being part of the said Mrs. Gregson's farm.§

It has been stated heretofore in printed accounts that George Pardee the second purchased the other half of the Gregson farm in 1716. This is not the fact. On 25 Sept. 1716, Joseph Whiting|| of New Haven, shopkeeper, quitclaimed to George Pardee Senior¶ in the parish of East Haven all right in the farm whereon the said Pardee now dwelleth at Solitary Cove which the said Pardee bought of Mrs. Jane Gregson of New Haven deceased and of Mr. John Whiting of Hartford deceased and 2½ acres bought of said Mrs. Gregson but no deed thereof executed, being in quantity in the whole 62½ acres.

It is quite clear that the above deed conveys nothing not previously conveyed. It is merely confirmatory of the previous purchases, and makes good the lack of a deed for the last purchase of 2½ acres. In all, therefore, George Pardee the second acquired about one-half of the original Gregson farm. The purchases may be summed up thus:

The Allingtown Farm

The date of Joseph Pardee's removal to the Allingtown section of West Haven is definitely fixed by his purchase of 100 acres there in Feb. 1709, and his sale of the Ball house in New Haven three months later.

CHAPTER VII

DESCENDANTS OF GEORGE PARDEE

The usual method of arrangement has been followed. Sons who are carried forward as heads of families are assigned a family number in the left-hand margin for purposes of reference. At the head of each family, the direct line of descent back to George¹ Pardee is stated in parentheses.

Brief abstracts of original records, and often direct quotations, are frequently given in the history of the early generations, sometimes for their intrinsic value or interest, sometimes merely to prove the accuracy of the statements made. Because of the limitations of space, it has been deemed unwise to crowd these pages with references to volume and page, which would be of no interest to the reader, and of no value to any but trained genealogists.

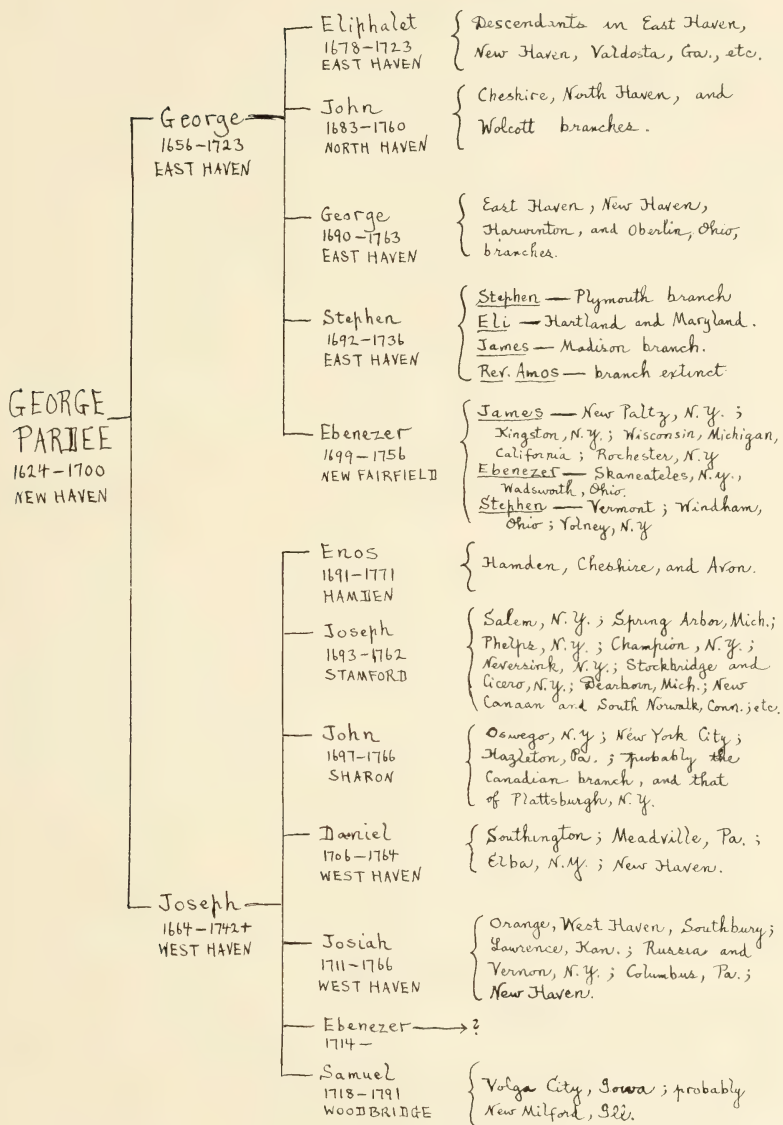

It is to be regretted that so large a proportion of the descendants have been overmodest in chronicling their achievements, for more biographical sketches, if obtainable, would have relieved the barrenness of mere statistical information. Gratitude must be expressed to those who have taken the pains to write sketches of themselves or their relatives.

Until the most recent generations are reached, this country was largely rural, and it is therefore not surprising to find agriculture the most common occupation of the Pardees. The family possessed in marked degree the pioneering spirit, and played its part in the upbuilding of the country, notably in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and the western States. Of the professions, medicine has found most recruits among the Pardees, though several have attained distinctions as jurists and as ministers of the Gospel.

The Pardee family has taken its part in colonial and national wars. Its record in the Revolutionary War is scarcely to be equaled. Of the 59 male Pardees between the ages of eighteen and fifty years during the war, forty men (over two-thirds) bore arms on the patriotic side, nine of whom held rank in the army, and not a single loyalist has been found.

For recent generations, dependence has been placed on the information received from descendants. While great pains have been taken to insure accuracy, it cannot be hoped that a work of this magnitude, drawn from various and sometimes varying sources, can entirely escape error. If further research had been possible, some of the unsettled problems might have been solved, and more of the missing branches might have been located.

THE PARDEE BRANCHES

I. GEORGE¹ PARDEE, baptized at Pitminster, Somersetshire, England, 19 Feb. 1624, died at New Haven, Conn., in Apr. 1700; married first, at New Haven, 20 Oct. 1650, MARTHA MILES, who died early in 1662, daughter of Dea. Richard Miles; married second, at New Haven, 29 Dec. 1662, KATHERINE LANE; married third, before 1689, REBECCA

An extended account of the career of George Pardee appears in the foregoing chapters.

Children, by first wife, born at New Haven:

- i. JOHN,² b. 20 Aug. 1651; d. abt. 28 June 1653.
- ii. JOHN, b. 2 Dec. 1653; d. in 1683, unm. In 1680 he was allotted 4 acres in the "third division," almost certainly for service as a soldier in King Philip's War, 1675. His estate was inventoried 12 Nov. 1683, and totaled £26:10:10. In addition to clothing and books, a gun, sword, and belt are listed. A forestaff and quadrant may indicate that he had learned navigation. There was also "stuff for a sute, Callico, 3 yds. of Linnen, 3 yds. of blue Linnen," to lend color to the belief that he assisted his father in his trade.
2. iii. GEORGE, b. 15 Jan. 1656.
- iv. MARY, b. 18 Apr. 1658; d. abt. 1684; m. 29 Nov. 1677, ENS. JOSHUA HOTCHKISS, b. at New Haven, 16 Sept. 1651, d. there 22 Dec. 1722; had issue, three children.*
- v. ELIZABETH, b. 10 June 1660; m. (1) 25 Dec. 1679, THOMAS GREGORY, of Norwalk; m. (2) LIEUT. JOHN OLNSTEAD, of Norwalk.†

Children, by second wife, born at New Haven:

3. vi. JOSEPH, b. 27 Apr. 1664.

* Children (Hotchkiss): 1. Mary, b. 30 Apr. 1679, d. unm. 2. Dea. Stephen, b. 25 Aug. 1681, d. at Cheshire, 5 Mar. 1755; m. at New Haven, 12 Dec. 1704, Elizabeth Sperry, b. 17 Jan. 1683, d. 17 May 1760; had 13 children. 3. Martha, b. 14 Dec. 1683, d. abt. 1755; m. 25 Mar. 1702, Lieut. Thomas Brooks, b. 27 Mar. 1679, d. at Cheshire, 20 July 1732; had 11 children.

† The inventory of Thomas Gregory's estate, taken in Nov. 1693, amounted to £356:12:2. The first recorded Gregory child was Martha, b. 31 Aug. 1680, d. young. There were also three surviving children, Ebenezer, Phebe, and Rebecca, named in the probate records. Ebenezer Gregory, b. 26 Oct. 1683, d. 30 May 1761, m. Mary Fitch, sister of Gov. Thomas Fitch. These children probably lived with their step-father Lieut. John Olmstead, who had charge of their estate; after his death (1704), Rebecca chose Ebenezer Gregory for her guardian, and John Benedict and Elizabeth Olmstead (Administrators of the estate of Thomas Gregory) gave a receipt to the Administrators of Lieut. Olmstead's estate. The inventory of Olmstead's estate was presented 22 Dec. 1704/5 (sic), and the names and ages of the Olmstead children were thus stated: Jane, Sarah, Rebecca, Elizabeth, Daniel (19), Mary (18), Richard (17), Eunice (15), Deborah (10 or 11), Abigail (8), Anna (6), and John (4). The children whose ages were not stated were of age, and administration on Olmstead's estate was granted to his sons-in-law, Thomas Read, Samuel Sension, and Benjamin Wilson. The date of Elizabeth (Pardee) Gregory's second marriage is not known. Since she was called Olmstead in her father's will (1700), she was certainly mother of the youngest Olmstead child, John, and was probably mother also of Abigail and Anna, and possibly of Deborah. All the other children were certainly by Olmstead's first wife, since they were born prior to the date of the inventory of the estate of Elizabeth's first husband.

- vii. REBECCA, b. 18 Apr. 1666; d. 14 June 1731; m. 26 July 1699, SAMUEL MIX, of North Haven, b. 11 Jan. 1663, d. 10 Apr. 1730; had issue, three children.*
- viii. SARAH, b. 2 Feb. 1668; d. at Greenwich, Conn., in 1756; m. after 1700, ——— SAYRES, of Elizabethtown, N. J.; no issue. Her will, dated 6 Dec. 1750, proved 5 Oct. 1756, calls her formerly of Elizabethtown, N. J., late of Greenwich; mentions her sisters (i. e. sisters-in-law) Marcy and Elizabeth Pardee of New Haven County; cousin (i. e. niece) Mary, wife of Capt. Nathaniel Peck of Greenwich; children of her brother Joseph Pardee; nephew Samuel Mix, son of her sister Rebecca; Joseph Pardee of Greenwich; children of her brother George. Perhaps her husband was the Francis Sayre of Elizabethtown, administration on whose estate was granted to his widow Sarah on 6 Nov. 1708.
- ix. HANNAH, b. 7 July 1672; m. ——— VICARS.†

2. GEORGE² PARDEE (*George*¹), born at New Haven, 15 Jan. 1656, died at East Haven, 22 Nov. 1723; married first, 10 Feb. 1676, MERCY BALL, born about 1654, died at East Haven, 13 Aug. 1684, daughter of Alling and Dorothy Ball; married second, 11 Feb. 1686, MERCY DENISON, born 26 July 1668, died in 1757, daughter of James and Bethia (Boykin) Denison.

George purchased a part of the Gregson farm in East Haven in 1678, and later acquired additional property there.‡ In his youth he doubtless helped his father with the ferry, and he may have followed the sea for a time, since he refers to himself as "mariner" in one conveyance. He succeeded his father as ferryman, and in Oct. 1701 complained to the Connecticut Assembly "that the fare stated by lawe for the ferry at Newhaven is not a meet recompence." The rates were therefore increased. The management of the large Gregson farm probably demanded most of his time after his father's death, for in 1703 he leased the ferry farm with all its appurtenances, including the ferry-boat, to Jacob Robinson, and the following year turned it over to his own son, Eliphalet. In 1702 he served on a jury.

He became involved, about 1698, in a law-suit with Elkanah Pembroke of Boston over an alleged breach of contract, and after considerable litigation, eventually lost the suit. The judgment against him was a large one, and his relatives and friends showed their confidence in his integrity by advancing the sums necessary to meet it. To secure them, he heavily mortgaged his large holdings of realty, and was thus enabled to retain this valuable property for the use of himself and his children. The financial embarrassment due to these circumstances had not entirely been surmounted at the time of his death, and in his will he made careful provision for the final discharge of his obligations.

Jonathan (son of Gov. Thomas) Fitch. 2. George, b. 24 Mar. 1702; m. 14 Feb. 1725, Katharine Tuttle, b. 25 Nov. 1699; had seven children. 3. Stephen, b. 12 Aug. 1705, d. unm.

† In 1692 a Philip Vickers, a smith by trade, is mentioned as resident in Fairfield, Conn., and Philip Vicars, a blacksmith, died in 1703 at Fairfield, Salem Co., N. J., leaving a widow Hannah. He was probably husband of Hannah Pardee.

The will of George Pardee, dated 22 Nov. 1723, proved 3 Feb. 1723/4, starts with a preamble: "Being at present Under the afflicting hand of God and apprehensive of my Speedy Change, and being allowed the free use of my Reason, Do account it my duty to set my house in order before I Dye." He bequeathed to his beloved wife Mercy one-third of his moveable estate absolutely, with a life interest in one-third of the farm he lived on and of the house and barn. To son George, one-half of the house, barn, and farm and of the land "I bought of the Indians," he to pay £44 to creditors. To son Stephen, "my Bloomery lot," together with other lands, he to pay £22 to creditors. To son Ebenezer, the other half of the property bequeathed to George, he to pay £44 to creditors. To son James, 16 acres lying near Natt: Joslin's house, 8 acres near Joseph Granniss's house, and "my half Division in ye bridge swamp," and other land, he to pay £20 to creditors. To son John, besides what he had received by deed, 20 acres near his farm, he to pay £12 to creditors. To each of his daughters, 20 shillings. To two daughters not married, Elisabeth and Mary, the rest of the moveable estate. His brother John Denison and son George Pardee appointed Executors. The inventory totaled £860:08:10.

Mercy Pardee, in her will dated 3 Oct. 1752, proved in Nov. 1757, called herself "weak & aged & infirm." Moveable estate to daughters Elisabeth Frisbie and Mary Chidsey and granddaughter Sarah Smith, Sarah to receive half as much as each of the others. To sons George and Ebenezer. Her son-in-law Isaac Chidsey and daughter Elisabeth Frisbie appointed Executors. The estate amounted to £9:5:9, being exceeded by the debts and charges. Isaac Chidsey exhibited receipts from Benjamin Frisbie and Elizabeth his wife, and Paterson Smith and Sarah his wife, the legatees.

§ For whom, see Families of Ancient New Haven, p. 400.

1703, as administrator of his father's estate, he complained to the Connecticut Assembly that New Haven County was considerably indebted to the estate, and received an order for payment. At the Oct. 1707 session of the Connecticut Assembly, he was allowed 3 shillings 6 pence per day for services as constable. In 1715, his name appeared on a petition for a separate ecclesiastical society at "West Farms," as West Haven was then called. He was occasionally called on for public service, such as serving on juries and appraising estates.

His first wife, Elizabeth Yale, was a daughter of Thomas Yale (step-son of Gov. Theophilus Eaton), niece of Gov. Edward Hopkins' wife, and first cousin of Gov. Elihu Yale, the donor to Yale College. Her maternal grandfather, Capt. Nathaniel Turner, a veteran of the Pequot War, had been the first ranking officer of the New Haven militia, and had been lost on Lamberton's ship. Joseph's second wife, Elizabeth Payne, was granddaughter of William Payne and John Brockett, the latter of whom was the surveyor who laid out the original nine squares of New Haven township.

As Joseph approached old age, he conveyed his real estate to his children in several deeds, the last one being dated in 1742. There is consequently no probate record of his estate, and the exact date of his death is unknown.

4. ELIPHALET³ PARDEE (George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, 26 Dec. 1678, died there 3 Sept. 1723; married HANNAH EDWARDS, born at Northampton, Mass., ———, died at East Haven in 1761, daughter of Samuel and Sarah (Boykin) Edwards. She married second, 5 Jan. 1725, Peter Woodward,§ who died at East Haven, 25 Sept. 1745, aged 68.

Like his father and grandfather before him, Eliphalet tended the ferry across the Quinnipiac, being referred to as "Ferry-man" in 1704, and in 1714 secured from the Connecticut Assembly permission to increase the rates. He was also licensed in 1704 "to retaile smale parcells

* Nos. xii, xiii, xiv, and xv were baptized at the First Church, New Haven. The first four were born at New Haven, the last six at West Haven.

* Ebenezer Pardee of New Haven conveyed to Daniel Pardee, 12 Jan. 1742/3, two acres, being part of my father's farm, bounded south on said Daniel's land, and west on the boundary line between New Haven and Milford. He conveyed all rights in New Haven realty to Samuel Pardee, 23 Feb. 1746/7. Ebenezer joined other inhabitants of Middlebury in 1757, 1760, and 1761 in petitions to the Legislature asking for the establishment of a separate ecclesiastical society. Middlebury did not become a parish, however, until 1790. It appears that Ebenezer lived in the section of Middlebury which was then a part of Woodbury, for his name occurs on the tax list of the First Society in Woodbury as late as 1770. The death of "Mr. Pardy's wife" is recorded in Woodbury, 17 Oct. 1785, but no births or baptisms of children have been found in Woodbury, nor are there gravestones of members of his family in the Middlebury cemetery. Finally, no probate records of his estate have been found. These circumstances have made it impossible to compile a record of his descendants, if any, and the difficulties have been increased by the fact that Ebenezer⁴ Pardee (15) lived for a few years in Woodbury. Probably Mary Pardee (b. 10 Apr. 1759, m. abt. 1796 Nathaniel Merrill of Waterbury, b. 25 Mar. 1756, as his second wife, and named a child Ebenezer Pardee Merrill) was a daughter of Ebenezer. Possibly a son was William Pardy (see Appendix I), b. 16 May 1766, who removed from Rutland, Vt., to Gorham, N. Y.

of strong drink within doors." This was doubtless for the comfort of travelers, who in Colonial days, especially in cold or damp weather, fortified themselves against influenza and kindred ills by the use of stimulants.

Administration on Eliphalet's estate was granted, 23 Dec. 1723, to his widow Hannah. The inventory totaled £501:11:1. Among the articles of clothing listed were A Great Kersy Coat Lined with Red penistone, a Beavor hatt, a Cloth Sarge Coat mixed Colour, a Cloth Large vest Gray, which help to give us a picture of how Mr. Pardee appeared when dressed in his best. There were numerous agricultural and carpentry implements, and the livestock consisted of 5 swine, an old mare, a horse, 2 other mares, a two-year-old horse, a year-old colt, a "Balld faced Mare, a Bauld faced mare in woods," a two-year old horse and colt in woods, 38 sheep, a pair of oxen, a red cow and calf, and other cows. The most valuable real estate listed was "3 acres of Land most handy for the ffery & on wch the house & barne stands and also the Boat," appraised together at £111.

The minor son Ebenezer chose his mother Hannah guardian, and she was appointed guardian of the younger children, Eliphalet, Benjamin, Sarah, and Noah. The estate was distributed, one-third to the widow, a double portion to the eldest son Ebenezer, and a single portion to the four younger children. In 1738, Noah chose his brother Ebenezer guardian. In 1741, Ebenezer and Sarah complained that their father-in-law [step-father] Peter Woodward, in right of his wife Hannah who was their guardian, refused to account with them.

The son Noah ran the ferry with his brother Benjamin, and died unmarried. His will, dated 16 May 1754, proved in June 1754, bequeathed to his sister Sarah his right in the dwelling-house and barn so long as she remains unmarried, and other property, such as livestock and silver, outright. He also remembered his brothers Ebenezer and Benjamin, and the 4 daughters of the former,—Hannah, Sarah, Eunice, and Ruth; he appointed "my Hond Mother Hannah Woodward" Executrix. Ebenezer appealed from probate of the will.

Noah left a very good estate, appraised at £1665:16:4. The personalty contained such items as Mittens, Kersy Breeches, Jackit, Coat, great Coat, flanel Jackit, leather and woollen Breeches, Knee Buckells, also a Tobacco Box, snuff Bottle, and pockit Bottle. His right in the ferry was listed at £100, and one-half a ferry boat at £5.

Mrs. Hannah Woodward left a will dated 12 Dec. 1757, proved in Feb. 1761, in which she mentioned her children Ebenezer, Benjamin, and Sarah Pardy. Anthony Thompson presented the will in right of his wife Sarah, who had been named Executrix. The inventory showed a small estate appraised at £14:13:5.

5. JOHN³ PARDEE (George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, 4 Nov. 1683, died at North Haven in 1760; married first, 9 July 1712, ABIGAIL BROCKETT, born at New Haven, 31 Mar. 1683, died at North Haven, 2 Aug. 1752, daughter of Dr. John and Elizabeth (Doolittle) Brockett; married second, probably at Branford, before 1756, MARY (BRAINERD) POND, born at Haddam, 20 June 1700, died at North Branford, 21 Nov. 1770, daughter of Elijah and Mary (Bushnell) Brainerd, and widow of Moses Pond.

He lived in the Montowese section of North Haven, and his first wife has a stone in the Montowese Cemetery, where he too was doubtless interred. The clue to his second wife's identity is found in Branford Deeds (vol. 7, p. 530); Daniel and Bathsheba Johnson, on 26 Mar. 1756, conveyed to Aaron Pond land inherited from their father Moses Pond, deceased, except what might come to them from the dowry of their mother Mary Pardy.

His will, dated 22 Mar. 1759 and proved in May 1760, gave to his "Beloved Wife Mary" £10, and directed that a prenuptial contract be carried out. To son John one-half of the farm I dwell on (the north side with the buildings on it), one-half of a salt meadow, of my Sabbath Day House, and of my husbandry tools. To son Eliphalet the other half of the foregoing, he to have the south side of the farm. To daughter Abigail Barns 20 shillings in addition to what I have already given her, and to daughter Martha Frost £16.

The estate was inventoried at £860:6:0. Among the personal items were a flannel coat (£1), another coat (£1.5), breeches (£0.7) and 2 vests. The homestead of 160 acres was appraised at £4 per acre; buildings on the north and south sides, at £65 each; and the Sabbath Day House at £5. The estate was distributed in accordance with the provisions of the will.

Children by first wife, born at North Haven:

6. GEORGE³ PARDEE (George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, probably a few days before the date of his baptism (12 Jan. 1690), died there about Oct. 1763; married SARAH BRADLEY, who survived him, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth Bradley.

His will, dated 9 Sept. 1763, and probated 20 Oct. following, gave to his well beloved wife Sarah Pardee one-third of his dwelling house and barn, with one-third of lands and moveable estate for life. To grandchildren Isaac, Joseph and Leavitt, Jemima and Ama, the children of my son Isaac Pardee dec'd, the house in which I dwell and about 17 acres of land adjoining to said house and three acres across the way, and half of my twenty-acre right in the Bridge Swamp, the grandsons to share equally, and the granddaughters to have a £10 right in the house. To daughter-in-law Mary Pardee the relict of my son Isaac dec'd one-third of said house and land only so long as she bears her husband's name. To my beloved daughters Mercy and Lydia that house where my son Jacob lives with all the lot adjoining, and all my moveable estate except husbandry tools. To beloved son Jacob (appointed Executor), residue of estate.

The inventory totaled £798.17.10. The homestead, consisting of 46 acres and 125 rods, was appraised at £6 per acre (£280.10); the house and barn at £42. The dwelling house that Isaac Pardee dwelt in was appraised at £50, the adjoining lot of 17 acres at £4.10 per acre (£76.10). The swamp pasture, 28 acres and 140 rods, at £4 per acre (£116). The bridge swamp lot, 28½ acres at £0.15 per acre (£21.7.6.). The upper meadow, 2 acres 10 rods at £6 per acre (£12). Lower meadow, 4¾ acres at £6 per acre (£28.10). The estate was distributed, 1 Mar. 1764, to the legatees named in the will.

Administration of his estate was granted, 5 Jan. 1741, to his widow Mary. His inventory totaled £603:2:0, and some of the items are of interest for the sake of comparison of values at that date and to-day. The livestock included a yoke of oxen (£18), 2 cows (£17), 24 sheep (£18), a yoke of steers coming three-year-old (£15), besides swine and an old mare. The house and barn were listed at £60; 2 acres of orchard at £32; the "Home Land" of 15 acres at £10 per acre; and the rest of the real estate at £5 per acre.

The estate was distributed, 1 Jan. 1750, to the widow, son Stephen, "Mary ye oldest daughter," and Elizabeth.

He removed to New Fairfield about 1734, and was doubtless one of the organizers of the church there in 1742. He was a delegate to the convocation at Danbury in 1744, was a deacon as early as 1754, and served as moderator of the meeting held 23 Mar. 1756. He died between that date and 8 Nov. 1756, when administration on his estate was granted to his widow and son James.

He was prominent in the affairs of New Fairfield, serving at one time as Town Agent.

In Nov. 1717, Enos was licensed to keep tavern at "his now dwelling house for the Year Ensueing." He settled in Hamden, in the Mount Carmel district, but after his wife's death probably spent his declining years with his eldest daughter in Northford, where he is buried. In 1739 he joined other residents in or near Mount Carmel in a petition to the Connecticut Assembly asking to be annexed to the North Haven parish.

Abigail Pardee made her will 8 Feb. 1760, and it was probated the following July. She named her husband Enos, and he gave written consent to the terms of her will. To daughter Susannah Rogers a mourning suit and a double share in her estate. To daughter Elisabeth Frisbee a double share. To children Benjamin, Enos, Thomas, Abigail, and Nathanael, each a single share. To loving grandson, Jason Rogers, £5. She referred to her right in her brother Holt's estate, and named her sons Benjamin Pardee and Joseph Rogers Executors.

Distribution of her estate was made, 13 May 1761, to the following: To Susannah Rogers £16.9.10. To Jason Rogers, son of said Susannah, £5. To Elizabeth Frisbee £11.9.10. To Benjamin Pardee, Enos Pardee, Thomas Pardee, Abigail Thompson, and the heirs of Nathaniel Pardee deceased, £5.14.11 each. From this it is apparent that Susannah's mourning suit cost £5.

In Nov. 1771, Benjamin Pardee Junr. (nominated Executor in the will of Enos Pardee of Branford dec'd) exhibited the will. The testator having disposed of almost all his real estate, the Court held this to be a practical revocation of the will, and disapproved it. Administration was granted to Joseph Rogers of Branford in right of his wife, daughter of the deceased. The inventory showed an estate of £134.10.4, the only real estate being 4 acres of land in Mount Carmel, "near where said Decd formerly dwelt," valued at £52.10. Distribution was made, 15 Mar. 1773, to the heirs of Nathaniel Pardee, son of the deceased, and to the daughters Elisabeth Frisbie, Susanna Rogers, and Abigail Thompson. The Court's order of distribution is missing, but would probably show that the other children had received an equivalent by deed during the life of Enos.

10. JOSEPH³ PARDEE (Joseph,² *George*¹), born at New Haven, 9 Aug. 1693, died at Stamford, Conn., in 1762; married at Stamford, 25 Dec. 1723, ELIZABETH FERRIS, born at Stamford, 19 Mar. 1699, died at Salem, N. Y., 11 Dec. 1776, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Smith) Ferris.

He was living in Stamford, Conn., as early as 9 Mar. 1720/1, at which date he purchased from Jonathan Jagger a sawmill and dam with half an acre of land on the Brothers Brook near the Mianus River in Greenwich. On 7 June 1723, calling himself of Greenwich, he sold a one-half interest in this sawmill to Samuel Peck of Wallingford. Later in the same year, he was married in Stamford, and was called "now resident in Stamford" on 6 Feb. 1727, when he purchased from Jonathan Whelply a water grist mill in Greenwich on the east side of the Mianus River above the main county road, together with 20 acres of land with a dwelling house. Here he appears to have lived until the year before his death, being called of Greenwich when he bought additional land in that town in 1734 and 1738.

He purchased considerable land in Stamford, however, including 6 acres south-east of Mill River (1735); a half acre south of Mill River (1738), in partnership with Samuel Ferris and John Penoyer; a large tract, also south of Mill River (1741); 2 acres of meadow at Higginbottom's Swamp south of Mill River (1748); and all the right in Stamford patent which Jonathan Ferris inherited from his father and grandfather, both named Peter Ferris (1758). In all these deeds he is called of Greenwich.

On 4 May 1736, he and his wife joined the widow and other heirs of Joseph Ferris (Charles and Hannah Thorp, Joseph and Deborah Husted, John and Abigail Penoyer, Joseph Ferris, Nathan Ferris, Samuel Ferris, and Mary Ferris) in a petition for the probate of his father-in-law's will.

On 29 Jan. 1744/5, he purchased from Abraham Ambler for £50 land in "Stanford, four mile above the Collony Line within the Bounds of North Castle," Westchester County, N. Y. He also bought for £40 from Joseph Ferris late of Stamford, Conn., but now (13 Dec.

On 19 Mar. 1761, still being of Greenwich, he with Elizabeth his wife conveyed to John Wood of Huntington, N. Y., "my now dwelling house with a good barn and orchard," also 23 acres of land and "my Grist Mill now standing upon Mianos River." This was his Greenwich home, which he had bought from Whelply in 1727. He then removed to Stamford, where his son John was living. His will, dated 17 Feb. 1762, proved 20 Nov. 1762, named "my Loving & Beloved wife Elizabeth"; "my Loving Daughter Mary (the wife of Samuel Ferris)"; "my Loving Daughter Elizabeth (the wife of Robert Nichols)," to whom he bequeathed the right in the southern commons which he purchased from Jonathan and Martha Whelply; "my Loving & Eldest son Joshua Pardee, my Interest in the Saw-Mill at a place in said Stamford called Taunton"; "The Residue or Remainder of my Estate both Real & Personal as well what is in the Province of New-York & in the Province of New-Jersey as what is in the Colony of Connecticut & also the Reversion thereof I give & Bequeath unto my four Loving Sons to say—Joshua, Nathan, John & David Pardee." To Joshua he gave more because "of his long & faithful serving me," and to David more than the other two because "they have had an opportunity to Learn trades & he hath not—& not because of any Inequality in my affection to my said sons." Joshua was made the sole Executor.

During the last years of his residence in Greenwich, he became embroiled in a legal controversy through the action of the town in granting him liberty to build a grist-mill, dam, and bridge at Mianus. In consideration of his making these improvements, the town on 12 July 1754 surrendered to him all its right to the stream of the Mianus River. This did not meet the approval of certain energetic citizens, who forthwith obtained an indictment against him as "a common nuisance to his Majesty's subjects" because he had laid stones in the river for the foundation of the dam, and they also served notice on the town authorities, warning them against approving the further prosecution of the project.

Mead's "Ye Historie of ye Town of Greenwich" consistently calls Joseph a Purdy in both the historical and genealogical sections, although in fact he was in no way related to the Purdy family of Fairfield County. In Greenwich deeds his name is twice spelled Pardee, once Parde, once Pardy, and twice Pardey. New Haven Deeds (vol.

18, p. 276) contain a conveyance of realty from Joseph of Greenwich in 1754, acknowledgment being made in Stamford, thus proving him to be of the New Haven Pardee family. In Stamford deeds, his name is five times spelled Pardee and six times Pardy; it is Pardee in his will. Not one instance has been found of the spelling Purdy in any original document pertaining to him.

II. LIEUT. JOHN³ PARDEE (Joseph,² *George*¹), born at New Haven, 6 Feb. 1697, died at Sharon, 13 July 1766; married first, BETSEY HORN,[‡] born at Bristol?, England, in 1699, died at Sharon, 8 Jan. 1762; married second, HOPESTILL (HAMLIN) HUNTER, born at Barnstable, Mass., 23 July 1702, died ———, daughter of Dea. Ebenezer and Sarah (Lewis) Hamlin, widow of Jonathan Hunter.

He removed to Norwalk prior to 1722, and to Sharon in May 1738. Here he became a large landowner and prominent citizen. He was a shoemaker and tanner by trade, and lived near the stone bridge north of the meeting-house. He was one of the first representatives of Sharon in the Connecticut Assembly, being elected in Oct. 1755, and serving for six terms (Oct. 1755, May 1756, Oct. 1756, Oct. 1758, May 1760, and Oct. 1761).

John Pardee's first purchase in Norwalk was 5 acres at Silver Mine Brook, which was recorded to him on 9 Jan. 1723. The following year, he bought from Samuel Betts 5 acres at Stickey Plain [at the upper end of the present Main Street], and in 1727 he bought from Thomas Benedict, Jr., a half part of Hay Island. In 1729 he bought 8 acres at the south end of West Rocks, and sold them in 1742, being

As the latter place is now Ward Street, the home of John Pardee can be located with fair certainty.

His will, dated 12 Aug. 1765, mentioned his sons Thomas, Jehiel, John, James, George, and Moses Pardee, the heirs of daughter Mary late wife of Samuel Elmer, heirs of daughter Rebecca late wife of Noah Haskins, daughters Betty wife of Solomon Goodrich and Dinah wife of Daniel Barnes, grandchildren Samuel Elmer, Jr., Mary and Mehitabel Elmer, Asa Haskins, and Noah Haskins, Jr.; wife Hopestill.

12. DANIEL³ PARDEE (Joseph,² *George*¹), born at New Haven, 28 Nov. 1706, died at West Haven in 1764; married at West Haven, 19 Dec. 1734, LYDIA PORTER, born at West Haven, about 1716, died (at Southington?) after 1795, daughter of Dr. Richard and Mary Porter.

Daniel lived in the Allingtown section of West Haven. His father-in-law, Dr. Richard Porter, came from Waterbury to West Haven, where he married, for his second wife, Mary widow of John Thomas, by whom he had Lydia and two sons. Richard's will, made 13 Nov. 1738, proved 9 Feb. 1740, named his daughter Lydia Pardee. Lydia's brother Joshua Porter died in Southington in 1803, and his will, made in 1795, named his sister Lydia Pardee and her sons David and Stephen.

Administration on the estate of Daniel Pardee was granted to his widow Lydia, the first Monday of June 1764. The estate was appraised at £134.0.3. The real estate consisted of 13 acres of land with the dwelling house, valued at £80, and an acre and a half of meadow at the swamp, £9. In May 1765, the widow was given an allowance out of the estate to bring up the youngest child for 2 years.

The Court in May 1769 ordered distribution of the estate to the widow and 4 youngest children, portions having been previously received by David the eldest son, Jonathan the second son, and Lydia Peck the eldest daughter. At the same time, Lydia was appointed guardian to Mary, a minor daughter. Distribution was made, 3 Aug. 1769, to the widow, and to Stephen, Abigail, Isaac, and Mary Pardee. Lydia was allowed guardian to Isaac, a minor son, in Apr. 1770.

* The will of Abraham Johnson, dated 19 Nov. 1770, proved Feb. 1775, gave a legacy to his daughter Sybbl Pardee and to her daughter Lois Pardee to be equally divided between them. Lois Johnson, Sybil's daughter by her first husband, married Stephen Pardee (41).

† The first marriage of Eunice is so stated in the Alling Genealogy; but since she married Theophilus Alling at the First Church, New Haven, under her maiden name of Pardy, a prior marriage is doubtful. For her child, see the Alling Genealogy, p. 181.

Haven, 7 Nov. 1745, RACHEL (HOTCHKISS) (WOLCOTT) HUMPHREVILLE, born at New Haven, 26 Oct. 1709, died at Woodbridge, 6 May 1774,* daughter of Caleb and Mehitabel (Cruttenden) Hotchkiss, widow of Ebenezer Wolcott and of Thomas Humphreville; married second, at Woodbridge, 21 Aug. 1775, LYDIA SMITH, born at North Branford, 1 Jan. 1743, died at Woodbridge, 4 Nov. 1793, daughter of Dow and Kezia (Barker) Smith.

Samuel lived in that part of Woodbridge which until 1784 was part of Milford. His first wife was a widow with three Humphreville children. In Aug. 1763, the heirs of Caleb Hotchkiss made a mutual agreement for the distribution of his estate, the heirs being Caleb Hotchkiss Jr., Joel Hotchkiss, and Nehemiah Hotchkiss, all of New Haven, and Samuel Pardee and Rachel his wife of Milford. On 25 Apr. 1787, Samuel Pardee of Woodbridge, Jonas Hungerford and Elizabeth his wife of Watertown, Isaac Baldwin and Philena his wife of Derby, and Martha Humphreville of Stratford as Administratrix of the estate of Eliphalet Humphreville, conveyed property in New Haven.

Administration on the estate of Samuel Pardee of Woodbridge, deceased, was granted, 3 Feb. 1791, to his widow Lydia and to Hezekiah Baldwin. The estate was insolvent, and all the real estate except the widow's dower was ordered sold. An allowance of £13 was made to the widow for bringing up the youngest child (aged 18 months at the father's death) to 4 years of age, and also £2.12 for the next child.

On 15 Apr. 1793, John Howd was allowed guardian to Samuel, a minor son of Samuel Pardy of Woodbridge, deceased. On 19 May 1796, Daniel (aged about 16), son of Samuel Pardee of Woodbridge, chose Daniel Smith of Woodbridge guardian. On 5 July 1796, Isaac (aged about 14), son of the same, chose Hezekiah Baldwin of Woodbridge guardian. On 14 Dec. 1803, Ebenezer (aged about 15), son of the same, chose Hezekiah Baldwin guardian.

Samuel's estate was inventoried at £202.13.5. The "Mansion House" was valued at £1, 9¼ acres north of the house at £65.1, 11¼ acres south of the house at £67.16, and 12 acres (called the Rock Lot) at £39.1.6. The widow received for dower a part of the house lot (7¾ acres) with the house on it. Administration of the estate of Lydia Pardy of Woodbridge was granted, 14 June 1794, to Charles Baldwin; it was just sufficient to cover indebtedness and probate charges.

He removed to Woodbury about 1744, but shortly after returned to East Haven, where he was living in 1753.

legatees under the will of their uncle Noah Pardee. Ebenezer called himself of New Haven (East Haven being then a village in the former town) in 1760 and 1762 in conveyances of inherited property. In 1764 Sarah Pardee received a deed from Henry Freeman Hughes to 2 acres and "ye house and barn where the wife of Eben^r Pardee now Dwells," which Hughes had bought in 1760 from Ebenezer Pardee. The deed was witnessed by Eunice Pardee and its wording suggests that Ebenezer had recently died.

Perhaps he was the Ebenezer who served in the Campaign of 1762, French and Indian War, under Capt. Amos Hitchcock of New Haven (see No. 23).

16. BENJAMIN⁴ PARDEE (Eliphalet,³ *George*², *George*¹), born at East Haven, 9 Dec. 1714, died there 4 July 1782; married at East Haven, 17 June 1740, MARY BRADLEY, born at East Haven, 2 Apr. 1720, died there 11 Nov. 1799, daughter of Daniel and Mehitabel (Hemingway) Bradley.

Benjamin was the fourth generation of his family to run the ferry across the Quinnipiac River. In 1749 he was running the ferry with his brother Noah, and they petitioned the Conn. Assembly for an increase in the rates. In 1761, Jeremiah Osborn, having built a house on the post road west of the Quinnipiac, was granted leave to keep a ferry there. In 1772, Jesse Leavenworth was granted leave to run the ferry at "Ferry Point" from there to the East Haven shore. Thus the ferry passed from the Pardee family, after five generations and over a hundred and twenty-five years of service.||

* No. i. born at East Haven, ii., iii. and iv. at Woodbury (Judea parish, now Washington), and v. at East Haven. From his brother Noah's will, it is clear that in 1754 his only surviving children were the four daughters born prior to that date. It is not certain that the record of his children after that date is complete.

|| The latest record found which refers to Benjamin as ferryman is dated Oct. 1771. But note that Benoni, his son, had an interest in the ferry when he died in 1782.

The Revolutionary documents in Conn. Archives show that he made a claim for losses sustained in the British Raid.

Benjamin Pardee of East Haven, by will dated 3 July 1782, proved 21 Oct. 1782, gave to "my well Beloved Wife Mary" the life use of the west half of the dwelling house, half the barn, and the whole of the home lot and other lands; also, "my Negroe woman named Peg to be at her absolute disposal" and the life use of the eldest boy of my said Negroe woman, named Titus; and also, some livestock. To son Jared, my Negroe Boy named Robert to be at his absolute disposal, and one chain, and a plow. To wife and daughter Desire, the rest of the moveable estate. Sons Levi and Jared nominated Executors.

Lois Barnes's "Negroe Girl Cate" was appraised at £30; and Jared's "Negroe Boy Robert" at £15. The estate was distributed (not dated, but recorded 17 Sept. 1787) between the widow, Levi, heirs of Moses dec'd, Jared, heirs of Benoni, Lois Barns, Hannah Pardy, and heirs of Desire Pardy dec'd.

Benoni Pardee of East Haven, by will dated 29 July 1782, proved 21 Oct. 1782, gave to his brother Noah of Southington all right in my father's estate, a pair of oxen that I own at Cheshire, a sea chest at Noah's and what is in it, as likewise my watch. To brother Jared the Ferry Boat that I own and all the Interest that I have in the ferry and the ferry place, and some livestock. To brother Levi, sister Hannah Pardee, sister Lois Barns, sister Desire Pardee, and mother Pardee, bequests chiefly of livestock. Brother Noah to be sole Executor.

The only mention of him in Connecticut Archives is in connection with the sale of a blanket to the army in 1777. A great-granddaughter tells the story that British soldiers visited his home during his absence, when his wife and son David (aged then about 17) were alone, and frightened them into handing over all the money in the house.

In Nov. 1767, his wife Mary received a conveyance from her father of 36 acres in Waterbury, probably in the section which is now Wolcott. Later in life, he removed to Wolcott. His will, dated 24 Dec. 1803, proved 13 Feb. 1804, named only his wife Abigail and son David. His son Jesse predeceased him, administration being granted on Jesse's estate, 11 Jan. 1802; distribution was made to the widow; to Eliphalet and Abigail Pardee (life lease of one-third); to Mary, wife of Solomon Barnes; to David Pardee; to Hannah, wife of John Cooper; and to Abigail Molthrop.

19. ISAAC⁴ PARDEE (George,³ George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, 30 Nov. 1723, died there 27 Jan. 1761; married at Branford, 12 Apr. 1750, MARY‡ LEAVIT, born at Wallingford, 24 Sept. 1725, died at East Haven, 12 Oct. 1783, daughter of David and Mary Leavit.

Administration on the estate of Isaac Pardee was granted to his widow Mary in Mar. 1761. The inventory totaled £102.0.8. Included in the inventory was a Bible, a psalter, Watts' Psalms, and two other books. The livestock consisted of 3 cows at £3.5 per cow, 4 geese (£0.8), a pair of oxen (£10), 11 sheep (£2.15), a three-year old colt (£3), 1 mare (£7), 3 swine at 15 shillings per head, and 3 calves at 20 shillings per calf. The only real estate was 4 acres of land bought of Abraham Chidsey, equally to be divided between Jacob Pardy and the heirs of his deceased brother, appraised at 50 shillings per acre. There was a barn (£10), but no house, as Isaac lived in a house which belonged to his father. The widow was given an allowance for bringing up the youngest child till four years old (3 years and 7 months, which fixes Amy's birth in Oct. 1760), and the next youngest child but one (1 year and 2 months) which fixes Leavit's birth in May 1758. The Court ordered the estate distributed to the widow and six children. The children are described in the distribution as eldest child Jemima, second child Mary, eldest son Isaac, second son Joseph, third son Leavit, and third "dafter" Ame.

On 29 Aug. 1803, Samuel Leavitt of Wallingford "for love to my two Nephews Viz. Joseph Parde of East Haven and Leavitt Parde of Plymouth" conveyed to them 55 acres in Meriden.

She is called "Mary" in the records of her birth, marriage, and death, as well as in her husband's probate and in a conveyance given in 1757 by Isaac Pardy and Mary his wife to land in Branford inherited from estate of "honored father David Leavit late of Branford."

The Conn. Archives show that he claimed losses sustained during the British Raid in the Revolutionary War. He lived at Morris Cove on the old Gregson farm.

In 1805, Abijah, Chandler, and Abraham Pardee, Daniel Austin and Sally his wife, Eunecy and Timothy Thompson, all of East Haven, and Timothy and Polly Johnson of Branford, conveyed to Elizabeth and Lovicey Pardee land in East Haven.

Jacob, in his will drawn 5 July 1806, speaks of "labouring under the infirmities of age," and directs, "my Body I desire may be decently buried as near as conveniently to my late dear Wife dec'd." To three sons, "Abiger," Chandler, and Abram, all my lands to be equally divided, except as noted hereafter. To five daughters, Sarah, Mary, Eunecey, Elizabeth, and Loisa, $76 each. 22. JAMES⁴ PARDEE (Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, 27 Dec. 1729, died at New Paltz, N. Y., in 1805; married at New Fairfield, 5 Feb. 1756, ANN WHEELER, daughter of Samuel and Abigail Wheeler, of New Fairfield.

James spent his early married life in New Fairfield. In 1773 he and his wife entered into an agreement for the distribution of her father's estate, the other parties to the agreement being her mother, Abigail Wheeler, and her brothers, Jedediah, Enoch and Samuel. In 1774 he served on the School Committee of New Fairfield. With several others he purchased in 1775 land "at Still River Neck in the Parish of Newbury,* on the west side of Ousatonic River," and appears to have resided for a short time in that section of New Milford.

He removed to New Paltz, Ulster County, N. Y., where he was a tenant farmer. John Leake of the Hermitage in New York City, in his will dated 7 May 1791, bequeathed "the farm in New Paltz, now in the tenure and occupation of James Pardee and his sons."

EBENEZER⁴ PARDEE (Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, about 1732, died in 1776 from wounds received at the battle of White Plains, 28 Oct. 1776; married ANNA RICHARDS, born at Hartford, 19 Feb. 1740, died at Alexander, N. Y., daughter of Jedediah and Amy (Thrall) Richards; she married second, Capt. Dupuy.

* Later, the town of Brookfield.

† The destruction of the town records of New Fairfield has made it difficult to obtain complete records of this family, and no record of James's estate has been found in the Surrogate's Court of Ulster County. His grandnephew Samuel H. Pardee in 1852 made a written record, in which he attributed the above seven children to James. He probably had no other surviving sons, though more daughters are possible. A great-granddaughter of his son James had heard of Lemuel and Eli, but not of Enoch. The family of James is described in the Census of 1790 as 2 males over 16 [himself and son Enoch, since James, Jr., and Lemuel were separately listed], a male under 16 [Eli] and 4 females [his wife and presumably 3 unmarried daughters]. In the Census of 1800 his family is described as 1 male and 1 female over 45 [himself and wife], 1 male and 1 female between 26 and 45 [probably Enoch and his wife, since James, Jr., Lemuel, and Eli were separately listed], 1 male and 1 female between 16 and 26 [a married daughter and her husband?], and 1 male and 1 female under 10 [presumably grandchildren].

‡ Aged 16.

Ebenezer was a soldier in the French and Indian War. He served from 10 Sept. to 6 Dec. 1755 under Capt. Thomas Hobby, in the 8th Co., 4th Regt.; from 7 to 23 Aug. 1757 he served in the Co. of Capt. John Hitchcock of New Milford, which rode to the relief of Fort William Henry; and he is possibly the Ebenezer who served from 17 Mar. to 4 Dec. 1762 under Capt. Amos Hitchcock of New Haven, in the 6th Co., 2d Regt.*

He settled early in Norfolk, where he was a legal voter at the first town meeting, 17 Dec. 1758. The War of the Revolution breaking out, he enlisted and lost his life. Administration on his estate was granted, 19 Nov. 1776, to Gideon Lawrence of Canaan, a creditor. The estate was inventoried at slightly under £50, the house and land being valued at £28.2.

26. ENOS⁴ PARDEE (Enos,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at (West Haven?), 12 Sept. 1720, died in or before 1792‡; married, 7 May 1752, HANNAH (PUNCHARD) BEECHER, born at New Haven, 2 Oct. 1711, died ———, daughter of William and Hannah (Brown) Punchard, and widow of Hezekiah Beecher.

Hannah, who apparently died before her second husband, had a single child by her Beecher marriage, a daughter Hannah who died young; her only Pardee child was likewise named Hannah.

Enos was an original member of the Second Church at New Haven in 1759. His wife separated from him, and in 1775 the Connecticut Assembly granted her the exclusive use of her own estate.

Administration on the estate of Enos Pardee of New Haven was granted to Timothy Sperry of Bristol, husband of "the only child of said deceased," on 18 May 1792. The estate was insolvent, and after payment of charges and funeral expenses (the latter amounting to 15 shillings), nothing remained.

He resided in Hamden, Conn. Administration on his estate was granted, 13 Feb. 1802, to Austin Goodyear in right of his wife Susannah, daughter of the deceased. The inventory showed an estate of £1656.1.7 $\frac{1}{4}$. The real estate included a house (£18), half a house (£28.10), a barn (£12), 48 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres in homelot (£728.1.2 $\frac{3}{4}$), 8 acres 24 rods in the barn lot (£122.5), 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ acres north of the bridge, east side of the river (£114.17.2 $\frac{3}{4}$), 19 $\frac{3}{4}$ acres where Joel's house stands, and other parcels of land. The estate was distributed to the heirs of Joseph Pardee deceased, to Joel Pardee, and to Susannah Goodyear.

Nathaniel saw considerable active service in the French and Indian War, in which he lost his life. He served from 7 Apr. to 28 Sept. 1756 under Capt. Israel Woodward in the 6th Co., 2d Regt.; from 3 Apr. to 16 Nov. 1758 under Capt. Eldad Lewis of Southington, in the 7th Co., 2d Regt.; from 27 Apr. to 22 Dec. 1759 under Capt. Joel Clark of Southington, in the 4th Co., 2d Regt.; and his last enlistment was under Capt. Lewis again, for the Campaign of 1760, in the 7th Co., 2d Regt.†

Nathaniel's heirs received a small property in New Haven in the

* For whom, see The Munson Record, p. 634, or the Goodyear Genealogy.

† His name, which at prior enlistments was correctly given, is printed as "Nathn Pardil" at his last enlistment in 1760. The record of his death in hospital the same year states that his officer's name was Lewis, thus proving that he was the individual incorrectly listed as "Nathn Pardil."

distribution of his mother's estate in 1761. On 20 Oct. 1778, Jemima Pardee of Lennox, Berkshire County, Mass., conveyed 4½ acres in Plainfield, "my right being the one moiety or half part set to the heirs of my Father, Mr. Nath. Pardee decd in the distribution of my Grand-mother Mrs. Abigail Pardee decd." On 10 Jan. 1784, Apollos Allen of Greenfield, Hampshire County, Mass., conveyed 2 acres in Plainfield, without stating his interest in the property. It is probable that his wife Deborah was then dead, and that his intent was to convey the interest of their minor child or children.

Children, born at Southington:

- i. JEMIMA,⁵ bapt. 30 May 1756. She chose Samuel Wheaton guardian, 24 Mar. 1769. On 22 Oct. 1778, calling herself of Lennox, Berkshire Co., Mass., she conveyed to James Beckwith, Jr., of Southington, her interest in the estate of Nathaniel Pardee, deceased. Her later history has not been found.
- ii. DEBORAH, b. abt. 1758; m. APOLLOS ALLEN, of Greenfield, Hampshire Co., Mass. On 5 Feb. 1781, they conveyed to James Beckwith, Jr., all their right in 5 acres formerly belonging to Nathaniel Pardy, deceased, with one-third of a dwelling-house thereon, bounded west on land set to the widow Rebeckah Dean, the property described being identical with that conveyed by Jemima in 1778.

29. JOSHUA⁴ PARDEE (Joseph,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Greenwich, Conn., 9 May 1730, died at Salem, N. Y., in Nov. 1808; married at Stamford, Conn., 13 Jan. 1763, ELIZABETH WEBB, born at Stamford, 30 Dec. 1736, died at Salem, N. Y., 3 Nov. 1803, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Starr) Webb, and aunt of Brig.-Gen. Samuel B. Webb, of the Revolutionary War.

He removed from Stamford, Conn., to Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., about 1766. His name appears in New York State Land Bounty Rights, for service in the 4th Regiment, Westchester County Militia (Revolutionary War).

His will, dated in 1807, proved 14 Jan. 1809, gave $50 to son Ebenezer as his birthright, mentions daughters Elizabeth Jones and Jerusha Sherwood, and three sons, Ebenezer, Daniel, and Israel. He owned property across the State line, in Ridgefield, Conn., on which there was a saw mill. His heirs, to divide this property, gave several conveyances early in 1810, their names and residences then being given as Ebenezer Pardee of South Salem, Richard Sherwood and Jerusha his wife of North Salem, Daniel Jones and Elizabeth his wife of Ridgefield, Daniel Pardee of Galway, Saratoga County, and Israel Pardee of South Salem. Amariah Pardee witnessed one of these deeds.

30. NATHAN⁴ PARDEE (Joseph,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Greenwich, Conn., 29 June 1732, died at Charlton, N. Y., 14 Oct. 1811; married SARAH MEAD, born about 1735, died at Charlton, N. Y., 6 Mar. 1807, daughter of Jacob Mead.

The will of Jacob Mead of Greenwich, Conn., dated 7 Sept. 1762, named his daughter Sarah, wife of Nathan Pardee.

Nathan removed from Stamford, Conn., to Salem, Westchester County, N. Y., where he was admitted to the church (at the same time with David Close), 25 May 1766. He removed between 1791 and 1800 to Charlton, Saratoga County, N. Y. His name appears in the 4th Regt., Westchester County (N. Y.) Militia, as serving in the Revolutionary War.

In 1764 Nathan and Sarah Pardee of Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y. conveyed to Ephraim Lockwood of Greenwich land in the East Society of Greenwich, east of the Miamus River, which was set to Sarah Pardee in the distribution of the estate of Jacob Mead, mention being made in the deed of "our sister Hannah Mead" and of Elizabeth wife of Ephraim Lockwood, who was another heir of the Mead estate.

- v. JOSEPH, bapt. 24 Dec. 1769.

* Children i. to iii. baptized together 16 Feb. 1777.

† These are all the children whose baptism was recorded at Salem, and there is nothing to indicate that there were more children. Nathan's family in the Census of 1790 consisted of 2 males over sixteen years, and 1 female. Since his sons Nathaniel, Samuel and John were separately listed, the extra male was probably Nathan Jr., who did not marry until the following year. No record of Joseph has been found except his baptism.

‡ 25 Dec. 1764 by Pension Bureau affidavit, but he was baptized at Salem 26 Feb. 1764.

31. JOHN⁴ PARDEE (Joseph,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Greenwich, Conn., 28 May 1737, died at Cortlandt, Westchester Co., N. Y., 26 Apr. 1808; married at Stamford, Conn., 23 Jan. 1766,* SARAH WEBB, born at Stamford, 23 May 1738, died at Cortlandt, in 1821, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Starr) Webb, and aunt of Brig.-Gen. Samuel B. Webb of the Revolutionary War.

He served as corporal in Capt. Jonathan Whitney's Co., Ninth Regt., Conn. Militia; enlisted 28 Jan. 1777, and served 1 month, 21 days.

In 1768 he purchased from Edward Thorpe 50 acres at Dead Plains, Stamford, Conn., with a house, barn, and fruit trees, and sold this property to David Lockwood, 3d, in 1801, being then still resident in Stamford.

He settled in Cortlandt, Westchester Co., N. Y., and the entry of his death in the Yorktown Presbyterian church records states that he was aged 70 years, 10 months, 17 days, which, allowing for the change in the calendar, agrees with his date of birth.

Administration on his estate was granted, 3 Nov. 1808, to his widow Sarah and son John.† Administration on the estate of Sarah Pardee was granted, 16 May 1821, to her daughter Elizabeth D. Pardee. In 1813, Samuel Higgins and Elizabeth his wife conveyed to Sarah Pardee, widow, and Elizabeth D. Pardee, two tracts of land in Cortlandt on the road from Yorktown Meeting House to Peekskill landing, with buildings thereon.

His son Ezra told of his service in the army during the Revolutionary War. He was with the troops who laid the chain across the Hudson River, and fired down on the British boats from their position on the Bluff. His family was then living in Connecticut and British troops annoyed them while he was away on military duty. The family afterwards settled near Peekskill, N. Y., the house being close to Crumb Pond, and Ezra's children remembered visiting Ezra's sister Sarah there. A granddaughter of Ezra has a silver spoon marked "S. W." which came from the estate of Sarah⁵ and was probably one of a set belonging to the latter's mother Sarah Webb.

† A paper in the Estate of John Pardee begins: "We, Sarah Pardee, Isaac Purdy, and Richard Curry, of Cortlandt Town, and John Pardee of Yorktown, all of Westchester Co., for $4000." etc. Possibly Purdy and Curry were husbands of two of the daughters.

He served in the French and Indian War, as corporal in the Co. of Capt. Samuel Dunham of Sharon in the Campaign of 1757, his brother John being a private in the same company; he enlisted as sergeant in the Co. of Capt. Samuel Elmore of Sharon (9th Co., 4th Regt.), 13 Apr. 1758, his brother George being a private in the same company. Capt. Elmore was his brother-in-law.

He served as representative for Sharon in the Conn. Assembly, May 1769. In May 1772 he was commissioned Ensign of the train band in northern Sharon. He again served as representative for Sharon from May 1773 to May 1774 and from Apr. 1775 to July 1775. In Oct. 1774 he was commissioned Lieutenant of the Second Company in Sharon. He served as Lieutenant in Lt. Col. Samuel Canfield's Regt., Conn. Militia, at West Point in 1781. He was a member of the State Legislature in 1776, 1777, 1778, and 1780. He was listed at Sharon in the Census of 1790, his family consisting of 2 males over 16, 1 male under 16, and 2 females, the son Jonathan being separately listed. In 1800 he is listed as living alone, apparently next door to Jonathan.

Administration on his estate was granted to his son Jonathan; no further probate record.

37. GEORGE⁴ PARDEE (John,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Norwalk, Conn., ———, died at Sharon after 1802; married MARY CALKIN, daughter of Stephen† and Mary (Curtis) Calkin.

He enlisted, 13 Apr. 1758, as a soldier in the French and Indian War, in the 9th Co., 4th Regt., which was commanded by his brother-in-law Capt. Samuel Elmore; his brother James was a sergeant in the same company.

* Record not complete. Jonathan is the only surviving child of whom record evidence has been found. The gravestone of Thomas states that he was born in Sharon, and conjecturally he must be placed as son either of James (36) or George (37).

† Stephen Calkin came from Lebanon to Sharon, where the section known as Calkinstown was named for him.

In 1769 George with his brothers James and Moses partitioned land which fell to them from the estate of their father John. With his wife Mary he conveyed to James Calkin land inherited from Stephen Calkin. In 1802, his name appears with that of Stephen Pardee as witnesses to a deed given by Joseph H. Pardee (son of his brother Moses). By family tradition in the Patchen family, he was found dead in bed.

He was listed in Sharon in the Census of 1790, the family consisting of 2 males over 16 years old (probably himself and son Stephen), and 1 female. In 1800 only he and 1 female were listed.

The estate of Moses was distributed in 1797 to the widow Martha, eldest son Moses, and other children, Sarah Swift, Lydia Van Duzen, Joseph Pardee, Ruth, and Elizabeth and Etheran Pardee; the last two chose their mother for guardian. On 7 June 1833, the dower of the widow Martha was distributed to Sarah Swift, Moses Pardee, Lydia Van Duzen, Joseph H. Pardee, Ethan Pardee, Elizabeth, and to Moses and Frederick Palmer, heirs of Ruth. In 1834 Daniel Van Dusen of New York City quitclaimed land "of my grandfather Moses Pardee which until the death of his widow was part of her dower and has been distributed since her decease to me in common with Sarah Bates, Frederick and Moses Palmer, and the heirs of Lihu Swift deceased, and the heirs of Moses Pardee Junior deceased, and the widow of Jesse Swift." The family of Moses was listed in Sharon in the Census of 1790 as 1 male over 16, 2 males under 16, and 3 females. Martha was listed in 1800 as aged over 45, with 2 males between 16 and 26, and 1 female 10 to 16.

39. DAVID⁴ PARDEE (Daniel,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at West Haven, Conn., 17 May 1741, died at Cromwell, Conn., 31 May 1821; married at Southington, 1 Jan. 1761, PHEBE WOODRUFF, baptized at Southington, 12 July 1741, died at Cromwell, Conn., 30 Nov. 1822, daughter of Dea. and Capt. Samuel and Esther (Bird) Woodruff.

David settled in Southington, where his mother had relatives living, and purchased real estate there in 1762. He was a soldier both in the French and Indian War and in the Revolution. In the former, he served from 9 Apr. to 16 Nov. 1758, under Capt. Eldad Lewis of Southington, in the 7th Co., 2d Regt.; from 1 Apr. to 23 Nov. 1760, under Capt. Thomas Wilmot of New Haven, in the 1st Co., 3d Regt.; and from 15 Mar. to 3 Dec. 1762 under Capt. Lewis again, in the 7th Co., 2d Regt. He was with Putnam when waylaid by the French and Indians between Fort Anne and Fort Edward.

He served as Sergeant in Capt. Asa Bray's Co., Col. Noadiah Hooker's Militia Regt., from 3 Apr. to 15 May 1777, in the Revolutionary War. Connecticut Archives show that he was serving as Sergeant at Fishkill in October, 1777.

40. JONATHAN⁴ PARDEE (Daniel,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at West Haven, Conn., 8 May 1744, died at Naugatuck, Conn., about 1789; married TRYPHENA BEECHER, born at West Haven, 5 Feb. 1745, died ———, daughter of Samuel and Mary (Thomas) Beecher.

Jonathan removed to Waterbury, living in the section called Salem, now the town of Naugatuck. He first bought land there, of Vincent Benham, on 5 Mar. 1770, being then called "of New Haven," and doubtless settled there shortly after.

He enlisted 21 May 1777 for three years as a private in Capt. David Smith's Co. (of Waterbury) in the 8th Regt., Conn. Line, and was discharged 18 Nov. 1778. His family received supplies from the town of Waterbury while he was in service. He went into the field at Camp Peekskill, Spring of 1777, wintered at Valley Forge, and was present at the battle of Monmouth.

Administration on his estate was granted, 3 Aug. 1789, to Elijah Porter and Triphene Pardee; estate insolvent.

Her son Isaac was baptized 8 Oct. 1791; and her children Phibe, Tryphena, Lucy, Esther, and Ada, were baptized 20 Oct. 1791. She was dismissed, but on what date, or to what place, is not stated.

† Mille Pardee had a child which died in 1797; Mille "of Waterbury" bought land in 1815 and sold it in 1826; Millicent married at Waterbury, 13 July 1828, Theophilus Baldwin of Middlebury, as his third wife.

41. STEPHEN⁴ PARDEE (Daniel,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at West Haven, Conn., 4 July 1747, lost at sea in August 1796; married LOIS JOHNSON, born at West Haven, about 1749, died at New Haven, 25 Sept. 1813, daughter of Stephen, Jr., and Sybil (Johnson) Johnson.‡

He enlisted in the Revolutionary War, 13 Jan. 1777, in the company of Lt. Joel Bradley. In 1790, his residence was Hamden, but in 1796 he called himself of New Haven, conveying property to Jesse Pardee. He was one of the founders of the Episcopal Church in Hamden, the first meeting being held at his house, 8 Apr. 1790.

Administration on the estate of Stephen Pardee of New Haven was granted, 3 Apr. 1797, to his widow Lois, with Wm. Scott as surety. The inventory totaled £50.9.2, and contained no real estate. The estate was insolvent, the chief creditors being Esther Hubbard, Abigail Hitchcock, Timothy Bassett, Joshua Porter, Amasa Cop of Goshen, and Jeremiah Atwater.

After Stephen's death, his widow lived with her children in New Haven. She was baptized (aged 58) at Trinity Church, 22 Sept. 1807, and her death in September 1813 (aged 64) is noted in the "Columbian Register," a contemporary newspaper.

* Eight children, for whom see Leavenworth Genealogy, p. 166.

† Huntley is said to have walked from Massachusetts into New York State, worked for a Mr. Pardee there, married his sister, and moved to Pierpont, Ashtabula Co., Ohio. They are said to have had seven children, among whom were Harry and Alvin.

‡ In 1790, Stephen Johnson conveyed property to his granddaughter Lois the wife of Stephen Pardee of Hamden. The date of her birth implies that she must have been daughter of one of the elder children of Stephen Johnson, Sr., and by a process of elimination we deduce that she was a child of Stephen, Jr., whose heirs (unnamed) are referred to in the probate of the estate of his father Stephen, Sr. Sybil, the mother of Lois, was daughter of Abraham Johnson and married for her second husband Josiah Pardee (13).

In the French and Indian War, he served from 22 May to 2 Oct. 1758 as drummer in the 6th Co., 2d Regt., under Capt. Amos Hitchcock of New Haven.

He settled in Milford, Conn. Administration on his estate was granted, 21 Mar. 1803, to his widow Rebecca. The inventory totaled $3981.92. The house, barn, and other buildings were appraised at $450; the homelot, 55 acres of upland, at $2200; 29 acres in West Haven bought of Benham, at $464.

* The parentage of Lois and Philinda, who (as well as Jesse) were all married at the First Church, New Haven, is hypothetical. Parsons Gorham mortgaged real estate on Church street to Jesse Pardee in 1811.

† On 20 Nov. 1798, aged 16, he chose his brother Jesse for guardian. No further record; quite likely he was ancestor of the Delaware Pardees (see Appendix I).

43. MOSES⁴ PARDEE (Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at West Haven, Conn., 16 July 1741, died there in November 1790; married MARY THOMPSON, who died after 1800, daughter of Joseph and Hannah (Smith) Thompson, of West Haven.

In 1770, Moses and Mary his wife conveyed property in West Haven to "our brother Jeduthan Thompson."

Administration on the estate of Moses Pardee was granted, 18 Mar. 1793, at the request of his widow, to his brother Josiah Pardee of Milford. The estate was represented to be insolvent. The widow's dower right consisted of one old house (£4.10), one old barn (£5.10), land in the fresh meadows (£0.12), and £1.3.8 in money, being the balance from sale of the real estate after payment of creditors. Slightly before the appointment of an administrator, in March 1793, David Lambert of Milford brought suit, claiming that on 21 Aug. 1790 Moses Pardee had mortgaged to him one undivided half of a lot with a dwelling-house in New Haven at a place called "Dogman," and that the only heirs-at-law of Moses were Silas, Lois, Huldah, and Sibel Pardee, all of New Haven, and Hannah the wife of Nathan Ovit, and Molly Pardee, of Milford, and that Huldah, Sybil and Molly were minors under 21 years.

On 29 Apr. 1795, Mary Pardee and Mabel Johnson sold land in Hamden which descended to them from their father Joseph Thomson, deceased. In 1800 Mary was living in Milford, where she had married daughters.

He still appears on the tax list of Southbury parish in 1788, and between 1791 and 1807 on the list of Middlebury parish. In 1806 he removed to Herkimer County, N. Y., carrying all his household goods, much of the way through dense forest. He placed $3000 in gold on a quilt in the bottom of the wagon, and placed a cauldron kettle over it. A great-granddaughter has seen this very kettle used in times of soap-making and butchering. When he died, 80 of his descendants, all living within a radius of 10 miles, followed him to the grave.

* The birth and death records of Eliphalet and his wife are entered in the family Bibles of Josiah and Lucretia; Lucretia's Bible gives the death of her brother Josiah, while Josiah's Bible gives the death of his sisters Lucretia and Betsey Towns. Josiah's granddaughter supposes that Betsey was unmarried, and Towns her middle name. The Southbury records contain the births of only the three youngest children; Lucena is called "5th daughter," Merrit "4th son," and Marvin "5th son," showing that there were five children of each sex. Grandchildren of Josiah and Marvin agree as to the names of the five sons. A granddaughter of Marvin (Mrs. Woodin) knows of four daughters: Betsey who m. Mr. Townsend, Lucretia who m. Mr. Fuller, Sallie who m. Mr. Stoddard, and Esther who died in infancy. This is the only Esther who is available for the wife of Theophilus Baldwin of Middlebury, and since this Pardee family lived in the Middlebury section of Southbury, the identification seems probable.

He was resident in "Courtland Manor," Westchester Co., N. Y., in 1783, but returned to Orange. The previous year he had purchased from Benjamin Hine of Middlebury a house and 7½ acres in Orange, which had formerly been the property of Amos Clark, whose widow had married Hine. After his return from Cortlandt, he purchased some adjacent property, thus establishing the "Pardee Farm" which is still (1925) in possession of a descendant.

His will, dated 31 July 1812, proved 29 Mar. 1825, begins "I resign my soul with the utmost humility into the hands of Almighty God my Creator humbly hoping for a blessed immortality through the merits and mediation of my blessed Saviour and Redeemer." He gave to daughters Abigail Bristol and Sybil Welch land at Turkey Hill, and to son Joseph all the rest of his property "on condition he maintain my beloved wife honourably during her natural life." The inventory showed personal estate valued at $76.17, and realty at $388, the latter including one old house and half the barn ($40), Fenn lot, 2½ acres ($100), Peck lot, 5 acres ($80), swamp lot, 7 acres ($70), and ½ of 14 acres undivided with Capt. Dec. 1818, contains a death notice of Capt. Samuel Pardee of New Haven.

Deeds make it almost certain that Samuel L. and Jesse S. were sons of Samuel. A mortgage deed given in 1834 by Jesse Seymour Pardee indicates that he was son of Samuel, the mortgage covering "my undivided right to all land and buildings which fell to me in the estate of Samuel Pardee, deceased," and also the "new dwelling house lately erected by me." In 1821 Jesse Seymour Pardee received from John Pardee (brother of Samuel) a conveyance of two pieces of land at "Dogburn" [?Dogman], bounded on land of the heirs of Joel Pardee and the heirs of Samuel Pardee deceased. In 1846 Jesse S. Pardee conveyed property in Orange bounded by land of Samuel L. Pardee and the heirs of Joel Pardee. In 1849 Jesse S. Pardee conveyed to Samuel L. Pardee the dwelling house in "Dogburn" where the latter then resided.

Probable children:

- 125. i. SAMUEL LEWIS, b. abt. 1791.
- 126. ii. JESSE SEYMOUR, b. ———.

47. JOEL⁴ PARDEE (Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at West Haven, Conn., about 1766, died, presumably at West Haven, about 1811; married MARY ———, born about 1776, died at New Haven, 26 July 1845.*

In 1804, Samuel Pardee of New Haven and John Pardee of Milford conveyed to their brother Joel Pardee of New Haven land at Dogman in West Haven. Since West Haven was a parish in New Haven in 1804, and in Orange at the time of his wife's death, it is probable that the family resided continuously in West Haven, despite the differences in the name of the township. The deaths of two infants are recorded in the West Haven mortality list. Perhaps, like his brother Samuel, he was a seaman. No record of his death or of his estate has been found, but on 9 Sept. 1811 Henry Daggett and Isaac Mills of New Haven, Administrators of the estate of Joel Pardee of New Haven, deceased, sold to Henry Wolcott a lot in Dogman district containing about half an acre, the Derby Turnpike running through the same. This real estate was sold by order of the Judge of Probate, yet no reference to it is found in the Probate records.† Mary Pardee of New Haven, on 5 July 1813, sold to Caleb Alling land in New Haven in the south-west corner of "Woodfield," bounded south by the line between Woodfield and Greenfield and the land of Edward Alling, north and east on land of Isaac Johnson, being part of the estate of Joel Pardee, late deceased.

* Aged 69, by town record; 25 July 1845, aged 70, by gravestone.

† This conveyance may have reference to Joel (82), who also died about 1811; but that Joel was of Hamden, while it was this Joel's branch of the family which had property in the Dogman section.

In June 1821 his widow joined the Second Church in New Haven. She was perhaps the Widow Mary Pardee of New Haven who purchased a house on Broadway in 1822, though Samuel (46) also had a widow Mary then living. She is buried in Grove Street Cemetery in the lot of her son-in-law, Jason Warner.

The will of Mary Pardee of Orange, dated 9 Sept. 1843, proved 28 Aug. 1845, bequeathed to granddaughter Julia Ann Stevenson her best bed, bolster, and pillow. To granddaughter Mary Ann Beardsley her second best bed, etc. To granddaughter Eliza Jane Warner, her gold beads. Residue equally to daughter Mary Ann Beardsley, daughter Sarah Olivia Stevenson, the children of deceased daughter Eliza Jane Warner, and the children of deceased son Leverett Pardee. Her realty was inventoried at $461.87, and included the east wood lot in "Greenfield," the west sprout lot, the north sprout lot, the pond lot, and Dogman land. Personalty came to $449.86. Distribution was made to Henry M. Pardee (who received a lot bounded by land of Samuel L. Pardee and J. S. Pardee, evidently identical with the "Greenfield" lot), to Sally O. wife of James Stevenson, to the heirs of Eliza J. Warner, and to Mary A. wife of Samuel Beardsley.

It is probable that Joel's wife Mary had a sister Julia (wife of Eldad Ball of Westville), who was born at Orange in 1787 and died at Westville 24 Oct. 1854. This Julia, by will dated Oct. 1850, left her property to her husband, to Elizabeth Ann Beardsley, and to Julia Ann Stevenson.

On 10 June 1820, Mary Pardy of New Haven for $53.35 conveyed to Wyllys Pardee of New Haven, 4 acres in "Westfield," bounded chiefly by land belonging to Levi, Chauncey, Jesse, and Abner Alling. It is possible that this was a conveyance from the widow of Joel to a son Willis, but it is also possible that it was from the widow of Moses (No. 43) to her grandson Willis. Samuel (No. 46) also had a widow Mary living at this time. Be that as it may, the U. S. Census shows that Joel had three young sons living in 1800, of whom but one is accounted for. It is probable that one of the others was Chester, who is buried in Orange beside close relatives of Joel; the fact that he died before his (supposed) mother Mary explains the omission of his name in her will.

The third son living in 1800 is believed to have been Willis H. Pardee, later of South Carolina, who is known to have resided in

New Haven when he married his first wife in 1819. The deed quoted above helps to bear out this belief. The grandchildren of Willis state that relations between him and his northern kin were broken off, and no record of his affiliations was kept. The omission of his name in Mary's will may signify that she had disinherited him.

48. DANIEL⁴ PARDEE (Samuel,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Woodbridge, Conn., about 1780.

He chose his uncle Daniel Smith guardian in 1796, and in 1802 was living in Branford, probably in the section which is now North Branford where his mother's family, the Smiths, resided. No further record has been found, but it is believed that like his brother Isaac he removed to Ohio and had a family.

Probable child, born in Connecticut:

- 129. i. DANIEL S.,⁵ b. in 1807.

49. ISAAC⁴ PARDEE (Samuel,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Woodbridge, Conn., probably 15 June 1782,[†] died in Berrien Co., Mich., 31 Aug. 1850; married at New Haven, Conn., about 1815, LUCY (DICKERMAN) HOOKER, born at New Haven, Conn., 20 May 1782, died at Delaware, Ohio, 4 Sept. 1850, daughter of Isaac and Hannah (Ball) Dickerman and widow of John Hooker.

His wife married, 8 Mar. 1802, Capt. John Hooker and, while Mrs. Hooker, joined the First Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn.,

* Children ii. and iv. are placed here hypothetically.

[†] His age as stated in the probate record would place his birth in 1782. Family records state his birth as 15 June 1784, and that of his wife as 20 May 1784. Since his wife is known to have been born 20 May 1782, we are justified in setting Isaac's birth back to that year.

27 Aug. 1809; after her marriage to Mr. Pardee, she was dismissed to the First Methodist Church in September 1817.

He removed from New Haven to New York State, and from there to Bloomfield, Knox County, Ohio. The U. S. Census of 1830 lists him in Bloomfield (aged 40 to 50), with a female of like age, 2 males (1 under 5, the other 10 to 15), and 2 females (one 5 to 10, the other 10 to 15) in his family. He appears as "Truman" Pardee in the Census of 1840 in Bloomfield, but the ages of the children show that Isaac is intended. In 1844, he removed to Buchanan, Berrien County, Mich., where he is listed in the Census of 1850 (aged 68) with Lucy Pardee (aged 68) and Elias (aged 23).

R., first as watchman, later as station and express agent. In 1861 he resigned, and bought a farm. He later developed a summer resort at Sister Lakes.

50. EBENEZER⁴ PARDEE (Samuel,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Woodbridge, Conn., about July 1789.

He chose Hezekiah Baldwin for his guardian in 1803 and was still living in Woodbridge in 1811, after which date no record of him has been found. He presumably moved West like his brothers.

There is no probate record of the estate of Moses, but on 10 Oct. 1801 William Pardey of New Haven was chosen guardian by Moses (aged about 15 years), son of Moses Pardey, deceased, a minor having no property.

He claimed losses sustained during the British Raid (Connecticut Archives). He served in the artillery in the defense of New Haven at the time of Tryon's Invasion, 1779. A family record states that he was killed by the ramrod in the premature discharge of a cannon on

She married second, 2 Sept. 1790, Elkanah Smith of Southington.

Noah was made freeman of Southington in 1779. He served, the same year, in Capt. Daniel Sloper's Co., 15th Regt. (Col. Hooker), and the following year in the same regiment. He returned to East Haven.

Administration on the estate of Noah Pardy of East Haven was granted at the request of the widow to Jacob Bradley, 21 May 1787. The inventory, totaling £205.15.3, included land at the vineyard (£15), about 20 acres in Ferry field under Incumbrance (£150), and an acre in Southington (£5). The widow was given an allowance for bringing up the youngest child (for 2½ years) till 4 years old. Administration on David's estate was granted, 10 Feb. 1844, to Erastus Nichols and Heman Pardee. The Court ordered the sale of the real estate, which was purchased by Erastus Nichols for $904.31, that being the amount by which debts exceeded the personal estate.

The original ante-nuptial agreement between David Pardee and his second wife is still in possession of a descendant, and a copy follows:

61. ABIJAH⁵ PARDEE (Jacob,⁴ George,³ George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, about Jan. 1753, died there 10 Sept. 1832; married at East Haven, 9 Dec. 1777, ROSANNA MOULTHROP, born at East Haven, Mar. 1761, died there 27 Sept. 1844, daughter of John and Abigail (Holt) Moulthrop.

He lived just around the bend of Morris Cove, East Haven, and his house was the headquarters of the British General at the time of Tryon's Invasion, 5 July 1779. The house was burned by the British when they left; the new house which was soon after built on the site is still standing (1925). It was sold in 1835.

Abijah served in Capt. Phineas Bradley's Artillery Co. from 27 Apr. 1780 to 1 Jan. 1781; and in Capt. Van Deursen's Co. of Conn. State Guards (stationed at New Haven) from 20 Feb. to 1 Aug. 1781.

He was injured by a ball from the British hitting his arm while he was on guard at the Fort. One day a British skirmisher rode into the Pardee kitchen; Mrs. Pardee prodded both man and beast with the long-handled fire shovel until he retreated without dismounting.

The records of the Pension Bureau contain the application of his Administration on Abijah's estate was granted, 1 Nov. 1832, to Eleazer Hemingway. The inventory showed personalty of \$61; the realty consisted of $\frac{1}{2}$ the house, barn, and home lot undivided with Abijah Pardee, Jr. (\$400), and one half of Slip No. 47 in the Meeting House (\$100). In April 1833, Bela Farnham was appointed administrator in place of Eleazer Hemingway, deceased. One-third of the real estate was set to the widow as dower. The debts amounted to \$361.91; there was no distribution. During his lifetime, he had given much of his real estate to his sons.

She married second, at East Haven, 16 Feb. 1789, Eli Gilbert of Woodbridge and Brookfield.

Jacob enlisted in the 6th Co. (Capt. William Douglas of Northford), First Continentals, 1775, and was discharged 28 Nov. 1775. He was a member of Capt. Jacob Brockett's Co., Conn. Militia, in 1776. On 21 Oct. 1779, he was taken prisoner, and died during the following winter in the prison ship.

63. CAPT. CHANDLER⁵ PARDEE (Jacob,⁴ George,³ George,² *George*¹), baptized at East Haven, 9 Dec. 1759, died there 9* Mar. 1829; married first, at East Haven, 4 Feb. 1790, LYDIA (FIELDS) HOTCHKISS, born at East Haven, about 1757, died there 24 May 1812, daughter of Capt. Ezra and Sarah (Chidsey) Fields, widow of Isaac Hotchkiss;† married second, 7 Mar. 1813, MARY (WALKER) FROST, born at East Haven, 29 Jan. 1770, died there 2 Aug. 1842, daughter of James and Abigail Walker, divorced wife of Allen Frost.‡

Chandler served in Capt. Jacob Brockett's Co. of Conn. Militia, 1776; he enlisted in Capt. Phineas Bradley's Artillery Co., 13 Mar. 1779, was wounded during Tryon's Invasion of New Haven, 5 July 1779, and was discharged 12 Mar. 1780; he reenlisted and served in the same company from 27 Apr. 1780 to 1 Jan. 1781. He is said to have been captured and confined for a time in the Old Sugar House prison. In 1813 he was a pensioner, receiving $52.50 annually.

His will, dated 6 Mar. 1827, proved 14 Mar. 1829, named his wife Mary, referring to her property before their marriage, and daughter Eunice Cowles.

The records of the Pension Bureau show that he served as a private in Col. Sabin's Militia, and received an invalid pension for disability, having been wounded in the small of the back by a musket-ball. This wound is doubtless the one he received while attempting to repel Tryon's invasion. It is related that he was wearing dress shoes with silver buckles when the alarm was given, and did not stop to change them. While retiring with others before the superior British forces, one of these shoes was lost off in a swampy field. He attempted to retrieve it and was shot in the back, the bullet passing through to his breast. The British left him, supposing that he was mortally wounded, but he was found by friends and the bullet extracted. He recovered and reenlisted.

He served as a private in 1776 in Capt. Gad Stanley's Co., his brother Samuel being Sergeant in the same company; in the summer of 1778, he was Corporal in Capt. David Beebe's Co., Col. Y., camped on Long Island, then proceeded to Albany, Fort George, Ticonderoga, and Crown Point; after his first term of enlistment (7 months) expired, he immediately reenlisted under the same officers, and later under Capt. Fisk and Capt. Gad Stanley, and was with the troops at New York, Harlem, White Plains and Turtle Bay. His enlistments were numerous and for short terms, and were attested by various friends. He personally appeared, 13 Aug. 1832, before the Judge of Probate, District of Granby, Conn., to make affidavit, being then 76 years of age. He received a pension of $56.67 per annum, later increased to $76.67. He stated that he was born in New Haven, resided in Southington at date of first enlistment, and in Canaan after 1777.

He was baptized at Trinity Church, New Haven, 11 Aug. 1779. Shortly thereafter, he removed to Litchfield, where his children were born. His first purchase of land in Litchfield is dated 29 Mar. 1782, and in 1789 he acquired the house and homelot of Ezra Plumb, Jr., deceased, by purchase from the heirs. He afterward settled in Hart-

James was baptized at Trinity Church, New Haven, 11 Aug. 1779, and his wife was baptized there, 1 Apr. 1781. He removed to Madison, Conn., then a part of Guilford, in 1790; in conveying property at East Haven in 1797, he called himself "of Guilford." In 1800 he was appointed vestryman of the Union Protestant Episcopal Church, known as the "North Bristol Church," in Madison. He was a farmer, and lived in North Madison.

He is probably the James of New Haven referred to in Connecticut Archives as a private in the War, 1775 (but see No. 55).

He was ordained Deacon by Bishop Bass of Massachusetts in 1795, and Priest by Bishop Jarvis of Connecticut in Middletown 20 Jan. 1799. After serving as missionary in Pawlet and Wells, Vt., he was from 1802 to 1818 rector of St. Luke's Church, Lanesborough, Mass. Thence he removed into the diocese of New York, and after nearly 25 years of faithful labor as a missionary in the central and northern portions of that State, he retired and spent his old age with his two daughters, one of whom lived in Lanesborough, the other in Caldwell on Lake George.

He was reserved and dignified in manner, amiable in disposition, and upright in character.

In 1819 he was appointed chaplain under Maj. Elijah Phillips, 176th Regt., Infantry, Onondaga Co., N. Y.

He is listed in the Census of 1800 as resident in Poultney, Rutland 70. JAMES⁵ PARDEE (James,⁴ Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born at New Fairfield, 1 Feb. 1757, died at New Paltz, N. Y., 18 Aug. 1810; married at Bedford, N. Y. 3 May 1781, ELIZABETH RAYMOND, born 3 Nov. 1760, died at Olive, N. Y. 21 Dec. 1837.

James removed when a young man, with his father, to New Paltz, Ulster Co., N. Y. It was always understood in the family that he with one of his brothers served in the Revolutionary War and that while in the service he first met Miss Raymond, who became his wife, while stopping for dinner at her father's house in Bedford, Westchester Co., N. Y.* The story is also told that his widow made application for a pension, and that the papers were lost. She thereupon remarked that his discharge papers were of no use to anybody, and destroyed them in the presence of her granddaughter Miss Libbie Coons, at whose mother's home in Olive, N. Y., she lived. The records of the Pension Bureau show that Mrs. Pardee applied for a pension on 29 Aug. 1837, James having served about 2½ months in 1776 and 1777 under Capt. Phineas Beardsley in Col. Joseph P. Cooke's Conn. Regt., and 3 months in 1779 or 1780 in Capt. Benjamin Hicock's Co., Major Starr's Conn. Regt., and for 5 or 6 months in 1782 in Capt. Samuel Crane's Conn. Whale Boat Co. under Major Fitch. These records show that he died 18 Aug. 1810, which is also given as the date of his death in the family Bible. The widow's claim was not allowed, as she failed to furnish proof of 6 months' actual military service as then required by pension laws, the whale boat service not being so considered.

* Another descendant (Miss Irma Gerow) adds the following: "The family traditions state that the father of Elizabeth Raymond was a member of Clan Raymond in Scotland and married a member of the Ruthven family. He ran away with his wife and brought her to the Colonies, where he set up a tavern in Bedford, N. Y. During the Revolutionary War he and his wife went to New York to buy supplies, and left two daughters, a son, and a colored man and woman at home. Early in the evening the family heard thieves stealing their chickens. Elizabeth immediately found a gun which she fired. The thieves proved to be British soldiers, who fled leaving the chickens behind, as the gun-shot brought the American Guard. The next day General Washington and his party, among them James Pardee, Jr., came to the tavern to dinner and ate some of the chickens. Pardee complimented Elizabeth on her bravery and laughingly remarked that he would return after the war and marry her. In the same spirit she replied, 'Come on.' The pot in which the dinner was cooked was about a foot in diameter, and for many years was in the possession of Mary Susan Gerow (Mrs. Samuel West), a granddaughter of James Pardee, Jr."

71. LEMUEL⁵ PARDEE (James,⁴ Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born at New Fairfield, Conn., 11 June 1759, died at ———, Monroe Co., N. Y. about 1841; married first, ——— ———; married second, MARY ———, born about 1779.

He was in many skirmishes in the Revolutionary War, at White Plains, and in the battles of Ridgefield, where he was wounded in the leg, and at Horseneck.

After serving in the Revolutionary War, he removed with his father to New Paltz, Ulster County, N. Y., where he was still living in 1818. Before 1824 he removed to Benton, Yates County (formerly Ontario County), N. Y., where he was still living in 1829.

He first applied for a pension on 14 May 1818, aged 58 years, being then a resident of New Paltz. On 13 Jan. 1824, being then aged 64 years and resident in Yates County, he made affidavit, stating that he enlisted 24 Mar. 1777 and served until 29 Jan. 1780, when he was dis-

He also stated "That he has a family Consisting of wife and five (5) children for whom he has to provide: That the name of his wife is Mary aged 45 years. one boy named Darius aged 14 years. 1 ditto Nathaniel aged 6 years. 1 ditto Lemuel aged 1 year. 1 girl named Ann 12 years old. 1 ditto Phebe 9 years: That his wife is healthy together with the oldest boy and girl and able to contribute something by their labor toward their support, but that Phebe the second girl is unhealthy and that she together with the other children are unable to contribute."

James Morse made affidavit in Livingston County on 9 Jan. 1824 that he knew Lemuel Pardee in the Revolutionary War, serving with him in Capt. Phineas Beardsley's Company in Col. Heman Swift's Regt., General Parson's Brigade, during part of 1777 and the whole of 1778 and 1779, that Lemuel acted the greater part of the time as Orderly Sergeant, and further that he had never seen Lemuel since the Revolution until the present day, when on first sight he immediately recollected him and recognized him to be the same whom he had known in the Revolutionary War. Jonathan Bill gave like testimony, also in Livingston County.

James Knapp made affidavit in Yates County on 12 Jan. 1824 that he knew Lemuel Pardee before the Revolutionary War, Lemuel then residing in New Fairfield, Conn., near the New York State line, and he (Knapp) in Southeast, N. Y., also near the State line; that he saw him frequently during the War at Peekskill and elsewhere; "and has known him and been acquainted with him ever since to the present date"; that Lemuel lost two fingers off his left hand after the war and is unable to support himself and family; and finally, that Lemuel is the same who applied for a pension in 1818 in Ulster County.

Lemuel is also referred to in Connecticut Archives as a private in the army in 1779.

From 1836 to 1841 his pension payments were made to him in Monroe County, and presumably he spent his last years with his son Wheeler near Rochester. The last pension payment was made for the period 4 Mar. to 4 Sept. 1841, indicating that he died that year.

 - iv. DAUGHTER, b. abt. 1790.

* The children of Lemuel⁵ are not certainly known, except the five dependent children mentioned in the pension affidavit, but there is positive evidence that he had older children, and circumstantial evidence to prove the identity of some of them. A granddaughter of James⁶ [son of Lemuel⁵] knows that James⁶ had half-brothers who went west and trace of them lost, and also remembers certain children and grandchildren of James⁵ [brother of Lemuel⁵] as cousins. The first mention of Wheeler⁶ is at New Paltz in the Census of 1810, and he must obviously have been son or grandson of James⁴ Pardee who married Ann Wheeler. He is not mentioned among the sons of James⁴ in the account written by the latter's grand-nephew, nor does the Census of 1790 provide any place for him in the family of James.⁴ Of the latter's sons, only James⁵ and Lemuel⁵ were old enough to be father of Wheeler,⁶ and since the entire family of James⁵ is known from his Bible record, Wheeler⁶ must be placed as a son of Lemuel⁵. The date of birth of Wheeler⁶ is from his gravestone, which states his age at death in years, months, and days; but the Census records, if correct, indicate that he was born not earlier than 1784. A grandson of Wheeler⁶ thinks he was son of Lemuel.⁵ Another grandson, James M.,⁸ states that Wheeler⁶ had a brother James,⁶ after whom he was named.

In the Census of 1790, under New Paltz, the family of Lemuel is stated as 1 male and 1 female over 16, and 3 males under 16. In 1800, his family was 1 male and 1 female over 45 [an overstatement of his age], 3 males and 1 female between 10 and 16, and 2 males under 10. In 1810, under New Paltz, his family was 1 male over 45, 1 female between 26 and 45 [this was his second wife], 2 males between 16 and 26 [Wheeler was separately listed], 1 male between 10 and 16, and 1 male and 1 female under 10. In 1820, he was not listed in the Census at either New Paltz or at Benton. In 1830, he was apparently included in the household of Wheeler Pardee in Greece, N. Y.

In 1830, Wheeler Pardee was listed in Greece, Monroe Co., and in the neighboring town of Chili two Pardys were listed. The family of Eliab Pardy consisted of 1 male aged 30 to 40, 1 male and 1 female 20 to 30, 1 female 10 to 15, 1 male and 1 female 5 to 10, and 1 male and 2 females under 5. The family of Silas Pardy consisted of 1 male and 1 female aged 30 to 40, 72. ENOCH⁵ PARDEE (James,⁴ Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born ———, died probably about or slightly before 1820; married NANCY ———, born in New York, before 1790, died after 1850.

In 1798 he was appointed Ensign under Capt. Benjamin Rossel, Ulster County, N. Y.; in 1803 he was promoted to Lieutenant, and in 1809 to Captain; he resigned in 1812, being succeeded by Peleg Ransom.

Nancy Pardee is listed in the U. S. Census of 1820 as resident in Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y. aged 26 to 45, her family consisting of 1 male aged 18 to 26, 1 male 16 to 18, 1 male and 2 females 10 to 16, and 1 male under 10. These ages are incorrect, and the census-taker probably entered the children under the wrong columns. In 1830 she is listed as aged 40 to 50, with 1 female 20 to 30, 1 male and 1 female 15 to 20, and 1 male 10 to 15. The son John N. is separately listed in 1830, aged 20 to 30, with 1 female 15 to 20, and 1 female under 5.

The son Ezer died in 1835, and his heirs-at-law are stated as his mother Nancy of Poughkeepsie, brother John N. of Patterson, N. J., sisters Sally Maria and Harriet Jane and brother Enoch, all of Poughkeepsie.

In 1850, Nancy is listed in the Census as aged 60, born in New York, her family consisting of John N. (40), a laborer, Sarah M. Pardee

1 female 20 to 30, 2 females 15 to 20, 1 female 10 to 15, and 2 males 5 to 10. Eliab and Silas may not be descendants of George¹ Pardee; if they are, it is difficult to place them except as sons of Lemuel⁵ by his first wife.

The second wife of Lemuel was living in 1824, when he was resident in Benton and applied for a pension. She probably did not survive him, since she does not appear in pension records after his death. It seems likely that she died prior to 1830, for Lemuel was not listed in Benton in the Census of that year, and was apparently then living with Wheeler. The family was probably split after her death, and the children by the second wife may have been taken by relatives. It is significant that Eliab and Silas lived so near Wheeler, and that their households evidently contained more individuals than their own children.

As a child, he lived in New Paltz, N. Y., with his father. Shortly after 1800 he came with the Ely and Culver families in covered wagons and settled in the vicinity of Webster, N. Y. In the Census of 1800, he was listed at New Paltz, aged 16 to 26, with 1 female of like age, and 1 boy under 10.

* These children were certainly children of Nancy. Nancy's husband must have been either this Enoch or else an unknown son of his elder brother Lemuel. The family has been assigned hypothetically to Enoch. Enoch was not listed as head of a family in the Census of 1790 or 1800, apparently living at home with his father. There are indications that he married before 1800, however. In 1810, he is listed at New Paltz, his family consisting of 1 male and 1 female between 26 and 45, 1 female between 16 and 26, and 2 males and 2 females under 10. This shows that he had daughters who either died young or else were by a former wife, since they did not share in the estate of Ezer.⁶ Enoch was not listed in the Census of 1820 at New Paltz, but Nancy was listed at Poughkeepsie.

He served in the Connecticut Militia in the Revolutionary War, and was wounded in the arm; he applied for a pension in 1831, and received $96 a year. The records of the Pension Bureau show that he enlisted at Norfolk, Conn., in 1776, served at Saratoga, Canaan, and Norfolk, and was discharged in 1779.

He removed, 27 Sept. 1804, to Skaneateles, N. Y., where he was a farmer. He was a vestryman of the Presbyterian church. He and his first wife are buried in Lakeview Cemetery. His will, dated 19 Mar. 1834, gave to his wife Patty her dower right; bequeathed legacies to his son Charles L. Pardee, daughter Harriet Bennet, grandson Charles A. Levi, with five of his sisters, settled in Claremont, N. H., where he purchased lands in 1783 for £700 from Benjamin Brooks. He was chosen constable in 1787, selectman in 1788, and highway surveyor in 1789. By family tradition, he left on a journey, it was said to go to New Orleans, and was never heard from again. His brother-in-law, Anson Jones, a graduate of Dartmouth and a lawyer by profession, located in Baton Rouge, La. William Jones was chosen guardian by Levi's daughter Marcia in 1817.

His name occurs frequently on the Claremont records between 1783 and 1795, but in the last-named year he sold his real estate and his name does not appear there again. In the Census of 1800 Levi Pardy, aged over 45, was listed in Rome, Oneida County, N. Y., with 1 female aged 26 to 45, 1 male 5 to 10, and 1 female under 5. He resided in Hamden, Conn. Administration on his estate was granted, 17 Dec. 1795, to Samuel Atwater, with Oliver Blakeslee as surety. 83. EBENEZER⁵ PARDEE (Joshua,⁴ Joseph,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Salem, N. Y., in 1769, died at Spring Arbor, Mich., 9 July 1842; married at South Salem, N. Y., 2 June 1791, HULDAH WHITNEY, baptized at South Salem, N. Y., 9 Dec. 1770, died at Spring Arbor, 3 Sept. 1833, daughter of John and Rebecca (Morehouse) Whitney.

He served in the army during the War of 1812. His early married life was spent in South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y.

In 1830 he was listed in the U. S. Census as resident at Royalton, Niagara County, N. Y., his family consisting of 1 male and 2 females 60 to 70 years old, 1 female 30 to 40, 2 males 10 to 15, and 1 male and 1 female 5 to 10. Probably these were himself and his wife, and his daughter and her children.

In 1831 he went to Michigan with his son Thomas J., and he selected a tract of about 600 acres 2½ miles west of the present village of Spring Arbor, Jackson County, while his son selected a large tract 2 miles south of the village. Having secured legal title to the land, they returned to New York, and the following Spring moved with their families to the new home, traveling by boat to Toledo, and from there by ox team. The party consisted of Ebenezer and his wife, Thomas J., his wife and two children, and the daughter Mrs. DePuy (then a widow) with her three children. The other son, Amaziah, followed them to Spring Arbor within the next five years.

Children, born probably at South Salem, N. Y.:

- ii. REBECCA, b. 11 Feb. 1796; d. in Mar. 1875; m. 7 Feb. 1815, BENJAMIN DEPUY; had issue, three children. Benjamin's mother was a sister of DeWitt Clinton's wife, and he took an active interest in the building of the Erie Canal. Their son James DePuy is said to have been the first to conceive the idea of elevating grain over the drive wheel of a reaping machine. With the assistance of his cousin George H. Pardee, he built a machine that would do this by means of a canvass conveyor. A man stood on a platform and bound the grain into bundles by hand. This idea was later embodied in the Marsh Harvester, and is still used in the modern grain binder. The late Clarence DePuy, of Chicago, owned a chair, a mahogany chest of drawers, and a handsome mirror, that came with the ox teams in the migration to Michigan.

He removed in 1818 from Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., to Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y. The record of his descendants has been collected from family sources by Miss Elizabeth Webster, of Phelps, N. Y.

He was born in Salem, Westchester County, N. Y., but appears to have resided in his youth in Stamford, Conn., probably with relatives there.

He served in the Revolutionary War with Conn. Troops. The muster rolls show a Nathaniel who enlisted in 1777 for 3 years in Capt. Scovil's Co., under Col. Mead, Conn. Line. Nathaniel (from Norwalk) was in Capt. T. Monson's Co., 1779. In 1783, he enlisted for duration of the war in the 1st Co. (Capt. Stephen Betts), 3d Regt. (Col. Samuel B. Webb), Conn. Line.

was then living. Within a few years he and John moved to Fairfield, Herkimer County, N. Y. In the Census of 1800, he was listed at Fairfield, he and 1 female aged 26 to 45, with 3 males 10 to 16, and 2 males and 2 females under 10.

On 4 July 1820, being resident at Fairfield, Herkimer County, aged 61, he applied for a pension, stating that he enlisted in Connecticut 8 May 1777 in Col. John Chandler's Regt., and served later enlistments, including one under Col. Webb, until his final discharge in June 1783 at West Point. He was by occupation a farmer, but not being able to pursue it by reason of infirmities, he and his wife (aged 58), also infirm, and a daughter (aged 20), able to work, reside with "my son William Pardee, having a room to ourselves and boarding with him." In an affidavit made by Matthew Gregory, and by other veterans, Nathaniel's name is spelled Purdy. Samuel Hoyt of Stamford, Conn., swore that he and Nathaniel Purdy both enlisted in Capt. Comstock's Co., Col. Chandler's Regt., 1777. He was granted a pension of $6 a month.

It is probable that Nathaniel or his wife inherited land in Stamford, for his children conveyed property there. On 26 Feb. 1827 Jared Pardee and Dolly his wife, of Hamilton, Madison Co., N. Y., William Pardee and Zeruah his wife, of Fairfield, Herkimer Co., N. Y., Robert Sly and Mary his wife, of Boonville, Oneida Co., N. Y., and Willys Pardee and Harriet his wife, and Chauncey Pardee, all of Fairfield, Herkimer Co., N. Y., conveyed to Silas Holly of Fairfield land in Stamford, Conn.

* Born in Vermont, according to his 1850 Census return, but in 1800 his father was listed in Fairfield, N. Y.

† Buried, with his first wife, in an orchard at the north end of the Ellis farm on the road to Carmel, near Tilly Foster.

‡ Married by Elder Candy.

He lived in Salem, Westchester County, N. Y., until after the end of the Revolutionary War, then in North Salem for a few years, but shortly after 1790 removed to Southeast, Putnam County, N. Y., near the Tilly Foster iron mine, two miles from the village of Brewster.

In the Census of 1790, he was listed at North Salem, with 1 male under 16, and 4 females, in his family. In 1800, at Southeast, his household consisted of 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, 1 male and 1 female 16 to 26, 2 females 10 to 16, and 1 male and 3 females under 10. In 1810 his household consisted of 1 male and 1 female over 45, 1 female between 16 and 26, 1 male between 10 and 16, and 1 male under 10.

The records of the Pension Bureau show that he enlisted in March 1776 in Col. Alexander McDougall's Regt., New York Line, in South Salem, Westchester County, N. Y., for 1 year, and reenlisted in 1778 in Capt. Richard Sackett's Co.; was with the army under Gen. Washington when the British took possession of Long Island; was in battle of White Plains; entitled to pension of $60.00 per annum. His widow Joanna also received this pension and applied for the land bounty.

In the U. S. Census of 1830, he is listed (aged between 60 and 70), as resident in Southeast, with 1 female (aged 35 to 40) and 1 male (aged under 5) in his family. In the 1840 Census, he is listed as a Revolutionary pensioner (aged 70 to 80), with 1 female (aged 40 to 50), 1 male (aged 10 to 15), 2 males (aged 5 to 10), and 1 female (under 5) in his family.

88. JOHN⁵ PARDEE (Nathan,⁴ Joseph,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., 25 Dec. 1763, died at Antwerp, Jefferson Co., N. Y., 3 June 1827; married at Pittstown, N. Y., in 1788, HANNAH GAGE, born at Dorset, Bennington Co., Vt., 28 Feb. 1772, died at Wilna, Jefferson Co., N. Y., 27 Mar. 1842.

After his service in the Revolutionary War, John married in Pittstown, Albany County, N. Y., where he settled. In the Census of 1790, he is listed as residing in Pittstown, with 2 females in his family; his brother Nathaniel was then living there also. Later, he removed with Nathaniel to Fairfield, Herkimer County, N. Y., where he kept a tavern. He was appointed Captain in Lt. Col. Bellinger's Regt., Herkimer County Militia, 24 Mar. 1802 and resigned in 1806. About that time he settled in Champion, Jefferson County, N. Y., and after residing a few years on a farm there, he removed to Antwerp and cleared a large farm which he occupied until his death. His family returned to Champion.

The children made application for a pension after the death of their parents; their names and ages on 1 May 1847 are stated as Sarah (55) wife of Wilson Pennick of Champion, Alfred George (51) of Champion, Amanda (46) wife of John D. Townsend of Fowler, St. Lawrence Co., and Adaline (43) wife of Daniel Townsend of Wilna, Jefferson Co. They were the only children then surviving, and they applied for the pension due their mother but never claimed by her. Their claim was supported by numerous affidavits, from which we abstract the following. The Christian Advocate and Journal, dated New York, 11 May 1842, contained this item: "March 27. In Wilna, Jefferson Co., N. Y., on a visit to her daughter, Hannah widow of Capt. John Pardee, in the 71st year of her age." The son swore that John Pardee was detached from the company in which he was serving, and at the order of Gen. Hamilton drove the wagon containing the baggage of Generals Washington and Hamilton to Virginia; that his father and an overstatement of Darius's age, since he was listed in Southeast in 1850 aged 19. A comparison of these statements with the Census record of Samuel's family makes it certain that these four children belonged to Samuel and his second wife. A certificate of Samuel's second marriage is with his pension records, and shows that his second wife married under the name of Joanna Williams. Probably she was a widow, and born a Kinney, and the name Marv in the Norwalk record must be erroneous. The statement of the son of George W.⁶ that the father of this family was named Harry is doubtless due to confusion with Henry or Harry, the half-brother of these four children, who was over thirty years their senior, and may have been foster-father to some of them.

Elisha Scofield belonged to the same company, and he has heard them discuss the subject; that his father was born in Salem, Dutchess Co., N. Y., 25 Dec. 1764,* was about 16 when he enlisted, was bred a farmer and certainly never claimed to have a trade or other occupation than farmer and tavern-keeper; was resident in some part of Westchester Co. when he entered service; was about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches in height, complexion light, hair light brown inclined to be sandy, whiskers sandy, and eyes light blue. Rebecca Burnham, aged 67 years, of De Peyster, St. Lawrence Co., sister of Hannah (Gage) Pardee, made oath that Hannah married at the age of 15 years at her father's home in Pittstown, N. Y. Reuben Streeter made oath that he moved into Salisbury, Herkimer Co., in 1788, and soon met John Pardee who then kept a tavern in the adjoining town of Fairfield. Elisha Scofield swore he enlisted at Bedford, Westchester Co., 1 Apr. 1781, and that John Pardee enlisted at the same date and in the same company under Capt. Richard Sackett, Maj. Van Schot, and that John was later ordered to go off as teamster, and served out his time as teamster. John and Hannah were married in 1788; the dates were in the family Bible, which was supposed to be in the family of Amanda Townsend, but could not be found. The widow Hannah resided with her daughter Mrs. Pennick except for short visits to the other children; her funeral sermon was preached by Jesse Penfield, a Methodist minister.

A certified copy of a record in the Comptroller's Office, Albany, shows that John Pardee received £20.3.6. on 26 Dec. 1781 for 7 months and 17 days service under Capt. Richard Sacket, Col. Albert Pawling.

The claim was granted, and the four children received $24.87 per annum for the period from 4 Mar. 1836 to 4 Mar. 1841.

(Pennock) Phillips, of Carthage, N. Y., daughter of Emory J. Pennock, furnished records.

Pennock became a Methodist preacher, and settled on a farm near Great Bend in 1809. He was a pioneer minister and rode all over northern New York, making horseback trips through the wilderness for six weeks at a time. He also cleared his farm and became a large cattle dealer. He was known throughout the region as "Father Pennock" and was universally loved for his kind heart, genial manner, and ministrations to the needy and to the spiritual welfare of all.

On 8 Feb. 1802, John Pardee, Jr., of Courtland, Westchester Co., N. Y., with Betsey his wife, and John Brown of Queensborough, Orange Co., N. Y., conveyed to Reuben Knapp land on the west side of Mill River, in Stamford, Conn.

In the U. S. Census of 1810, he was listed as resident in Neversink, Sullivan County, N. Y., aged 26 to 45, with female of like age, 2 males 10 to 16, and 2 males and 2 females under 10. In 1820, he was listed as over 45 years, with a female aged 26 to 45, 1 male and 1 female 16 to 26, 2 males 10 to 16, and 2 females under 10.

In 1830, he was still in Neversink, he and his wife aged 50 to 60, with 1 male 20 to 30, 1 female 15 to 20, and 1 female 10 to 15. He is not listed at Neversink in the Census of 1840.

He went as a child with his father to Cortlandt, Westchester County, N. Y., and settled near Peekskill. "During the War of 1812 he and a brother [Joseph] furnished beef for the American Army until their slaughter houses on Long Island were burned by the British."

He removed about 1820 to Central New York, stopping for a time in Schoharie County, later coming to Clinton, Oneida County, Durhamville, Stockbridge Valley, and Stockbridge East Hill, Madison County, and finally to Cicero, Onondaga County, N. Y. The best of their furniture was left behind in Schoharie County, because of the difficulties of travel through the woods, and Mrs. Pardee mourned the loss of heirlooms, some of which her mother had brought from Holland, and others from the family of her husband's mother, the Webbs.

JOSEPH⁵ PARDEE (John,⁴ Joseph,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Stamford, Conn., 24 Feb. 1778, died at Dearborn, Mich., in 1859; married first, 12 Mar. 1808, CATHARINE FOX, born 1 June 1770, died 23 July 1817, daughter of Jeremiah Fox; married second, 29 Aug. 1818, MARIA WESTCOTT, born 29 May 1795, died at Dearborn, Mich., 18 Apr. 1870.

On 20 Sept. 1812, Joseph Pardee of Cortlandt, Westchester County, N. Y., mortgaged to Jeremiah Fox, 180 acres, buildings, etc., for $2750, and the following day Jeremiah Fox, "for natural love and affection," assigned the mortgage to his granddaughters Sally Ann and Julia A. Pardee. This assignment was witnessed by Ezra W. Pardee [brother of Joseph]. In 1817, Joseph Pardee and Catharine his wife gave another mortgage; and on 16 June 1821, Joseph Pardee of Cortlandt and Maria his wife mortgaged to Theodorus Bailey property bounded by a lot belonging to Sarah and Elizabeth D. Pardee. A receipt was given by Sally Ann and Juliet Pardee, showing that William Nelson, their guardian, assigned the first-mentioned mortgage to them "upon our becoming of age, 20 July 1831."

About 1801 he purchased a farm about 2 miles from Peekskill, N. Y., overlooking the Hudson; it was the farm granted to Major Paulding for the capture of the British Spy Major André, and had historic associations as it was in this neighborhood that André carried on his negotiations with Arnold, and was captured. Mr. Pardee was very prosperous until the War of 1812, during which he was an extensive government contractor. On some contracts he was a heavy loser, and being unable to prove certain claims against the government, was for a time in financial straits. It was undoubtedly during this period that he mortgaged his property heavily, by means of the transactions referred to above.

In the Autumn of 1833, he took up about 200 acres of government land in the south-eastern part of Dearborn, Wayne County, Mich., at a time when it was dense forest, without roads, and with Indians for the only neighbors. Within the next few years, other pioneers settled nearby, clearing adjoining farms. He became an extensive cattle drover, and lived to see his new venture successful and died in comfortable circumstances.

In early life he was a Democrat and an ardent supporter of Andrew Jackson, for whom he named a son. Late in life, he became a whole-souled abolitionist.

* The published church records of Salem contain an entry of the marriage of Hannah Pardee to Norman Lawrence on 16 Jan. 1803. The date is too early for this Hannah, but no Hannah has been located to fit this record, and possibly the date is in error. The names of Hannah's children are thus stated by a niece: Gertrude, Lydia, Hattie, Frank, Will, George, Mat, Gert, Ed, Mollie, boy, Jessie, George, John, and Cliff.

† Salem Church records contain an entry of the marriage of Mary Pardee to Isaac Bouton on 21 Nov. 1816. There is a possibility that this is intended for Tamma's marriage, but the date is early unless she was one of the elder children. Her children were: Minot, Julia Ann, Flora, and Sarah.

† 17 Dec. 1786, by church record.

He served as Second Lieutenant of the Third Continental Artillery from 17 Oct. 1781 to June 1783 in the Revolutionary War, and was an original member of the Cincinnati. Before this, he had marched with Capt. Oliver Lyman's Co., Mass. Troops, from Northampton to East Hoosick and back, in response to the alarm of 17 Aug. 1777.

He settled in Newburyport, Essex County, Mass. His heirs made a pension claim, stating that he left an only child Jane M. Pardee; and a grandchild (daughter of Henry), Fanny M., wife of William E. Currier.

He early removed with his father to Canaan, Columbia County, N. Y. In the Revolutionary War he served in the 2d Regt., N. Y. Line, also (previously perhaps) in the 8th Regt., Albany County (N. Y.) Militia.

In the Census of 1790, he was listed in Canaan with 2 females in his family. In 1800 he was still listed in Canaan, his family consisting of 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, 1 male and 1 female 16 to 26, 2 females 10 to 16, and 1 male under 10.

He paid a pro-rate as a proprietor of the North Congregational Society in Bloomfield, Ontario Co., N. Y., 1799, and was also a signer as one of the party of the second part (recipients) as a trustee or member of the same society, about 1818. Bloomfield is now the town of Victor.

The records of the Pension Bureau show that he served under Col. Van Schank, N. Y. Troops, two months as a private, six months as a sergeant. His widow applied for a pension, 22 Feb. 1834, then residing in Victor, Ontario County, N. Y. Jonathan West and Henry Pardee (the son) certified that Silas died on 31 May 1833, they being present at the time; and John Pettit certified that Silas was married to Abigail Pettit at Canaan, Columbia Co., N. Y., 17 Dec. 1784, by Rev. Jacob Drake, Elder of the Baptist Church. The widow's pension certificate was issued 26 Feb. 1840, at the rate of $41.26 per annum.

- ii. RACHEL, b. ———; m. ——— ROGERS.
226. iii. HENRY, b. 23 Sept. 1796.

* No issue by first wife. Sarah (Buel) Pardee left a will dated 8 Mar. 1795, in which she remembered her husband, her mother (i. e. mother-in-law) Abigail Pardee, and various relatives or friends. In 1831 Homer and Sarah Pardee sold land together. In 1833 Electa and Homer Pardee sold land together, also in 1845, when they conveyed to George King. On 7 Dec. 1847 Electa and Homer Pardee of Sharon, and Milton and Sarah St. John of Newtown, conveyed land of Isaac Pardee's. The same year, Homer referred in a deed to "my sister Sarah St. John." In 1849 Electa Pardee conveyed to Milton St. John of New York City.

104. JESSE⁵ PARDEE (John,⁴ John,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Sharon, Conn., perhaps 1762, died after 1810; married RUTH ———.

He received a land bounty in New York State for service in the Revolutionary War.

He is listed as resident in Canaan, N. Y., in the Census of 1790, with 3 males under 10 years, and 3 females, in his family. In 1800 he was listed in Canaan, his family consisting of 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, 2 males and 1 female 10 to 16, and 3 males and 1 female under 10. In 1810 he is not listed in Canaan.

Jesse Pardy is listed in 1810 at Plattsburgh, Clinton County, N. Y., 1 male aged 26 to 45, 1 male and 2 females 16 to 26, and 3 males and 2 females under 10. His purchase in Plattsburgh is not on record, and he also owned land in Beekman's Patent, Beekmantown, which is not recorded. On 8 Apr. 1808, Jesse and Ruth Pardy of Plattsburgh mortgaged the south one-half of lot 115 in Beekman's Patent, which mortgage was cancelled 10 Sept. 1808. John Palmer later owned this lot and conveyed it in 1823.

In 1820, the only Pardy listed in Clinton County was Francis in Plattsburgh.

Jesse's name is spelled Pardy in all the later records relating to him, and positive proof of his identity with the son of John of Canaan has not been found, although it appears most probable. All his descendants spell the name Pardy, and since many of them believe that a difference in spelling implies a difference in family, it has been difficult to obtain records from them, and this branch is far from complete.

Children:*

- 227. i. FRANCIS,⁶ b. ———.
- 228. ii. DORASTUS, b. ———.
- 229. iii. JAMES B., b. abt. 1805.

105. JOHN⁵ PARDEE (John,⁴ John,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Sharon, Conn., 20 Feb. 1764, died at Niagara, N. Y., 12 July 1835; married ——— ———.

He was resident in Canaan, N. Y., in the Census of 1790, with 1 son under 16 years, and 3 females, in his family. He was listed in Canaan in 1790, his family consisting of 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, 1 female over 45 (probably his mother), 1 female 10 to 16, and

* Record of children incomplete, and those given are hypothetical. Another son may have been Orville Pardy (see Appendix I). Another son was possibly a Royal Pardy listed at Plattsburgh in the Census of 1840 with Horace Lamb, one aged 40 to 50, the other 50 to 60; no female in the household, but a male child under 5.

1 male and 1 female under 10. In 1810 he was listed at Benton, Ontario County, N. Y., his family consisting of 1 male and 1 female aged over 45, 1 female 16 to 26, and 1 male 10 to 16.

The records of the Pension Bureau show that John Pardee of Niagara County, N. Y., aged 68 years, applied for a pension, 4 Sept. 1832. He stated that he was born at Sharon, Litchfield County, Conn., 20 Feb. 1764, and since the Revolution had lived in Canaan, Columbia Co.; Benton, Ontario Co.; Perington, Monroe Co.; and Niagara. He served 15 days in October 1781 while living in Canaan, under Capt. John Davis, Col. Whiting's Regt., Albany County Militia; entered service again 10 June 1782 under Capt. Jonathan Peirce, Col. Willit's Regt., and was discharged at Schenectady, 6 Jan. 1784. The claim was rejected because no official evidence of service was filed.

He left a will, dated 11 July 1835, and his son Alvah Pardee petitioned for its probate, stating that besides himself the deceased left two children, Hannah A. wife of Robert Cheesbrough of Niagara and Cornelia Ann wife of Zephaniah Warren of Southfield, Mich.; also a grandchild, Charity E. Edgerton, aged about 12, daughter of Susan Edgerton deceased, who was daughter of John Pardee and wife of Sebrina Edgerton who removed to Illinois leaving Charity with her Edgerton grandparent at Camden, Oneida Co., N. Y.

Children:

- i. HANNAH A.,⁶ b. ———; m. ROBERT CHEESBROUGH, of Niagara, N. Y.
- ii. CORNELIA ANN, b. ———; m. ZEPHANIAH WARREN, of Southfield, Oakland Co., Mich.
230. iii. ALVAH, b. between 1794 and 1800.
- iv. SUSAN, b. ———; m. SEBRINA EDGERTON.

106. THOMAS⁵ PARDEE (?James,⁴ John,³ Joseph,² George¹), born at Sharon, Conn., 17 May 1757, died at Allegheny City, Allegheny County, Pa., 23 Sept. 1845; married at Amenia, N. Y., 17 Dec. 1791, SUSANNAH DARROW, born 8 Oct. 1766, died at Collins, Allegheny Co., Pa., 20 Aug. 1860, daughter of Isaac Darrow.

He was doubtless the Thomas Pardee who served in the 6th Regt., Dutchess Co. (N. Y.) Militia. The Census of 1800 lists his family in Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y., as 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, and 1 male and 4 females under 10. The family was listed in Amenia in 1810 as 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, 1 female 16 to 26, 1 male and 3 females 10 to 16, and 1 male under 10. In 1830 he was listed in Trenton, Oneida County, N. Y., aged 70 to 80, with 1 female 60 to 70, 1 female 30 to 40, and 1 male and 2 females 20 to 30.

The records of the Pension Bureau show that he applied for a pension at the age of 75 years, while residing in Trenton, Oneida County, N. Y. He certified that he was born in Sharon, and since the Revolution had lived chiefly at Amenia, N. Y., until 1818, when he removed to Trenton; that he performed military service, enlisting in 1775 in Sharon, "my native place," in Col. Hinman's Company for seven months, also in 1776 in Col. Snider's Regt. On 23 Oct. 1837 he made affidavit in Allegheny County, Pa., because "he is old and infirm and blind, and resides with his son and daughter, who for the bettering of their condition have moved to Allegheny, where they intend to remain, also have brought him with them here, he is blind and therefore makes his mark"; he states that he moved from Oneida County, N. Y., in September 1836, with his son and daughter Mary to Burlington, N. J., thence to Pennsylvania. On 2 Jan. 1846, Polly Cornwell of Yates County, N. Y., made affidavit that she was present at the marriage of Thomas Pardee to Susanna Darrow on 26 Dec. 1791, which was performed at Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y., by Rev. Cotton Mather Smith, and that Susanna Pardee is now the widow of Thomas Pardee. On 12 Aug. 1848, Susanna Pardee, aged 82 years, made declaration that "she is the widow of Thomas Pardee, private in Connecticut Militia, she received under the act of June 14, 1844, $42.72 per annum, and she is still a widow." Another document states that Thomas died 23 Sept. 1845. In 1855 Susanna Pardee made application for a land warrant for 160 acres of land, stating that she is the pensioned widow of Thomas Pardee; she is very poor and infirm of body, but retains the use and sprightliness of her faculties to a rare degree, and there is no doubt of the honesty of her claim; addressed from Pittsburgh, Pa., to the Commissioner of Pensions. The daughters Mary and Hannah were said to be aged 50 and 56 in 1855, a statement which does not agree with their ages at death.

On 27 Dec. 1853, Mary, Hannah, and Elizabeth Pardee for $600 purchased land in Collins, Allegheny County, Pa., from Ann Sutton, formerly Bishop, of Lawrenceville. The daughter Mary bought a burial lot in Allegheny Cemetery, and here Thomas and his wife and their daughters Mary and Hannah are buried. The only grave that has a stone is that of Thomas, which reads: "In / Memory of / Thomas Pardee / Born at Sharon, Conn. / May 17, 1757 / Died in / Allegheny City, Pa. / Sept. 23, 1845." The daughters are still remembered in Pittsburgh as "delightfully aristocratic" old ladies with a blind father. On 13 July 1868, the three sisters, "all of the city of Pittsburgh, formerly Collins Township," for $4,076 sold to William J. Morrison the three acres which they had bought from Ann Collins, and removed to Freeport, Pa. Here they established a school for children, and are remembered as very refined old ladies who had the respect of the community. After the death of the older sisters, Elizabeth closed the school, and in 1879 went to live with her brother, whose name and residence are not recalled. Some suppose she went to Philadelphia.

Children:

- i. MARY,⁶ b. abt. 1792; d. at Freeport, Pa., 2 Sept. 1878; buried in Allegheny Cemetery.
231. ii. ISAAC DARROW, b. in 1795.

* Others?

1852; married ———, FLORINDA BRAY, born at (Southington?), ———, died ———, daughter of Col. Asa and Lydia (Andrews) Bray.

He enlisted as a private, 10 July 1779, in Capt. Asa Bray's Co., Col. Phelps' Regt., and served six weeks. He served in Capt. Ten Eyck's Co., Light Infantry, under Col. Zebulon Butler, Connecticut Line, from 1 July to 13 Dec. 1780. He reënlisted in March 1781 as Corporal in Capt. Matthew Smith's Co. under Majors Shipman and Humphreys, and again in April 1782, serving until the end of the war under Capt. Nathaniel Jones. He was engaged in two battles at Frog's Point, N. Y., and under Capt. Jones was in service on Long Island Sound, aiding in the capture of twenty vessels. He was present at the surrender of Cornwallis.

He was still residing in Southington on 31 July 1832, when he applied for a pension, his claim being allowed. The records of the Pension Bureau show that he was born in Southington, 19 Oct. 1762, enlisted 12 July 1779 in the Company of Capt. Asa Bray, and was later a Corporal. There are depositions from various parties who knew him, one of which is attested by his brother Lemuel (aged 67), who states that Daniel "left his father's house" and served in 1779 and the next year as a substitute for Noah Woodruff.

Daniel Pardee's father-in-law, Colonel Asa Bray, son of John and Lydia (Hoadley) Bray of Branford, was from North Haven, and was at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga. After the war he returned to private life. It is said that the tune called 'Bray' in our collection of sacred music was altered from an older composition and the name given by the author to the new arrangement of it from personal friendship to Asa Bray. He was chorister of the Congregational Church for a time. Below is a copy of the words of the tune named for Colonel Bray, rewritten about 1790. It is to-day used in many of the Protestant hymnals under the name "Bray."

Bray

"Awake, my soul, to meet the day;
Unfold thy drowsy eyes,
And burst the heavy chain that binds
Thine active faculties.

"God's guardian shield was round me spread
In my defenceless sleep;
Let him have all my waking hours
Who doth my slumbers keep.

"Pardon, O God, my former sloth,
 And arm my soul with grace;
 As rising, now I seal my vows
 To prosecute thy ways.

"Bright Sun of righteousness, arise;
 Thy radiant beams display;
 And guide my dark, bewilder'd soul,
 To everlasting day."

Colonel Bray lived in Southington, Conn., until he died there in 1815, just five years before his grandson, Jesse Pardee, left New Haven for Meadville, Pa.

He was made a voter at Southington in 1818. According to Timlow's "Southington Sketches," he had a long and eventful career in the army and was taken prisoner before Quebec, 13 Sept. 1759. This is quite impossible, and perhaps the statement is due to confusion between him and his father, who was a soldier in the French and Indian War. It is also said that he was a tall, slender man, and had a peculiar shuffling gait, occasioned by a fall from a load of hay, by which his shoulder was dislocated.

On 24 June 1789, Jonathan Pardee of Waterbury conveyed to Richard Pardee of Waterbury, for £32, the land which he bought of Jabez Bacon, except 3 acres which he had sold to Enos Bradley the previous March. On 4 Oct. 1792, Richard Pardee of Waterbury conveyed to Enos Bradley land which was bounded north on Bradley's land and on "my Mothers land, being all the land I own thereabouts," and in this conveyance Richard referred to "a Deed I had of my father," thus proving that he was son of Jonathan.

Elisha Beebe and Elizabeth his wife conveyed land to Richard Pardee of Waterbury on 14 May 1796, and on 25 Oct. of the same year Richard and Polly his wife joined other Beebe heirs in a conveyance to Martin Beebe. Richard also sold a piece of land in Waterbury and two parcels of land in Middlebury the same year, and probably removed from this region about that time.

Y. He did not receive his degree, being compelled by his father's illness to take over the management of the latter's architectural business before graduating. In 1855 he applied for a patent on an arrowhead self-coupler for railroad cars, and five years later he obtained a patent on a corn-planting machine, one of the first of this kind of device to be generally used in agriculture. In 1869 he went to St. Louis as manager of Peck's Planing Mills, and while there invented the metal lace latch for shoes. Other inventions were the anemometer, an instrument for recording the direction of winds; a registering step for street cars; the recording lumber measure; and finally, the calculating machine, the most notable of all his inventions. This machine, capable of adding, subtracting, multiplying, and dividing, each with equal facility, was placed on exhibition at the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and was awarded in 1875 the John Scott Medal for being the most meritorious invention of the year. In 1911 Mr. Baldwin, coöperating with Jay R. Monroe, then associated with the legal department of the Western Electric Company of New York City, perfected the calculator. The result was the Monroe calculating machine, well known in modern business.

In 1814, calling himself of Russia, Herkimer Co., N. Y., he conveyed to Ransom Saxton of Middlebury land at Kessewage Swamp formerly occupied by Eliphalet Pardee. He apparently removed to Russia about 1806 with his father's family. In his will, dated 13 Mar. 1852, he called himself 77 years of age, made generous provision for his wife Lydia, cancelled his son Alvah's indebtedness to him, and bequeathed a farm of thirteen acres in Russia (on which he himself lived) to his son Loren, and a farm of 103 acres at Black Creek in Russia to his daughter. He removed as a child with his parents to Russia, Herkimer County, N. Y., but before 1832 settled on a farm five miles south of Panama, Chautauqua County, N. Y. His family first occupied a log house, but later built a large farm house nearby, with large outbuildings to accommodate the stock. They kept oxen, horses, cows, sheep, hogs, and poultry; raised wheat, and made maple sugar, butter and cheese. His wife spun flax, and wove cloth for towels, tablecloths, sheets, pillow-cases, and shirts. She was a niece of the wives of his older brothers, Josiah and Ebenezer Pardee. While working with butter and cheese, he wore a large apron which came to his knees, with long sleeves, buttoned at the back of the neck and at the wrists. He and his wife were good people, well spoken of by all who knew them.

124. JOSEPH⁵ PARDEE (Joseph,⁴ Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Orange, 20 Sept. 1780, died there 1 Nov. 1863; married in 1800, SARAH HINE, born at Derby, 31 Oct. 1780, died at Orange, 28 Dec. 1865, daughter of John and Comfort (Baldwin) Hine.

His wife joined the Orange church, 4 Jan. 1818, by letter from Waterbury. He was a farmer in Orange all his life, except for a short period when he lived in Waterbury.

He may have been born in the little house in Orange, Conn., that stood in 1780 some six rods northerly from the present Pardee homestead, and just across the road from the present Jonathan Treat house. His father bought this house in 1782 along with some seven acres of land, mostly marshy and the rest hilly. This was the beginning of the Orange Pardee farm, and the original deeds are in the possession of descendants.

He learned the "three R's" in the little red school house that was a few rods down the road towards Milford. Marrying early, he remained at home, working on the farm which was now increased by a few acres, and piecing out his time with joiner work. About 1818 the Pardees bought additional land where the present homestead stands and tore down the old house. The present house, which was built at that time, was largely constructed with old timbers not just suited to the place, and the inference is that the old was built into the new at a time when house material was hard to get.

A grandson writes as follows: "Grandfather Joseph had the usual habits of the time, drank some, at a period when all drank, worked well, and as my father told me was faithful to his family. Grandfather made a fair living, what with the farm and the trade, and as the family increased his boys learned a trade or started a farm life of their own.

* Children (Wellman): 1. Emma L., b. at Freehold, Pa., 26 Sept. 1849; m. at Wayne, Pa., 23 Dec. 1868, W. Byron McIntyre, b. 27 Feb. 1839, d. at Wayne, Pa., 1 Feb. 1920; had issue; she resides (1925) in Corry, Pa. 2. Eglon L., b. 18 July 1851, d. at Morristown, Pa.; m. Martha Doud; had issue. 3. Cora M., b. at Wayne, Pa., 24 Dec. 1870; m. at South Harmony, N. Y., 8 Oct. 1890, Myron S. Cook; no issue; resides at Bear Lake, Pa.

Those were the days of small money—little business conceptions. 'Received of Joseph Pardee fifty-six cents being in full for his tax for the year * * * Signed ——.' But little money was needed, if only the farmer had rye to take to mill and corn, two or three pigs and a "Beef critter" to kill, with a few simple accompaniments. Woolen and linen clothes, sheets and blankets in that age of homespun, there were, while maple sugar might pass for sweetening.

"Grandfather Joseph's chief characteristics were a spirit of independence, optimism, content, philosophical consideration, a bent to improve on what he experienced, kindness, and generosity. He had a religious trend but that didn't crystallize until 1835 when he joined the Orange church.

"His youthful inclinations were philosophic, and he preferred to work out his own conclusions rather than accept them ready-made. He once remarked: 'Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will do as he has a mind to.' It appears that he lived 55 years the life of the honestly inquiring man, neither for nor against the church. After his conversion in 1835, he worked in the church and out of it for the cause he had espoused. Family worship was a religious act with him and it was heartening to witness the devotion of the innocent old man whose activities had been limited to the confines of the farm and the village.

"In his old age he suffered much from physical ailments, but on the whole was happy and vigorous, for I recall that he mowed with his son in the year he was 82."

For about fifty years he walked twice a day for chores to a hilltop barn three-fourths of a mile from the house, and until he had a team often walked to New Haven and back, carrying produce and supplies. She had four children, did all the housework and some of the chores, made all the clothes for the family, and in her idle moments made match boxes for the Bethany match factory. She was religious, a woman of moderation and poise, and was adored by her children.

145. DR. JARED WHITFIELD⁶ PARDEE (Leavit,⁵ Isaac,⁴ George,³ George,² *George*¹), B.A. (Yale 1816), M.D. (1818), born at East Haven, 2 Jan. 1792, died at Bristol, Conn., 7 Jan. 1867; married at Bristol, 8 June 1818, RUTH NORTON UPSON, born 1 Jan. 1795, died at Bristol, 13 Aug. 1874, daughter of Asa and ——— (Barnes) Upson.

He was graduated at Yale College in 1816, and studied medicine there, receiving the degree of M.D. in 1818. He settled in Bristol, where he practiced his profession until his death, serving as the first Judge of Probate of Bristol when that district was established in 1830. He also represented Bristol in the Legislature in 1830 and 1831. His wife, with four of the children, survived him.

Dr. Pardee was eminently successful in his profession, and is still remembered in Bristol for his eccentricities. On one occasion he was summoned to treat a woman who was indulging in a fit of "tantrums." The wise physician recognized the case as one which did not require ordinary medical treatment. He soberly instructed the attendants to heat a flatiron and to remove some of the woman's clothing, making it appear that he intended to apply the flatiron when hot enough. The patient suddenly recovered, and it is said that the recovery was permanent.

He was a farmer, of Harwinton, Conn. Administration on his estate was granted, 13 Sept. 1849, to Eunice Pardee and Royal B. Pardee. The inventory amounted to \$2561.50, and included 105 acres with the house and $\frac{2}{3}$ of other buildings (\$1800), Clarke's Commentary (\$3.00), and other books (\$1.50). He was a farmer. Between 1836 and 1841, he removed from Connecticut to New York, settling in Conklin, Broome County. He is listed in Conklin in the Census of 1850, aged 47, with Juliann H. (aged 44), Henrietta S. (22), Emergene (14), and Malon J. (9), all born in Connecticut except the last.

148. ISAAC HOLT⁶ PARDEE (Abijah,⁵ Jacob,⁴ George,³ George,² *George*¹), born at East Haven, about 1781, died there 31 July 1822; married at East Haven, 5 June 1806, SALLY HOTCHKISS, born at East Haven, 19 Mar. 1781, died there 15 Dec. 1838, daughter of Isaac and Lydia (Fields) Hotchkiss.

Administration on the estate of Isaac H. Pardee was granted, 3 Sept. 1822, to Abraham Pardee with Abijah Pardee surety; the following month, the widow, who had been sick when administration was granted, was appointed joint Administratrix. The Court allowed \$100 for the support of the widow and family during the settlement of the estate. The widow's dower was set out, \$82.73 in personalty, and $\frac{1}{3}$ of $\frac{1}{2}$ of the dwelling house with $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1 acre of land adjoining, being in common and undivided with Abijah Pardee. Chandler and Isaac Pardee were appointed appraisers. The right in the house was sold under incumbrance of the dower to Amos Morris, Jr., for \$100 and the pew or slip in the Meeting House was sold to Roswell Augur for \$60. The clear estate came to \$417.24, the debts to \$439.19, a slight deficiency, but the Administrators offered to pay the debts in full, and thus the estate was settled without distribution.

Mrs. Pardee inherited a small estate from her parents, and shared in the estate of her mother's uncle, James Chidsey. Her will, dated 1 Nov. 1834, proved 10 Jan. 1839, devised to her daughter Elizabeth Pardee her house and land in the village of Fair Haven, all her right and title in the estate of James Chidsey, and the slip or pew in the Congregational Church in Fair Haven; personal estate to be equally divided between said daughter Elizabeth and daughter Clarissa Maltby; Harvey Rowe, Executor; witnesses, Wyllys Hemingway, Levi Rowe, and Wyllys Maltby. The inventory totaled \$635, including $\frac{1}{8}$ acre of land and the dwelling house (\$600), an undivided right in the estate of James Chidsey (\$10), and one half slip in the church (\$25). A third of the house and lot was sold to Amos Morris to cover expenses of settling the estate. There being no personal estate, the balance was set to Elizabeth M. Pardee, daughter of the deceased and only devisee. Elizabeth M. Pardee, aged about 19 years, chose Amos Morris guardian, 16 May 1839, and the Court approved the sale of the remaining $\frac{2}{3}$ of the house and homelot.

He was the last of his line to own a part of the Morris Cove property which had been purchased from Mr. Gregson's heirs in 1678. It was sold about 1835.

The surviving children of Abijah are known from a conveyance of property in Fair Haven, Conn., which they gave in 1863. His widow Sarah, together with the only son, Abijah, and the daughter Ann Delia, then resided in Vermillion, Erie Co., Ohio.

The son Abijah was sent to Vermillion in his youth, and in the U. S. Census (1850) is listed (aged 16) as a member of a Todd household, his grandmother Delight Todd (aged 81) being a member of the same family.

of the British, and Dodd's "East Haven Register," published in 1824, states that he died in infancy. In 1789, ten years after his father's death, his mother married Eli Gilbert of Woodbridge. In the First Census (1790), Eli Gilbert is listed as having in his family two males under 16 years of age. Since but one Gilbert son had then been born, the step-son Jacob Pardee (then aged 10 or 11) was probably the other boy listed. In 1806, he was named in the will of his grandfather, Jacob Pardee (20). In 1808, calling himself of Milford, he conveyed right to land "from my grandmother wife of Jacob Pardee of East Haven, deceased." It seems clear, therefore, that Dodd erred in believing that he died in infancy.

He served at Bridgeport in the War of 1812, from 28 Apr. to 31 May, and from 8 Sept. to 20 Oct., 1814.

Jacob first appears in Huntington (now Shelton), Conn., when his marriage to Anna Wheeler was recorded in 1810. On 7 Jan. 1811, Deodate Silliman, ordered by the Court to sell real estate belonging to Hepsa Blackman, a minor, conveyed it to Jacob Pardee, who on the same day executed a mortgage to Hepsa Blackman and to Nancy wife of Gideon Wheeler. On 22 Aug. 1811, Anne Pardee wife of Jacob received a warrantee deed from Gideon Wheeler, and on the same day Jacob executed one in favor of Gideon; also, Gideon Wheeler and Semantha his wife conveyed to Jacob their right of dower in the property of Eben Blackman deceased, Semantha being Blackman's widow. In 1815 Jacob and Anna his wife conveyed to Joseph Wheeler, and in 1819 Anna Pardee received a conveyance from Joseph.

The only child of Jacob of whom record has been found was Lydia Ellen, who on 4 Sept. 1831 was baptized with eight other adults on profession of their faith in Christ. On 24 Dec. 1833, Joseph, Nathaniel and Agur Wheeler conveyed to "Lydia Ellen Pardy" land which had formerly been conveyed by Jacob and Anna Pardy to the said Joseph Wheeler. She married Elijah S. Beach of Trumbull in 1835, and on 23 Feb. 1840 was dismissed from the Huntington church to the church in Trumbull, being called "Lydia Ellen Beach, Pardy that was." Finally, on 4 Mar. 1843, Elijah S. Beach of Trumbull with Lydia E. his wife, in company with Ebenezer Wooster of Middlebury and Abby M. his wife (she was née Wheeler), conveyed to Joseph Wheeler of Huntington land at Walnut-tree hill, being part of what is called Bull Meadow. No further mention of Jacob's family has been found in Huntington, and it may be guessed that he died at Huntington unless he survived to follow his daughter to Trumbull. His wife was buried in Trumbull Center.

Child, born at Huntington:

- i. LYDIA ELLEN,⁷ b. about 1813; d. at Trumbull, 20 Sept. 1870; m. at Huntington, 27 Oct. 1835, ELIJAH S. BEACH, of Trumbull, who d. 11 May 1869, aged 60.

151. SAMUEL⁶ PARDEE (Stephen,⁵ Stephen,⁴ Stephen,³ George,² George¹), born at East Haven, Conn., ——— 177—.

He removed to Plymouth, Conn., with his parents, as an infant. In the Census of 1800, he was listed at Plymouth, aged 26 to 45, with 1 female of like age and 1 male and 2 females under 10. He was still living in Plymouth on 30 Aug. 1802, when he conveyed property to Stephen Pardee [his father]. On 28 Sept. 1809, he was resident in Camden, Oneida County, N. Y.

No trace of his family has been found in Oneida County. It is believed that he may have moved on to Ohio, where some of his relatives settled. He may be the Samuel Pardee of Columbus, Ohio, who married (secondly?) LUCINA (HOADLEY) HINE, daughter of William and Esther (Porter) Hoadley of Naugatuck, Conn., and widow of Willard Hine.

His children have not been located.

He was a farmer, of Plymouth, Litchfield County, Conn. A grandson states that he removed about 1820 to Jefferson, Ashtabula County, Ohio, returning to Connecticut in 1822.

Children, two born at Plymouth, Conn., one at Jefferson, Ohio, four at Plymouth:

ELI STEPHEN⁶ PARDEE (Eli,⁵ Stephen,⁴ Stephen,³ George,² *George*¹), born at Litchfield, 25 Feb. 1787, died at Sudlersville, Md., 20 Feb. 1862; married first, ——— TEMPLE, who died as the result of an accident while riding horseback; married second, ——— (SEEGAR) ELLIOTT, widow of John Elliott;* married third, LYDIA SEWARD, born near Dover, Del., 5 June 1814, died at Sudlersville, Md., 5 Nov. 1886, daughter of George Seward of Hazleville, Del.

He was graduated from a college in the north, and in 1810 went south for his health. He became Principal of Chester Academy, then a flourishing school, and also† served as President of Washington College, Chestertown, Md. A grandson states: "He led the professors and school boys of Washington College (in 1813) against the British regulars at a place known as Caulks Field. Grandfather was a "six footer" and had two club feet. He was highly educated, and enjoyed an enviable reputation for wisdom and integrity."

Another grandson states that he received but $600 as head of the college, and that, resigning, he became a tutor in a wealthy family in Quaker Neck, near Chestertown in Kent County, where he received $600 a year and board, the instruction being in Latin, French, and mathematics. Being provident, he saved part of his earnings during the two or three years of private tutoring, discontinued teaching, and conducted a general store and also farmed at Templeville, Queen Anne County. While here he married Miss Temple; and after her death he married Mrs. Elliott, through whom he became the owner of some slaves. Both ladies belonged to families which were prominent in Queen Anne County.

Another grandson says that after quitting the profession of teaching, he took up legal paper work. He settled about the time of his third marriage at Sudlersville, Queen Anne County, as a gentleman farmer.

He was for many years vestryman in the Episcopal Church, and imbued all his children with deep religious principles. He was a great reader and a leader in intellectual movements, and many of his sayings were quoted as epigrams.

* Widow of Benjamin S. Elliott, by another account.

† Another account says that he was Principal of the Chestertown High School after serving at Washington College.

July 1837; married NELLIE TRUMPER, born ———, died in Kansas in 1865, daughter of James Valentine Trumper.* She married second, William Richardson.

His son, who was an infant at the time of Levi's death, understood that he was captain of a sailing vessel on the Hudson River, that besides property in Ulster County, N. Y., where he made his home, he owned a farm in Orange County, and that he died at the age of 44, at "West Camp," Ulster County. It was supposed that Levi's father came from France during the Revolution and served under Lafayette. These statements tally with what is known of this Levi, except that the French ancestry must be pushed much farther back, and a further statement to the effect that he was born and reared in Maine cannot be accurate. His birth and death records are from the James Pardee family Bible, and his gravestone is in the West Camp cemetery at Saugerties, Ulster County.

His widow married Mr. Richardson, who in 1849 started for California, but was taken ill in Missouri. His family joined him there in 1850, and they settled on a farm in Morristown (now Freeman), Cass County, where he died in 1857. On account of dangers incidental to border warfare, the family crossed into Kansas in 1861, and there Mrs. Richardson died four years later.

He removed to Jefferson County, N. Y., and ran a boat on the Erie Canal, later removing to Hartland, Wis. One descendant says that he was a minister, but this is denied by another, who says that Noah was very religious and always had family prayers.

Mich., 27 July 1888; married 5 Mar. 1825, RUTH TOBIAS, born 18 Jan. 1805, died at New Boston, Madison Co., N. Y., 7 Oct. 1847.

He settled in Moravia, Cayuga County, N. Y., where his children were born, and later lived in Lakeport, New Boston, and Chittenango, Madison County, N. Y. He was a shoemaker and farmer, and served for many years as Justice of the Peace, both in Madison County, N. Y., and in Michigan.

He removed to Bowne, Kent County, Michigan, in 1856, and lived there until his death. He and his descendants were noted for their height and spare build. He was just 6 feet tall; his sons were over 6 feet; and his grandsons Wilbur H. and Ozi are both close to 6 feet 3 inches. He was an active abolitionist and belonged to the "underground railroad" organization in slavery times. He and his sons were all farmers, and pioneers in this part of Michigan, which was wilderness when they cleared their farms. They were Methodists, and respected for their integrity.

It took 4 weeks in 1856 to travel from Chittenango, N. Y., to Lowell, Mich.,—a journey which can now be made by rail in less than a day. The party consisted of Ozi, his sons James, Eli, and Wayne, and daughter Elizabeth. They traveled by boat on the Erie Canal to Buffalo, thence on a steam propeller around the chain of lakes to Grand Haven, by boat up Grand River to Grand Rapids, and from there they "poled" the distance of 25 or 30 miles to Lowell. Here they remained over winter, and the following spring settled as pioneers in Bowne. There being no apple trees in this new country, James planted seeds and raised from them an orchard of choice apples.

178. AARON⁶ PARDEE (Ebenezer,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born at Skaneateles, N. Y., 8 Oct. 1808, died at Wadsworth, Ohio, 10 Jan. 1898; married at Wadsworth, Ohio, 8 Oct. 1827, EVELINE BIANCY EYLES, born at Kent, Conn., 30 Mar. 1807, died at Wadsworth, Ohio, 13 Sept. 1873, daughter of Judge William and Polly (Derthick) Eyles.

He was an attorney and farmer, of Wadsworth, Ohio, and served as Senator for the 27th District in the Ohio Legislature in 1850, 1852, and 1853, and as Judge of the Medina Court.

In 1817 his brother Allen made a trip by foot to Erie, Pa., thence to Pittsburgh, and by boat to Cincinnati; through Medina County to Cleveland. In 1818 Allen Pardee and his brother-in-law Mr. Butler settled in Wadsworth, Ohio. On 3 Sept. 1824 Aaron Pardee, with his brother John, the latter's wife and two children, and their mother and sister Julia, accompanied by Allen, set out for Ohio in two covered wagons, which were loaded with household goods. A tar bucket hung on one hind axletree, and a water pail on the other, and a cow was tied behind each wagon.

He taught school in Wadsworth for two seasons (1825-1827), then married and worked his brother John's farm on shares, John having become engaged in a mercantile enterprise. His mother lived with the newly-married couple. In 1834 they moved into a new log house which Aaron built on the Akron road west of Judge Eyles's farm; he had 50 acres of entirely new land which had cost $150, a horse and cow, a lumber wagon, and a yoke of oxen, and immediately went in debt over $200 for a few acres more, needed to bring the farm to the Akron road. He cleared the land, built a barn, bought another 7 acres, fenced 30 or 40 acres, and built a new frame house. Having been employed as a boy by his brother Harry, who was a painter, he added to his income by painting houses; and served as Constable and Deputy Sheriff.

He also found time to study law with his nephew Eugene, who was then practicing in Wadsworth, and in December 1837 was admitted to the bar, traveling to Columbus for this purpose, a six days' trip on horseback each way. A year later, he traded farms with his brother Allen, living the rest of his life in his new home. For some than 53 years he attended with one exception every session of court held in Medina, besides many in neighboring counties and on his 87th birthday was still in active practice.

In 1896 he published a history of his branch of the Pardee family, in which he pays this tribute to his wife: "the true and faithful wife of my choice, the mother of my children; and although she has gone before me long ago, we are one still, and I expect to meet her again soon."

He accompanied his father as a child to Benson, Vt., and later settled in Windham, Portage Co., Ohio. About 1852 he compiled a manuscript history of his family, beginning with his great-grandfather Dea. Ebenezer Pardee, which has been of inestimable value in the preparation of the present genealogy.†

He writes of his first marriage: "This marriage was rather unfortunate, not meeting the minds of my mother and family nor those of most of the Stiles family, but as my wife and myself were pleased with it we easily got along with other difficulties, although they were sometimes perplexing; but if our friends were right, we had this consolation, that two cheats make an even bargain."

After the birth of the youngest child by the first wife, he says, "my wife's health was never good and in February she began to decline and it became evident she was consumptive, and she died June eleventh about sunset 1835." This youngest child was adopted and brought up by his childless sister, Mrs. Florinda Collins, and her husband, "and well and faithfully have they discharged the duty of parents. If any exception can be taken, it must be on the score of too much kindness or parental indulgence."

Speaking of his second marriage, to his brother's widow, he says, it "much injured the feelings of her three elder sons. Such has been my fortune or misfortune in marrying."

He served as Representative for Portage County in the Ohio Legislature in 1842, was highly respected in his community, and was the founder of the Masonic lodge in Garrettsville.

WILLIAM WIRT WINCHESTER MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

The William Wirt Winchester Memorial Hospital in the Allingtown section of West Haven was the gift of Mr. Winchester's widow, who was Miss Sarah L. Pardee. Her husband was the only son of Oliver F. Winchester, the founder of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, and she lived with him in the Winchester family home on Prospect Hill, which has since been torn down.

Mr. Winchester predeceased her by more than thirty years, and she removed to California, where she held large interests and had a beautiful residence in San José.

To New Haveners, the most outstanding feature of Mrs. Winchester's life and the one by which she will be best remembered by them, was the gift of the wonderful hospital in Allingtown as a memorial to her husband. The hospital, intended by her for the treatment of tubercular patients, was entirely her own plan and conception, and it is said that not even her relatives were informed of her determination to make this worthy gift to New Haven until plans had been entirely completed. To her original gift she several times added large sums for the enlargement of the scope of the work. During and since the World War the government used the hospital for the treatment of incapacitated soldiers. It has been announced that the government will not continue its use after June, 1927, and it will revert to the uses for which Mrs. Winchester intended it.

The accompanying picture shows the entrance to the main building, but does not convey much idea of the extent of the whole establishment.

His wife was daughter of a sea Captain who owned and sailed a sloop, and was lost at sea with his ship.

He was a farmer in Sharon until 1836, when he removed to Romulus, N. Y., and later to East Bloomfield, N. Y. He and his wife Julia and daughter Laura joined the church in Sharon in 1831. He served as Captain in the Connecticut Militia.

220. WILLIAM⁶ PARDEE (Gamaliel,⁵ Thomas,⁴ John,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Sharon, 15 July 1772, died ———; married at Sharon, 14 Aug. 1794, SALLY WOOD, perhaps* daughter of Elijah Wood; probably married second, about 1802, NANCY BELLAMY, born at Cheshire, Conn., 2 Apr. 1778, daughter of Justus and Lydia (Hall) Bellamy.

The history of William Pardee is less complete than could be wished. In 1796 Thomas gave land in Sharon "to my grandson William Pardee, natural heir to my late son Gamaliel," and William conveyed the same year to John Jackson. On 3 Jan. 1797, Thomas conveyed more land to William, and on 24 Oct. 1799 William conveyed to Salmon Curtis the "land and house I now dwell in." In the Census of 1800, he was listed at Sharon, aged 26 to 45, with 1 female 16 to 26, and 1 male under 10. In 1810 he was not listed in Sharon.

On 15 Nov. 1803, William Pardee bought land and a distillery business in Vergennes, Vt. Since this William disappears from Sharon and his only sister lived in Vermont, and since there is no other William then unaccounted for among the descendants of George Pardee, there is excellent reason for identifying him with the Vergennes man.

The only son of William named on the Sharon Family Tree compiled by a grandson of William's uncle Samuel, was "Hiram of Amsterdam," but this is not conclusive evidence that there were no other sons, since several known members of the Sharon branch are omitted therefrom. Hiram was also the only child of William named in the will of Thomas, but since the latter during his lifetime had conveyed property to William, the gift to Hiram may be considered as a personal legacy, and does not prove that William had no other children.

There are grounds for believing that William married a second wife in Vergennes, and it is possible that Hiram, the son of the first wife, was left with relatives in Sharon, and thus was the only child of William known personally to the Sharon Pardees. The Census returns, which are not always to be relied on, state that Hiram was born in New York State. It is more likely that he was taken to New York as a young child by relatives of his mother.

Hon. Frederick F. Pardee of Sarnia, Ontario, states that his grandfather, Aaron Bellamy Pardee, was born at Vergennes, Vt., in 1804. There were no vital statistics kept there at that period, but William is the only Pardee mentioned in the deeds, and is thus the only Pardee available as ancestor of the Canadian branch.†

Justus Bellamy, Esq., son of Aaron and Desire (Parker) Bellamy, was born at Cheshire, Conn., 1 Apr. 1756, and married, 3 Dec. 1775, Lydia Hall, daughter of Charles Chauncey and Lydia (Holt) Hall, granddaughter of Col. Benjamin and Abiah (Chauncey) Hall, a descendant of Rev. Charles Chauncey, second President of Harvard College. Mr. Bellamy had six children baptized in Cheshire, 26 Aug. 1792 (Nancy, Chauncey Hall, Samuel Josephus, Justus, Lydia Holt, and Edward), and a son Aaron baptized 4 Jan. 1794. Shortly after this date, he removed with his family from Cheshire to Vergennes, Vt. The names of the Pardee children in the next generation indicate that their mother was a daughter of Justus Bellamy, and the only one old enough to be their mother was the eldest daughter, Nancy.

Perhaps William Pardee removed to Canada in his old age. Aaron Bellamy Pardee removed in 1826 to "a place near North Augusta in the County of Leeds, Ontario." North Augusta is in Grenville County, on the border of Leeds County, and the town of Bellamy in Leeds County is very close to it. This suggests that members of the related Pardee and Bellamy families settled in the same region.

The fact that William is known to have been living in 1819, the date of the delayed distribution of his grandfather's estate, although his name does not appear in Sharon records after 1799, indicates that he removed from Sharon and makes his identification with the Vermont man probable. It is also significant that William's only sister settled in Vermont.

230. ALVAH⁶ PARDEE (John,⁵ John,⁴ John,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born about 1789, died ———; married ———.

He was listed in the Census of 1830 as resident in Niagara, Niagara County, N. Y., his family consisting of 1 male 30 to 40 years old, 1 female 40 to 50, 1 female 15 to 20, 2 females 10 to 15, and 1 male and 2 females 5 to 10.

His family has not been traced.

The records of the Pension Bureau show that he enlisted 10 Sept. 1814 and was discharged 21 Oct. 1814, in Capt. Henry Perlee's Co., New York Militia, War of 1812. In applying for a pension, 7 Nov. 1853, aged 58 years, he swears "that he assumed the D. in his name sometime after the War of 1812 and that the reason of placing the D. in his name was because he was named after his grandfather whose name was Isaac Darrow, and having been named after him, subsequent to his death he placed the D. in his name and has ever since written it Isaac D. Pardee."

On 6 Aug. 1856 he appeared before the Court at Naples, Ontario County, N. Y., aged 62, and made an affidavit; Amos Pardee, aged 40, and Cynthia Pardee, aged 38, signed as substantiating witnesses; his claim for Bounty Land was No. 254,404. In 1871 he filed a new declaration, aged 78, residence Springwater, Livingston County, N. Y., post office address North Cohocton, Steuben County, N. Y., and swears that he received a Land Warrant for 160 acres (Warrant No. 62,049); that his short service was due to illness, that he was confined in Bellevue Hospital, was carried on a litter from the hospital to the boat and was taken home by his father at Newburgh, Orange County, N. Y.; that he is married, and his wife's name was Laura Roberts to whom he was married at Amenia in December 1815. Ruth Doyle and George Lamont appeared with Isaac Pardee, 4 Apr. 1871.

In 1878 he was living in Wayland, Steuben County, N. Y., as a letter from his son A. J. Pardee attests; a letter from Isaac states that he left the section of New York in which he served, in 1815, and adds, "I hope you will have patience to try to read this. My old hand almost refuses to guide the pen." His claim for a pension was admitted 1 May 1878, $8.00 per month.

From the foregoing, it seems probable that he was son of Thomas Pardee who married Susannah Darrow at Amenia in 1791. About the time of Isaac's war service, his father appears to have settled in Newburgh, but since no Pardees are listed in that town in the Census of 1820, the above statement may merely mean that his father met the boat at Newburgh and took him home to Amenia from there. He was certainly in Amenia the following year, when he married. Isaac D. Pardee was listed in the U. S. Census of 1820 as a farmer of Antwerp, Jefferson County, N. Y., his family consisting of 2 males aged 16 to 26, 1 female 16 to 26, and 2 males and 1 female under 10 years. He and his family settled in a section where the corners of Livingston, Steuben, and Ontario Counties adjoin.

He was in the "Gold Rush" to California in 1849, it taking eight months to reach there sailing around Cape Horn. After working in the mines, he settled in Jone Valley, where he had a fruit ranch. In 1868 he settled in San Diego County, where he was a farmer and apiarist. He was a Presbyterian.

A letter which he wrote from San Francisco in 1849 is very interesting, and a verbatim copy follows:

San Francisco,

Nov. 13th, 1849.

Dear Brother,

I did expect to send you a letter from Valporaiso but owing to some delay of steamer neglected it. On our first starting we were all more or less sea sick for a week or so. On the 8th we had a gale which was very majestic the waves running very high and our meals much interrupted by the dishes chasing their contents over the table and floor. 12th 6 P. M. one of the steerage passengers fell dead upon the deck from rupter of a blood vessel, name Sam Staussi, N. J. Same night an old man of 60 years taken ill as from the effects of a heavy dose of opium and died 1 A. M. the 14th. The corps of Mr. Staussi was committed to the deep on the 13th and that of Mr. Vincent on the 14th.

After taking the sun found Latitude 13 degrees 15 minutes North Lon. 44 degrees 38 min. W. 16th calm and get our sea legs equal to most sailors. Seen a few ships and passed finally down to 20 degrees N. Caught the N. E. trade. Have fine run to the equator crossed (can't make this out) April 5th, which you know I must remember almost as well as the old woman can the great snow storm 42 years ago.

We have three lady passengers one weighing 283 lbs. We run out the S. E. trade with fine weather but between 40 degrees S. L. and Statten Land we had a long disagreeable time. For 67 days almost gale upon gale with head winds driven off N. & E. of the Falkland Islands. And on the 17th of June in a severe gale 4 P. M. a sea boarded us fore and aft carrying away our sail in many places, opening galley door and washing cooks and stewards out on deck, opening hatch and pouring down torrents of water in after cabin and yet our proud little barque gently rose from the deluging wave and shook herself in preperation for the like again. Now a gale is like the murmuring voices of many waters swelled out from the depths of the stern old ocean that with petulant tossing to and fro seem wroth with winds that vex them. July first heard joyful news of land which proved to be Statten Land. It was principally covered with snow and at one P. M. stood away with increasing breeze and the morning of the 4th found us S. L. 50 degrees W. L. 81 degrees. The sun is only visible 7 hours 38 min. but as short as it was we tried to celebrate by an oration from a young man from Baltimore with what other conveniences we had on board so that the day passed off quite lively. Every countenance wore a smile. The hour passed in safety was as much as any thing to produce it.

I must pass over the wonders of the sea. 27th again heard the cry of land. 28th had full view of the towering Andes off Valparaiso. 29th dropped anchor 2 P. M. This place is situated in a small bay principally upon the side of a large hill cut into gullies. But few good houses principally belonging to foreigners. The natives of the place living in miserable huts or habitations, little or no furniture, retaining their old habits, etc. They are mixed of natives, Negroes and Spaniards.

Left Valparaiso 26th of Aug. Enjoyed pleasant passage arriving off San Francisco harbor Oct. 30th and entered it on the morning of the 31st. By accident was drifted by the tide upon Bird Island 10 A. M. founded away there unshipping our rudder till 11 P. M. high tide worked off and Nov. 1st 10 A. M. dropped anchor in our destined port, having been 8 months on our passage. Some feel vexed with the conduct of the captain but to say nothing of that I feel grateful to a kind providence that we have escaped the many dangers of a long and perilous sea voyage.

As for San Francisco it is beautifully situated at the head and around a large curve of the bay gradually rising upon rolling ground perfectly dry a little way from the beach and generally sandy. As for the bay it is picturesque beyond description, studded with numbers of small islands and surrounded with a mountainous country producing a contrast which is indescribable.

I will say to you as you did to me you had better not come altho you could feast your eyes with nature if you were here and in all probability acquire wealth to your satisfaction. Still a calm contented mind is wealth enough. I will give you some of our prices: butter 6/-8/lb, Pork $50 bbl., Flour $40, Beef 2/lb, board $12 to $16 a week, rent from 8 by 10 houses $50 per month. One common tavern rents for $25000 a year. Many things have raised much in two weeks. Flour Nov. 1st was $16, Pork $25. The manner of business is a lesson. Perfectly independent, no Jewing, no throwing in smiles for change. And as respects the outlawery of the place I never was in a place where things were so safe, as chests, boxes, loose goods and garments are secure any where out or in doors. Judge Lynch has completely paralyzed all dishonesty. Fire arms are worth but little. We have an election today for or against the constitution.

A part of our company have gone to the Southern mines and as soon as we can get our provision from the vessel we shall leave for the mines up the San Joaquin river called the Southern digin's. There being more snow and more bare ground. I will write you so far as I see for myself, yet there is no doubt there is more gold than be dug for many years with great profit. Still good as far south as has been proved. Should I have my health and succeed in my enterprise I may want you to send me a small lot of cheese which is now retailing at 4/per lb. I brought two from New York which kept well and by taking those of small size and well cured, put in tin cases there would be no danger of their spoiling.

Yours respectfully,

R. S. PARDEE.

Keep writing. Dont wait for me to write.

we embarked on a steamboat and came to St. Louis, Mo., where we disembarked and started on in our spring wagon, stopping at farm houses and taverns. When near Independence, Mo., Father left the family at a farm house, while he went to Kansas City to look up the title of some land he had got on track of, which had been taken up by some southern men in 1856, intending to make Kansas a slave State, and had made some improvements. The northerners changed the program and they sold their improvements. Father bought 160 acres with a small log cabin on it, and some ground plowed. That same Spring, the lands were thrown on the market, there were three or four men to every quarter section of 160 acres, and the only way Father had of making a living for his family was with his team and wagon, taking men from one place to another, and to the land office where they had to go to file their claims.

"At times we would have very little to eat, and our corn bread was made with hot water flavored with salt. I remember taking a piece and going out with a pinch of salt and getting wild onions to eat with it. When weeds came on, we had greens, with bacon for a change. In the year 1860 we had the drouth and we had to take what we could get. Leaving the place, we went to Paola, where Father could earn a little. Then came the grasshoppers, and then the Civil War, when all loyal men had to either go North or South. Father was one of the North, he was soon made Captain of Co. H, 7th Kansas. He was called a brave soldier, was wounded in his right forefinger which disabled him from shooting. I well remember how mad he would get when he would hurt that finger. In later years, he went west and went to farming and stock raising, and lived to up in years. I am the eldest child and am now past 81 years."

He served as Captain of Co. H, 7th Kansas Cavalry, succeeding Capt. Marshall Cleveland of jayhawker fame, who had organized the Company; resigned 15 May 1862. He was buried in The Soldier's Circle in the cemetery at Kiowa by the G. A. R.

261. EDWIN⁶ PARDEE (Joseph,⁵ Joseph,⁴ Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Orange, 6 Oct. 1805, died at Bethany, 5 Nov. 1887; married at Bethany, 14 May 1835, CAROLINE PRINCE, born at Bethany, 5 Nov. 1812, died there 28 Mar. 1895, daughter of Abel Prince.

After receiving the rudiments of education in the Orange district school, he appears to have worked in his youth as a farm hand in Bethany. After his marriage to Caroline Prince, he settled on the Prince farm, which he eventually bought and added to it as he prospered. The house was ancient and of the usual New England plan and style.

His nephew writes: "Here Edwin and Caroline began married life and here they died of old age. To the one of poetical turn the Bethany venture was more than interesting, it was productive of pure happiness. With Uncle Edwin's geniality and equipoise, his love of the beautiful in nature, his vigorous health and his tendency to a simply religious life, his success was assured. Hard work meant nothing to him. Stony fields became smooth meadows enclosed by stone fences, forests furnished hickory, oak and maple, beech and chestnut. Walnuts, chestnuts, and maple sugar were easily to be had. A winding brooklet on the east was paralleled by a bigger brook rushing crazily over the stones on the west in the valley. Pastures, mostly a mass of stones and marsh, somehow afforded a living for a fair head of stock. The farm improved, and outbuildings came. Sundays this conscientious Christian in clean simple dress walked his three miles to church at Bethany Center, for horses must not work Sunday. The roses of summer and the cherries, or the winter storms, were enjoyed as they came. The winter blizzards blew and drifts piled, the roaring open fire invigorated and cheered. For such as he his Bethany home was a very Eden, from which of a day one could jog to New Haven, enter the whirl of business activity for an instant, and gladly return to quiet and serenity.

Children, born at Bethany:

After her first marriage she developed into a business woman and was an efficient aid to her husband. She was a woman of unusual poise and little ever disturbed her serenity. Her second marriage took her to East Granby, Mass., where after her husband's death she was fondly cared for by his relatives. She had a taste for reading and collected something of a library.

262. SIDNEY⁶ PARDEE (Joseph,⁵ Joseph,⁴ Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Orange, 27 May 1810, died at Cuddebackville, N. Y., 18 Nov. 1891; married at Milford, Conn., 15 May 1833, ELIZA LUCRETIA DOWNS, born at Milford, 20 Aug. 1813, died at East Haven, 21 Oct. 1881, daughter of John and Sarah Downs.

Brought up as a farm boy in Orange, Conn., he received the usual meagre schooling and then learned the shoemaker's trade. He lived for several years at the toll gate on the Milford turnpike, first working at shoemaking, but later, after his health had begun to suffer, working at farming. He managed an 80 acre farm and also ran a slaughtering and meat selling business. In time there was a meat shop in New Haven, he slaughtering one day, selling meat the next, and caring for the farm afternoons as he could. He and his family attended the old Congregational Church in West Haven, Sidney being Deacon and Sunday School superintendent. There were also terms of public office in West Haven.

He developed tuberculosis of the lungs, and had hemorrhages, and by 1856 he was hardly able to sit up all day. Business had to stop. In this situation, nearly dying of consumption and with his income cut off, his resourcefulness and courageous spirit pulled him through. He removed with all his family except his son Frank to St. Peter, Minn., where he worked a farm and recovered his health.

He was deeply religious and had strong faith in the power of prayer to heal the sick, and was able to refer to his own case in proof. In 1867, after the death of his daughter Emma, he returned to New Haven a well man and somewhat prosperous. For a short time he was interested in a brass fitting business, and then spent three years in Huntington, Conn., on a farm, and later settled in East Haven. The pastor of the East Haven Congregational Church says that he was notable for his kindly concern for the welfare of all who came within his reach.

263. MERRITT⁶ PARDEE (Joseph,⁵ Joseph,⁴ Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at Orange, 29 Nov. 1815, died there 28 Mar. 1874; married at Orange, in 1864,* AMANDA (ESTLER[†]) FRANCIS, born in Louisiana‡ 4 July 1844, died at Orange, 14 July 1913, widow of Charles(?) Francis.

He was a farmer, of Orange, Conn., where he remained with his parents on the old homestead. After his father's death in 1863, his mother being aged, it was found necessary to employ help in the house, and the services of Mrs. Francis were secured. She was a young widow of 20, of French parentage, who had lost her husband in the Civil War. Mr. Pardee, then a bachelor of 48 years, fell in love with her, and a romance developed, which culminated in a happy though brief married life of 10 years. Mrs. Pardee survived her husband for nearly 40 years; she possessed a friendly and amiable disposition, which endeared her to her neighbors.

Merritt received the elementary education then usual in rural districts, and excelled in spelling. Until the death of his parents he was their mainstay, his father being handicapped by a serious ailment and his mother being unable to walk because of an accident.

His nephew, Walter Stone Pardee, lived in Merritt's home in his boyhood, and writes of him: "He was fond of perfecting processes, doing work to perfection, and he had the faculty of investing his duties with an interest that went far toward making them light and enjoyable. In a quiet way he was social with me, sometimes telling of pleasant happenings and describing interesting kinds of work. How he could swing the ax! Stumps were cut level and clean. Mowing! Never a ridge left between his wide swarths. Raking! He left the meadow clean. Hay pitching! No load that ever he placed slid off. Plowing! Ox team! Furrows straight and clean turned. Hoeing! He was a marvel at it.

"True to the old way of the homespun age, every farm act was done, and the simple pastimes must be according to the old method. There was work in summer on the salt meadows for salt hay to be put in the barn loft for the winter stock, the cattle eating it with great relish. He and I had our clamming days at Milford, got long clams and round clams. We went eeling in the home brook or spearing eels in the salt water at Milford.

"Of a summer afternoon we roamed the brier-beset pastures and got into the fence corners for blackberries, and gingerly I, a barefoot boy, helped him pick up chestnuts of a Fall day, or I climbed the walnut trees to shake down the nuts. True, there was some work to be done but we were strong; and I had four years of roaming over some forty acres, some of the time as a playground.

"On a snowy winter day he would thresh the rye, the flail swinging with admirable precision. Those were the days of 'Changing works,' neighbors helping, to be helped in return. Such times! Such hoeings! The horse cultivator hardly was known.

"Uncle Merritt was apt to work out at times for the neighbors as his diaries show. He was fond of music and played the flute in the village church choir."

and Wealthy (Alling) Clark; married third, at Minneapolis, Minn., 3 Oct. 1867,* HATTIE EMILY HARWOOD, born 14 Dec. 1838, died at Minneapolis, Minn., in January 1887, daughter of Aaron and Susan (Gifford) Harwood; she married, second, at Spring Valley, Minn., in 1872, Albert M. Alden.

At the age of 14 he was apprenticed to George Hoadley, carriage-maker, whose shop was on the northwest corner of Church and Crown Streets in New Haven, Conn. Here he worked at wood sawing from three in the morning until breakfast, opened the shop at seven, and worked in it week days and evenings until ten, with a short time for meals out. After seven years of apprenticeship he worked ten years as journeyman in the same shop and then founded his own business. He contracted with two partners that the three should spend ten hours a day at the bench in their special branch of the trade. The carriage shop, of which some of the buildings were standing in 1924, was along the alley just beyond Dwight Street between Edgewood Avenue and Elm Street. The business prospered.

Meantime he had married, and what little leisure he could command was spent in attempts to improve his meagre education and in church work. Converted before he was 14, he was deeply religious and continually spent his spare moments in some kind of Christian work, whether in the church, in the Sunday school, in the New Haven jail, or in the home. His workmen in the shop were invited to weekly prayer meetings in his house.

His wife died suddenly, leaving him crushed, with a three-year-old son to care for. From being the life of the social gathering he became the silent mourner. To find relief from his grief, he plunged all the more impetuously into the work of his expanding business. After a year and a half he married again and went to live on Edgewood Avenue, then called Martin Street. He had been fond of the flute, and now again he played it, paid social calls and began to recover his normal spirits. His health was breaking, however, under the strain of many years of overwork. Business cares were increased by the 1857 panic, and the carriage business was much injured by the outbreak of the Civil War. He developed a cough and his wife was suffering from tuberculosis. Early in 1862 he sold his interest in the business to his partners and went to Minnesota, where his brother Sidney was then recovering his health, accompanied by his wife and little girl, his son being left with relatives on the farm in Orange.

* No children by third wife, but she had three children by her second husband (Alden),—Lyman, Hattie, and Ruth.

He settled at length on a farm in St. Anthony, where his son joined him in 1866. He then removed to Minneapolis, where his wife died within a year. Left with two young children, and he himself in a critical condition, he married again for the sake of his children, and died a few months later.

His boyhood and early manhood were spent on his father's farm near Sudlersville, Queen Anne Co., Md., and he attended the schools open to those able to pay. His father dying shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War, and he being the eldest son, he became the head of the family and carried on the farm. This he later bought at the high prices brought on by the war, when wheat was $3.00 a bushel. In the depression that followed, when wheat dropped to 50¢ a bushel, he was unable to pay the mortgage, which was foreclosed, and he lost the place. He became agent for the Queen Anne and Kent Railroad at the old station at Sudlersville, and afterwards followed other occupations for the support of his family.

He was never financially successful beyond the ownership of a modest home and the ability to give his children a good education. He possessed an intensely religious nature, a philosophical turn of mind, and a love of fairness and justice. At the age of 17, he was superintendent of a Methodist Sunday School, and a class leader in the Church. He was always active in church and patriotic lodge work, and for the cause of temperance. He was often called on to settle disputes among friends who preferred his arbitration to going to law. He exerted a strong influence for good on his children, one of whom states: "To me his memory is as fragrant as the Rose of Sharon, and more precious than any other fortune he could have endowed me with."

His wife belonged to a prominent family, her forebears having been early Jamestown settlers, and later with Claiborne's trading post on Kent Isle, prior to the settlement of Maryland by Lord Baltimore's colonists.

He was a farmer, and resided for sixty-six years on the same farm in Bowne, Kent County, Mich.

"He was noted for his honesty and square-dealing in business, but used to relate one amusing incident which he regretted, as he thought he did not do right. When he bought the farm on which he lived sixty-six years, the whole region hereabouts was covered with a heavy forest, and instead of timber being of value it was worth a great deal to get the timber cut and burned up to get rid of it. There was a neighbor who had bought an adjoining tract of forest land and had moved in and was also clearing his timber. This neighbor was not very popular among the new settlers and was a very close-fisted man who was always inclined to want the best of the dealings he had with his neighbors, at least so much that he was looked upon as being a little bit dishonest. In those days there were many honey bees here and the settlers would usually hunt bee trees and it was then an unwritten law that the person who located a bee tree and blazed the side of the tree or marked it so that it was known to be a bee tree had a valid claim to the tree no matter where it might be located, on his own premises or elsewhere. Mr. Pardee located a tree on this neighbor's land and he surmised the man would try to find out just where the tree was and would then refuse to let him cut it unless there was a division of the honey. It was customary then to go ahead and cut trees of this kind without consulting the owner but Mr. Pardee would not do this unless he got the owner's permission. In this instance he omitted to blaze or mark the tree before asking permission to cut it and he had a reason for it. He went to see the man and as he expected the man plied him with questions with the object of getting the location of the tree and then refused to let him cut it; not that he wished to save the tree, but he thought he would cut it himself and take the honey. Mr. Pardee was wise enough to tell him of a very large oak tree in another part of the woods which he had slipped around and hewn off a large spot and written his name thereon so it could be readily found; he then went home and awaited results. A day or two later he heard an ax in that locality which continued nearly a whole day and along towards night he heard the tree fall. He walked through the woods a few days later and found his "bee" tree on the ground and there wasn't a hole in the tree from the butt to the tip top. The neighbor never mentioned the matter to Mr. Pardee or any one else."

Elliott. She married secondly, 26 Mar. 1898, William Karns of Palo Alto, Calif.

He was a physician, specializing in diseases of the eye, ear, nose, and throat. He was a boy when his father removed to Howell, Mich., and settled for a time in Pontiac, Mich. He took his first course of medical lectures in Ann Arbor, Mich., and subsequently graduated at the Rush Medical College, Ill. Locating in San Francisco in 1852, he made diseases of the eye and ear a specialty. About 1869 he located in Oakland, and became a member of the State Medical Board and of the Alameda County Society. For five years he was a member of the Oakland City Council, and in 1871-2 represented Alameda County in the State Legislature, and was elected Mayor of Oakland in 1875, serving for two terms in this office. In 1880, he served in the California Senate.

His son writes of his parents as follows:*

"My Father came to California early in '51, after partially completing a course in medicine at Ann Arbor, lured by the prospect of a quickly and easily obtained fortune, which he limited to $5,000; having gotten which, he, as all his contemporaries of those days did, proposed to return to 'the States,' marry the girl of his choice, my Mother, and settle down to the practice of his profession.

"He was a man of broad vision, interested in all the questions that confronted the people of the country, his State and his community during his long and active life. He was outspoken in his opinions, but tolerant of the opinions of others. He was warm in his friendships and always quick to defend his friends, of whom he had many in all walks of life. He was brave and determined, and never ran away from a foe. As an oculist and aurist, he was very successful. As a business man, he had good judgment. In politics, he was, first, an ardent Abolitionist, and then, until the end of his life, a consistent Republican, but, in no sense of the word, a thick-and-thin partisan. He was, during the pre-war times never afraid to talk for the abolition of the slaves. During the war, he was active in all matters looking to the success of the North. He was a member of the Vigilance Committee of '56, in San Francisco, but that fact did not seem to alienate from him such of those who had previously been his grateful patients and admiring friends, but who, for other reasons, fell under the Committee's ban.

"Soon after we came to Oakland, in 1867, he was sent to the State

* Some of Dr. Pardee's early experiences in California are recounted in "The California Pioneers of '49," by George C. Pardee, in the University of California Chronicle for January 1924, reprinted in Appendix IV of this volume.

Assembly from Alameda County; soon afterward, he was elected to the City Council of Oakland, and then Mayor. In 1880, he was sent to the State Senate. He was Master of Oakland Lodge of Masons, in which position I followed him twenty years later. He was a Knight Templar, as I am. Always did he enjoy the respect and esteem even of those against whom he arrayed himself—which, on occasion, he never hesitated to do.

“He was a ready, engaging and forceful public speaker, an omnivorous reader, abstemious in all his habits. One of his hobbies—he had several—was rifle shooting, which he pursued with scientific interest. He had a reputation, throughout the State and the Nation, as a marksman. In 1866, he made, in a match-shoot, a target which, I believe, has never been excelled. He thoroughly enjoyed a ‘turkey-shoot.’ Every Thanksgiving and Christmas he furnished a dozen or more of his friends, to whom turkey was a luxury, a bird apiece, thus achieved.

“The following anecdote will illustrate the manners and customs of the early San Francisco days: In 1854, my Father, in a semi-public political speech, said something that aroused the ire of a Southern leader. The latter sent a friend to my Father demanding an apology. My Father not only refused to apologise but profanely added fuel to the fire. His visitor replied that that, of course, meant the demanding of the satisfaction that an insulted gentleman had a custom-established right to expect from his insulter. My Father, saying that, as a Northern man, he was opposed to duelling, delivered this message: ‘Tell your principal that I didn’t tell half the truth about him, but will tell the rest of it on the first occasion that offers; which will be soon. Tell him also that I’ll bet him a thousand dollars that he will not challenge me; that I’ll bet him another thousand that, if he does challenge me, I’ll accept it; that I’ll bet him another thousand that, if he challenges me, he won’t appear on the field; that I’ll bet him another thousand that, if he does appear, I’ll kill him. For, if he does challenge me, I, being the challenged party, will have the choice of weapons, and will choose rifles at a hundred yards.’ The messenger, knowing my Father’s skill with a rifle, departed, saying, ‘That would be murder,’ and the challenge never came. I got this story partly from my Father and partly from a friend of his who happened to be present when the messenger delivered his message to my Father.

“My Father was very charitable. He never passed a blind mendicant without leaving something in his cup. The other day a white haired man introduced himself to me and told how, when he was a small boy, helping to support a widowed mother, my Father, as Mayor of Oakland, not only gave him a free license to peddle peanuts, but also left with him an order to deliver a quarter's worth of peanuts at our house twice a week—and my Father did not like peanuts at all—but I did, and remember, very indistinctly, the plenitude of peanuts that, for a long time, was at my command.

“Practically always, during his years of practice as an oculist, there was at least one of his patients whose board and lodging my Father paid for, besides treating him or her gratuitously. And, when he turned the practice over to me, in 1892, I found, in his books many, many thousands of dollars worth of entries with this note: ‘Too poor to pay.’ He had been poor himself.

“He was genial, frank, profane in his conversation. But his profanity did not drive away from him cultured men and women, who seemed not to hear his swear-words, while they delighted in his geniality and whole-heartedness. He was popular with, respected by, sought after by ministers of the Gospel, of all denominations, up to the day of his death, although he was not a member of or an attendant on any church—but none of them appealed to him in vain for aid and assistance. Annually, for more than thirty years, he went hunting and camping; and generally there was in the party a gentleman or two of the cloth, who enjoyed his company and did not hesitate to repeat the adventure. Although profane, he was never vulgar or obscene in his conversation. A very devout preacher told me, after my Father's death, that he had rather be sworn at by him than blessed by a lot of people he knew. He was a warm friend of education, and did much, in and out of the State Legislature, to lay broad and deep the foundation upon which our State University, now having 10,000 students, male and female, now rests. Everywhere I go in this State, I meet men and women, in all walks of life, who knew my Father and express to me, his son, their love and admiration for him and his memory.

“As a boy, youth and young man, my Father, like most Americans in his walk of life in those days, received very little school-education. But experience taught him many things—and, like all Californians of his time, he had much experience. He fully recognized and realized the value of booklore, and compelled me, when, as it sometimes was, it was necessary, to go through the high school, the University and to make my medical degree abroad. Always was he willing, even eager, to help, financially and otherwise, young men and women who earnestly sought education. Here in Oakland his passing is still mourned, after twenty years, by his surviving contemporaries in all walks of life. One of my greatest joys is to be informed by those who knew him that it's too bad that his son isn't as good a man as he was.

"My Mother was a woman of calm judgment, of broad culture, of great human sympathy, of a philosophical turn of mind. She was widely read, a student of history. She could quote Shakespeare by the hour—but did not unless the occasion called for it; in other words, she was not pedantic, but had, to a large degree, the saving sense of humor. She knew the history of our country and was acquainted with its politics in the broad sense of that word, although, as was common in her day, she had had but little schooling. Nothing delighted my Father more than to start, in her presence, a political discussion with some good Democratic friend and then back gracefully out of the argument and leave my Mother to finish it—as she generally did to the discomfiture of her opponent.

"In 1904, the Grand Army of the Republic held its annual encampment in San Francisco. Because of my then official position, I was on the reviewing stand. Soon, an old man dropped out of the passing procession, seated himself on the grandstand steps and asked for a drink of water. I handed it to him. Then he asked: 'Is Governor Pardee here?' I pleaded guilty. Then he asked: 'Are you the son of Edward Pardee, of Cuyahoga Falls?' I told him that Edward was my Uncle, my Mother's brother. 'Why, then,' he said, 'you must be Mary Pardee's son.' I told him I was. He then told me his name was John Brown. I looked blank. He added: 'John Brown's son.' That didn't mean anything to me, either, until he added: 'John Brown, of Ossawottamie.' Then I knew; for I had heard my Mother tell stories about Old John Brown and the Underground Railway, one of the Stations of which was near where she lived as a girl. And, as you can imagine, John Brown's son and I had quite a love feast, he speaking so kindly and affectionately of my Mother, whom he had known at Cuyahoga Falls, when they were both in their 'teens.

"The next year, I spent a couple of weeks in the California building at the Portland, Ore., Exposition. Every day, for a week, I was told about an old man who had called to see me when I was out. Finally, he captured me. He, too, was curious to know if I was connected with the Cuyahoga Pardees. When I told him my Mother was Mary Pardee, he said he knew her when she was a girl; and introduced himself as another son of that John Brown whose soul still goes marching on in this nation. This son of Old John Brown also spoke of my Mother with warm admiration. She died, early in the '70s, when I was a little lad. But, even now, after fifty years, in my journeys about the State, I find, now and then, old Californians, men and women, in all walks of life, who knew her, and are glad to see me because they knew and loved her.

"Not blind to her own faults, she had, as my Father had, a large human sympathy with and patience for the faults of others. Her hand was always open, her sympathies always ready. Several times in my life, I have heard of people, speaking of me, saying that, having such a Father and Mother, I had everything in my favor—and I agree thoroughly with that statement. It really is a great thing to be the son of California Pioneers. They were the pick-and-choice of the young people of this Nation and the world, as I say in 'The California Pioneers of '49.' They were the best of their kind, no matter how good or how bad they were. For, it required sturdy, determined, brave people to pull up stakes and even start for the then practically unknown California, to say nothing of facing the difficulties and perils that beset the journey, by land or sea, hitherward. What young woman of these days would, as my Mother did, journey alone, under all the difficulties that faced a journey of so many thousands of miles, to marry the man of her choice? Yet she was merely a sample of the women who had so much to do with making California what it is to-day. The following, one of a number of similar anecdotes concerning her, will show how much sense my Mother had: In my first real fight, at the age of seven, I got licked. With a bleeding nose, I ran, sobbing with rage and pain and wounded pride, into her presence, seeking comfort for my outraged feelings. She was reading the Atlantic Monthly. I ran to her. She looked up and asked me what the matter was. I started to tell her, but she merely said: 'Hadn't you better go and wash your face?'—and returned to her reading. I washed. She then took me, my rage abated, in her lap and enquired about the particulars of the scrap. I told her. She then discussed the matter calmly with me, without any recriminations of my late opponent, without any preaching at me, only making it plain that fighting wasn't a nice thing to indulge in; but that, if a fight became necessary, to put up the best fight one possibly could—but always to fight fair. And—do you know?—I know as well as I know anything, that when I appeared all bloody, all her Mother's instinct went out to me and demanded that she should take me in her arms and smooth my ruffled plumage. But her good sense prevented her from doing that. And, during the few years that she was with me, she was always my understanding guide, counsellor and friend, as was my Father."

She married second, Samuel Edwards.

He became an enterprising merchant in Milwaukee, and extended his operations into southern Wisconsin in the valleys of the Fox and Wisconsin Rivers. In the Fall of 1848, he sent one of his agents, Reuben Stedman, who built a store near the southern shore of the mill pond, a water power site which was the birthplace of Pardeeville. In April 1849 Mr. Stedman was succeeded by Yates Ashley, a native of New York, a surveyor and merchant, who had been several years in business in Milwaukee. He not only sold Mr. Pardee's goods, but kept the books, got out timber for projected grist mills, and put everything into operation before the end of the year. The town owes its origin to the capital of Mr. Pardee and the energy of Mr. Ashley. The latter bought a quarter interest in the mills in 1855, and later in that year married Mr. Pardee's sister Virginia; he was afterwards Postmaster and for many years mail agent at Pardeeville of the C., M. & St. P. R. R., besides representing his district in the Assembly during the Civil War.

In July 1850, Mr. Pardee plotted a portion of the land he had acquired, and subsequently settled in Pardeeville. He was appointed U. S. Minister to Nicaragua and died there.

HON. DON ALBERT PARDEE
(No. 352)

352. DON ALBERT⁷ PARDEE (Aaron,⁶ Ebenezer,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ Ebenezer,³ George,² *George*¹), born at Wadsworth, Ohio, 29 Mar. 1837, died at Atlanta, Ga., 26 Sept. 1919; married first, 3 Feb. 1861, JULIA E. HARD; married second, 14 June 1898, FRANCES (CUNNINGHAM) WELLS, who is living (1924) in Atlanta, Ga.

He was educated at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, from 1854 to 1857; resigned and studied law. Upon admission to the bar in 1859, he practiced in Medina, Ohio, for the next two years.

He enlisted 27 Oct. 1861 in the 42d Ohio Volunteers and was commissioned Major; was with his regiment three years, being promoted to Lt. Colonel, 14 Mar. 1862; discharged in 1864, brevetted Brigadier General "for gallant and meritorious services during the war."

He resumed the practice of law in New Orleans in 1865. He was appointed Register in Bankruptcy in 1867, and was Judge of the 2d Judicial District of Louisiana from 1868 to 1880. He was a delegate to the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1879, and was Republican candidate for Attorney-General in 1880. He was appointed U. S. Circuit Judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit in May 1881.

He removed to Atlanta, Ga., in June 1898, and spent the rest of his life there. An excellent summary of his life, character, and career is given in the Resolution passed by the Atlanta Bar Association after his death. A copy reads as follows:

"MAY IT PLEASE THE COURT:

"On the morning of Sept. 26th, 1919, the date of Judge Pardee's death, the Atlanta Bar Association met in this building and appointed the undersigned, a Committee, to prepare such resolutions with reference to his life and services as might be deemed appropriate. This Committee, in pursuance of its duty, has prepared the following, which, according to its instructions, it now presents with the request that your Honors, by proper order, will direct to be entered on the minutes of this Court of which Judge Pardee was so long the Senior Judge:

"Don Albert Pardee was born in Wadsworth, Medina County, Ohio, on the 29th day of March, 1837. His father, Aaron Pardee, was a practicing lawyer of that place and was a native of Marcellus (now Skaneateles), N. Y., and his mother, Evelyn Eyles Pardee, was a native of Kent, Litchfield County, Connecticut.

"Judge Pardee received his early education in the common schools of Medina County, Ohio, and later, in 1854, entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, and continued his work there until 1857, when he resigned because of ill health and returned to his native town and began the study of law in his father's office. He was admitted to the practice of law in Medina County, Ohio, 1859.

"On February 3rd, 1861, he was married to Miss Julia E. Hard of Wadsworth, Ohio. When the war between the states began, he felt called upon to abandon his professional career, just begun, and to enlist as a volunteer in the Forty-second Ohio Regiment of Infantry, of which he was on October 27th, 1861, commissioned as Major. On March 14th, 1862, he was made Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment and on March 13th, 1865, he was brevetted Colonel of Volunteers and Brigadier-General of Volunteers "for gallant and meritorious services during the war." President James A. Garfield was the first Colonel of his regiment and the late General Lionel A. Sheldon was its first Lieutenant-Colonel. Col. Pardee served under General Garfield in the campaign of Sandy Valley, under General Morgan at Cumberland Gap and under General Cox in the Kanawha Valley campaign.

"In the fall of 1862, his regiment was transferred to the army of the Mississippi, where he won merited praise for his valour, and skillful leadership at Vicksburg and Port Gibson. On May 19th and May 22nd, 1862, Colonel Pardee led his regiment in an attack on the works at Vicksburg and distinguished himself for courage and coolness, and at Port Gibson for meritorious services, he was promoted to the position of Inspector General on the staff of General McClelland.

"In Louisiana, in September, 1863, while on the sick and convalescent list, Colonel Pardee was appointed Provost-Marshal of Baton Rouge, in which position he served for about one year. Toward the close of the Civil War, in December, 1864, the Forty-second Ohio went to Arkansas, where it was mustered out of service.

"In January, 1865, Colonel Pardee went to New Orleans and made that place his home and resumed there the practice of his profession. He was appointed Register in Bankruptcy in 1867 and in 1868 he was elected Judge of the Second Judicial District Court of Louisiana, with jurisdiction over Jefferson, St. Bernard and Plaquemine Parishes. He was elected to this position for three successive terms of four years each and thus held it for twelve years.

"He was elected a member of the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1879, defeating the Hon. Jas. B. Eustis for that position.

"In 1880, at the expiration of his last term, as Judge in the state of Louisiana, he became his party's candidate for the Attorney-generalship of that state. On May 13th, 1881, President Garfield appointed him Judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Fifth Circuit, comprising the states of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

"On June 14th, 1898, Judge Pardee was married to his second wife, Mrs. Frances Cunningham Wells of Atlanta, who survives him. After June, 1898, he made Atlanta his home.

"He led his class at Annapolis, and he continued to be a leader throughout his life, but he was best known as a judge. His judicial career is quite a notable one in many respects. It was begun in a state where the Civil Law prevailed, whereas his legal education was in a Common Law state. He went to Louisiana with the Federal army and necessarily met the antagonisms that a suffering people always manifest toward an overpowering, invading enemy, and to undertake under these circumstances, to pass upon their rights of life, liberty and property presented difficulties from which any man would have shrunk except one who was perfectly conscious of the power to see the right, and of a fixed purpose to do it. If fears at first existed that he was not sufficiently in sympathy with the country over which his jurisdiction extended, they soon passed away and in a short time he had the confidence and respect of the Bar and the people. Resolutions concerning him, recently adopted by the Bar of New Orleans, contain the statement that "no complaints were ever heard that he had neglected the law of Louisiana for the Common law in which he had been educated." His appointment to the Federal Bench opened a field that was quite new to him but he again met the demands made upon his ability, and his temper as a judge. During his service, many of our railroads were compelled to pass through receiverships, many of which were administered by Judge Pardee as Circuit Judge, and in this work he showed very marked ability. He was as well informed as to the rules and practice pertaining to such matters as any of the able judges that have graced our Federal Bench. His judicial work covered an unusually long period. He served as United States Judge more than thirty-eight years. His opinions begin with the Eighth Volume of the Federal Reporter and continue, without a break, up to and including the Two Hundred and Fifty-eighth volume.

"All the judges who with him composed the first United States Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Fifth Circuit, organized in 1891, and all the judges who were members of the United States Supreme Court at that time, preceded him to the grave, most of them by many years. For a long time, he was the oldest in commission of any of the Circuit or other U. S. Judges. The oldest commission held by any Circuit Judge was younger than Judge Pardee's commission, at the time of his death, by more than ten years. And yet, to the end, he performed his duties with wonderful constancy; and his last conscious moment, which preceded his last breath by only a few hours, was spent in his office in this building in attending to his duties pertaining to the coming session of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of the Fifth Circuit.

"During the more than fifty years he was on the State and Federal Bench, he never committed or tried a lawyer for contempt. In a short note found among his papers, written more than seven years ago, appears the following characteristic statement in his hand-writing:

'For thirty-one years I have been officially connected with twenty-nine district judges, and two other circuit judges, and we have not only kept the peace, but our personal relations have always been friendly. During all these years spent on the State and Federal Bench, my relations with the Bar have been cordial generally, always friendly.'

"These words will touch a sympathetic chord in the hearts of his brethren of the Bench and Bar for they show that he wished them to know after he had gone, that in life he prized his association with them and their friendship for him.

"It has been said that he tried many cases involving great principles and very large amounts, and he was reversed less than the average and not often by a unanimous Court.

"He believed in popular Government and he made it a rule to cast his ballot in all elections for candidates who seemed to him to be most deserving, but as a judge, he would not permit himself to be driven, or moved by popular excitement. He believed in the right of property, and he would not allow its title to be transferred from one to another in his Court, except by the established rules of law and the well recognized principles of equity.

"As a Judge, his method was to hear with patience and attention, and after careful study, to decide clearly and with firmness. He possessed, in a marked degree, the capacity to arrive at once at the point involved, and speedily to get rid of all irrelevant matter.

"As a citizen, he did his duty, as a soldier he was brave and capable, as a friend he was absolutely unfailing and as a judge he was impartial and just.

"THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that in his death, the Federal Bench has lost a great Judge and the Bar has lost a friend, whose memory it will always affectionately cherish, and the country a faithful servant, who gave to it many long years of patient, invaluable labor.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, that our sincerest sympathy is tendered to his grief-stricken and disconsolate widow, in her great sorrow.

"This October 15th, 1919.

Lebanon Springs, where he led the usual life of a farmer's boy until his twentieth year. His education was limited to what he learned at his father's fireside and the ordinary district school, though fortunately he had for a time the advantage of an excellent teacher in the Rev. Moses Hunter, a Presbyterian clergyman, who to eke out a scanty salary taught a district school one or two winters. He was then fifteen years old, and this teaching about finished his school education, though he was an industrious worker at his books in his leisure time at home.

In June 1830, he made application through his friend, Edwin A. Douglas, for a situation under him and Canvass White, Esq., the chief engineer of the Canal Company, in the engineer corps of the Delaware and Raritan Canal in New Jersey, with good hope of success, as Mr. Douglas was a townsman and had known him from a child; but he was met with the disheartening news, that the company had decided to employ none but Jersey men in the subordinate positions. A day or two later, he received another letter saying that if he came on at once he could have the position of rodman. Receiving the letter on Saturday, he left home before daylight on the Monday morning following, joining Mr. Douglas and his corps on the preliminary survey a few miles above Trenton. With him he remained until the canal was finally located, when he was stationed at Princeton, with George Tyler Olmstead, who had charge of the middle division of the canal. There he remained until the fall of 1831, when he was sent as sub-assistant to Ashbel Welch, Esq., at Lambertville, on the Delaware and Raritan Canal, remaining there until May 1833, when he was sent, still under Mr. White and Mr. Douglas, to Beaver Meadow, Pa., to make the survey and location of the Beaver Meadow railroad from the mines of that company to the Lehigh canal at Mauch Chunk. After several changes in the engineer corps the entire charge of the road was given to him, and in the fall of 1836 it was finished and the shipment of coal commenced, when he resigned his position, and in the month of February 1837 he took up his quarters at Hazleton, under the Hazleton Railroad & Coal Company, having previously located a railroad from the Hazleton coal mines to the Beaver Meadow railroad at Weatherly. He finished that road, and commenced shipping coal in the spring of 1838, continuing in the employ of the Hazleton Railroad and Coal Company as their superintendent until 1840, when he commenced business as an independent coal operator, which he continued to the time of his death, also engaging to a considerable extent in iron and lumber.*

In 1848 Mr. Pardee built a gravity railroad to Penn Haven, a distance

PARDEE HALL, LAFAYETTE COLLEGE

It is in the auditorium of Pardee Hall that the opening exercises are conducted from year to year. Here also the student body assembles for the general lectures which keep Lafayette in touch with the larger world outside. Here are the moving picture machine and radio instruments. From the towers messages are sent to reach France and New Zealand. Pardee Hall is the largest and most conspicuous of all Lafayette's buildings. Its length is so great that if it were located in the city of New York it would extend a full city block and a half. This hall, the gift of the late Ario Pardee, gives space not only to the large auditorium, but to class-rooms for the Technical Departments, laboratories of many sorts, and executive offices for the heads of Engineering Departments.

that Lafayette men for years have to sing the songs on Friday nights in the springtime, to which ancient custom has been given the name Step Singing.

"Gathered in the twilight's glow"

Not only in the auditorium do the boys assemble to begin their college careers, but their last assembling on graduation day is in the same hall, and an inscription in the memorial window reads, "Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End."

ALMA MATER

We'll gather by the twilight's glow

In front of old Pardee:

In all the world no other scene

So fair, so dear to me.

O Lafayette, O Lafayette,

To thee our voices raise

While loyal lips and loyal hearts

Unite to sing thy praise.

These gems of mem'ry rare;

But oft we'll live the scenes again,

Impressed so firmly there.

O Lafayette, O Lafayette,

O joyous College days!

E'er while these loyal hearts shall beat,

We've loyal lips to praise.

of fourteen miles, as an outlet for the product of his mines, but the Lehigh Valley Railroad, with its improved facilities, was built in 1854, and this had to be abandoned in 1860.

Subsequently he engaged in iron manufacture and was, in 1888, the owner of blast furnaces in various localities in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Virginia and Tennessee.

At the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, Mr. Pardee fitted out at his own expense, a military company, with which his eldest son, Ario Pardee, Jr., served, attaining the brevet rank of brigadier general, January 12, 1865. He later refitted the company.

In 1864, Mr. Pardee became interested in Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., which was then at the most discouraging point in its history, with constantly increasing embarrassment. Through the influence of Dr. William Cassary Cattell, then president of the college, he gave $20,000 for its needs, at that time the largest sum ever given to an educational institution in Pennsylvania.

This gift, without which the college would have been closed, enabled its obligations to be met; and Mr. Pardee soon increased his gift, until in 1869 it amounted to $200,000, and upon this basis a new curriculum of scientific and classical studies was established.

A new building was needed, and for this purpose Mr. Pardee made a further gift of $200,000, to which he added $50,000 for equipment.

When finished, Pardee Hall, as it was named in his honor, was regarded as the largest and most complete scientific college building in the United States.

It was formally dedicated October 21, 1873, and after it was burned in 1879, it was rebuilt, with the same external appearance.

Mr. Pardee was a director of several railroads, including the Lehigh Valley, and was an active officer in many charitable organizations. He was president of the board of trustees of Lafayette College. In 1876 he was a presidential elector.

Mr. Pardee's death occurred while he was on a trip for recreation to Florida, March 26, 1892.

Phineas Pardee, aged 39 (he was actually over 41), born in Connecticut, was listed in Huron County, Mich., in the Census of 1850, with Phebe (aged 19, born in Canada), Charlotte (aged 11), and James (aged 1 month), the last two born in Michigan.

He settled in Port Austin, Huron County, Mich., and was employed by the Linard Lumber Company. They shipped lumber in their own boats, and he did some sailing for them. Educational opportunities were extremely limited in this region at the time, and his children had little schooling. His grandson, George W. Pardee, to whom we are indebted for an account of his family, says that his children were all boys, and that he adopted a girl. It is evident that some of the children were omitted in the 1850 Census. The grandson says that Phineas came from Pennsylvania, and is believed to have had brothers Joseph and Theodore.

No. 431

Mar. 1909; married 22 May 1872, JULIA ANN HOMAN, born near Cochranston, Pa., 12 Feb. 1843, died at Erie, Pa., 24 Jan. 1925, daughter of Samuel Mark and Susanne (Snyder) Homan.

During the early oil excitement, he spent several years in the oil districts of northwestern Pennsylvania, being interested in some of the earliest productions. Having succeeded in his operations there, he returned home and purchased land, part of which was the old homestead that his grandfather, Christian Stainbrook, bought from the Holland Land Company in 1799. In politics he was a Republican, and served his community in a number of local offices. He was much interested in stock raising, and livestock thrived on his fertile fields.

"Mrs. Pardee was during a greater portion of her life a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and her duties as a Christian wife and mother were well and faithfully performed. Some twelve years before her death she embraced the Christian Science belief. Her neighborly kindness and sympathy in seasons of distress and affliction will remain as a precious memory to those who knew her best." She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Kitchen.

SNOW, born in 1850, died at Watsonville, 26 Oct. 1886; married third, at Rock Island, Ill., 27 June 1888, LILLIAN MINERVA MAGILL, born at Rock Island, 31 Oct. 1859.

He came to California from New York via the Isthmus of Panama in 1852 and settled in Ione Valley, Amador County. He at first devoted his attention to the raising of watermelons, at that time an important industry. In 1854 he came to Watsonville, in the Pajaro Valley, Santa Cruz County, Calif., where he resided until his death. With three other men he purchased 1000 acres from the Rodriquez tract (one of the original Spanish Grants), on which for ten years he raised grain, potatoes, and general produce.

Selling out this ranch interest, Mr. Pardee became a commission merchant, buying and shipping grain to San Francisco. In those days there were no docks or piers. Grain and produce were hauled to the beach, where Indians were hired to carry the bags on their backs to the surf. There they transferred them to surf boats, which were nearly covered, having only a small opening through which the bags were thrown. When a boat was filled, the opening was covered with canvas. By means of horses on shore connected with a pulley line fastened to a buoy which was anchored by the awaiting vessel, the surf boat was drawn out to the ship. When the surf was running high, it was impossible to load, and even under the most fortunate conditions two days were required to load a small vessel.

After twenty years in the commission business, Mr. Pardee became a representative of the Firemen's Fund Insurance Company of San Francisco. Most of his business was the insuring of growing grain. He assisted in the organization of the Watsonville Gas Company and for many years acted as its secretary. Besides service as a member of the State Legislature, to which he was elected on the Republican ticket in 1867, he held office as city and school trustee. He was present at the driving of the last spike on the transcontinental railroad, as the guest of Gov. Leland Stanford.

He was a member of the Odd Fellows Fraternity for over fifty years, and was one of the founders of the First Presbyterian Church of Watsonville. His widow is living (1924) with her daughter Lamyra at Richmond, Calif.

464. WALTER STONE⁷ PARDEE (Joseph Harvey,⁶ Joseph,⁵ Joseph,⁴ Josiah,³ Joseph,² *George*¹), born at New Haven, 21 Aug. 1852, died at Minneapolis, Minn., 24 May 1925; married at Minneapolis, Minn., 24 May 1881, ETTIE AUGUSTA SABIN, born at Waukegan, Ill., 19 Mar. 1857, died at Minneapolis, 5 Dec. 1901, daughter of Elisha C. and Sarah E. (Williams) Sabin.

When his father removed to Minnesota, he was left for a time with his grandfather and uncle Merritt in Orange, Conn., where he attended the village school. He later joined his father, and between 1868 and 1877 attended Minnesota University. He completed the course in civil engineering, then took an additional course in architecture and was graduated in it in 1877. His university career was interrupted by other activities, as in 1872-3, when he spent a year in what is now South Dakota, took up a claim of 160 acres, and sold it.

In 1878 he began the practice of architecture with L. S. Buffington of Minneapolis, and shortly after was appointed to superintend the building of the State Capitol of 1881. This occupied him until 1884, from which date until 1887 he was City Inspector for Buildings for

WALTER STONE PARDEE

(No. 464)

Minneapolis, and he originated and perfected the building inspection system for efficient and continual operation. In 1883 he built his permanent home at 1029 22d Avenue, Minneapolis. He was architect and building superintendent for the Minneapolis Board of Education from 1887 to 1891, and devised a comprehensive system of fan heating and ventilation which was set up in several of the new schools. He designed and superintended the building of what were at that period considered the best school buildings so far conceived. From 1891 to 1899 he engaged in private architectural practice, largely connected with school buildings. He bought a summer home at Lake Minnetonka in 1892, and still owns the acreage, though the house was burned in 1917.

He was employed in the City Engineering Department from 1899 to 1913, and engaged in private practice again after 1913. Of late years he traveled extensively throughout the country. He always kept in touch with Minnesota University, and was actively interested in educational and philanthropic affairs.

He joined the Congregational church at the age of 20, but at marriage became a Methodist so as to work in the same church with his wife, and reached independent conclusions on theological problems. He was a gentleman of engaging personality and affable manners.

Mr. Pardee showed great interest in the family history, and was most helpful in furnishing information.

Shortly before his death, Mr. Pardee wrote the following details of his career:

"In 1862 my father, stepmother and half-sister Mary went to live in Minnesota for the health of my parents. That year I went to live at the Orange Pardee Homestead. I was there four years as farm boy, learning farming by ox-team, scythe, hoe and all such appliances customary in the last of the homespun age. In April, 1866, I began the journey from New Haven, Conn., to St. Anthony Falls, Minn., traveling by boat and railway. Railroad travel was uncertain, though my guardian and I did pretty well, riding, as I suppose, on the second Pullman sleeper built.

"In Minnesota my father wanted me to stay on the farm, but I was not content to make it a life job, preferring, as father had done in youth, to take up the interesting work of the skilled mechanic. Father sold the new farm and we moved to our town house in Minneapolis. In six months my stepmother died and father in a year and a half, he having married a third time shortly before his death, in the hope in some measure to guarantee the welfare of sister Mary and me.

"At 16 I had an new outlook on life. My new mother, educated, socially gifted, conscientious, and an active Christian, took the cases of Mary and me in hand and brought us through the dangers of youth with remarkable skill. In the fall of 1868 I began at Minnesota University 'Prep'; did none too well for three years and then took heart and forged ahead. The pace, however, was too swift for an undersized and underdeveloped boy to keep up, and this called for a year on the frontier in Dakota, where I went in the fall of 1872. Well-meaning friends, I found out later, had planned for me to stay in Dakota and have a farm. In their view I had education enough. This interfered with my plans, but I took up the 160-acre farm, came into my body strength, worked at very hard jobs and roughed it generally, returning to college in time for the winter term of 1874. I was graduated in Architecture in 1877.

"As a youth I had begun to learn the trade of a joiner, and followed this trade as an aid to college funds. Since then it has been used chiefly as a means of recreation.

"In 1878 I went into the office of Leroy S. Buffington, known as the best architect in the Twin Cities. Here was a five year stay, the first two spent in learning practical architecture and the other three mostly building superintendence.

"Minneapolis set up a Building Inspection Department in 1884, and I got the job of Inspector of Buildings on the merits of examination. Fonder of initiative than routine, I organized the department with much care as to immediate and future needs, laying a base broad enough to answer the purpose of to-day and to-morrow in considerable degree. My three year term was one of remarkable expansion in Minneapolis building. There were some 12,000 structures put up, footing $24,000,000, a round sum for the time. I looked upon this job as a scientific experiment and conducted it as such, though the work was terrific, and mostly a one man job, at the most with two or three assistants towards the last. It proved a powerful efficiency builder.

"In the summer of 1886 I was able to take on a little professional work in the way of expert examination of and report about the heating and sanitation of the Minneapolis school buildings. This work chanced to be successful and won me much credit in the community. In the spring of 1887 I was appointed supervising architect for the Minneapolis Board of Education, and later designing architect and building superintendent of the school system. On the strength of the 1886 report, for four years now I was given free rein to design the best school buildings practical for use; including heating, ventilation and sanitation, light, economy of erection, maintenance, and whatever else seemed to be warranted. This was the second scientific experiment, and was conducted in a large way to the end of producing the best school rooms for the least cost.

"In the spring of 1891 I began private practice, mostly school buildings in our immediate Northwest, but it was needful to work up a practice, which my seven years of public service had prevented me from doing. The result was fair considering the panic year of 1893.

"Returns now not being satisfactory in view of the growing needs of the family in the way of education, I began work under the City Engineer in the spring of 1899 and quit in the spring of 1913, the work having to do with electric conduit inspection, architectural design and superintendence, and private investigation of water supply. My chief architectural design and superintendence in that term was on the Pumping Station No. 4, planned, designed and equipped in a very careful way. From 1913 for four years came private practice again, ending with Building Superintendence for the State of Minnesota until the fall of 1918, which ended my professional work as a business.

"Now came a period of considerable travel, beginning at Chicago in 1919, and including lower New England and California. Sociological and educational matters were taken up as an avocation, and these I am studying still. Free from professional and family care, I am turning to broader fields of endeavor, getting new views of life, and working with strenuous efforts to make the last years count for the most in the way of such world service as I am able to give."

In 1886 Mr. Pardee was raised in Hennepin Lodge, No. 4, A. F. & A. M., of Minneapolis, Minn., and in 1924 transferred to Highland Park Lodge, A. O. Fay, No. 626, where he also became a member of Highland Park Chapter No. 226, Royal Arch Masons.

Her husband was a surgeon, of Grass Valley. They spent the Summer of 1920 in Alaska, and in the Fall the doctor took up the practice of medicine in Alleghany, Calif. Here he died the following spring as the result of overstrain on a professional trip through the mountains. He received his preparatory education at Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, and was graduated from Yale College (B.A.) in the class of 1882. Choosing law as his profession, he entered the Yale Law School, from which he received the degree of LL.B. cum laude in 1884. In the same year he was admitted to the bar and began practicing in New Haven. He achieved a position of prominence in his profession, in which he continued until 1909.

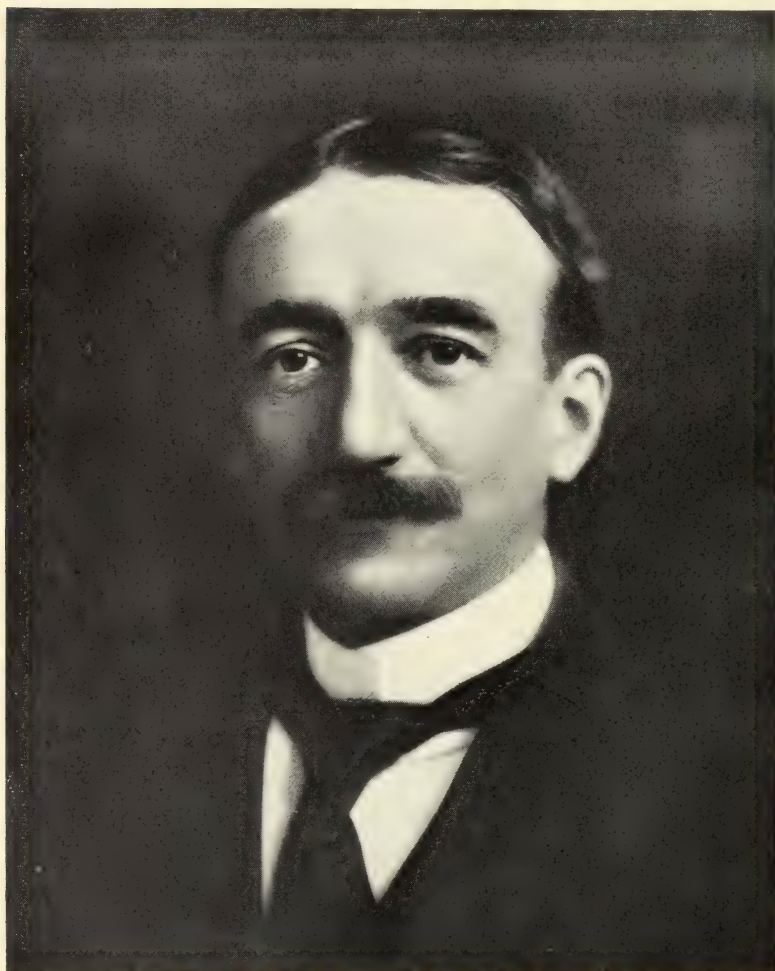

Thereafter he devoted his time to the silk business established by his father and later conducted by the firm of Marvin & Pardee, of which he was a partner. He also became interested in several other business undertakings, in which he was highly successful.

Mr. Pardee evinced a keen interest in public affairs and much public spirit. He drafted the first "Corrupt Practice Act," which became a law, and also the "Fourteen-Town Act." In politics he was a Democrat. In religion he was an Episcopalian and served as vestryman of the Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church of New Haven. He was president of the National Order of Sign Removers, a society for the preservation of the scenery of the country from the assaults of the bill-board advertisers and similar nuisances, and was an active member of the Connecticut Civil Service Reform Association, the object of which was to abolish the spoils system in the administration of state and national government.

In social life he was prominent, being a member of the Quinnipiack

WILLIAM SCRANTON PARDEE

(No. 485)

Club, of which he was president; of the New Haven Yacht Club, of which he was commodore; of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce; and of the New Haven Country Club.

Mr. Pardee was a life member of the New Haven Colony Historical Society, and deeply interested in its aims and activities. In his will he made many public bequests. He gave to the Historical Society the old house at Morris Cove which at one time had belonged to the family of Amos Morris and which he had purchased a few years before his death. Mr. Pardee was interested in the history of his family, and although too busy with other pursuits to undertake much genealogical research in person, it was the trust fund established under the terms of his will which made the present volume possible.

Immediately after Mr. Pardee's death, a friend published the following characteristic anecdote:

To the Editor of the Yale Alumni Weekly.

Sir—I am sure that "Billy" Pardee's classmates, as well as his friends in the Yale alumni body at large, will be interested to know that, quite unsolicited, he was the first contributor to the fund for the erection of Bela Pratt's statue to Hale on the Yale campus. The circumstances of his contribution are so characteristic of him that I hope I may be pardoned in rehearsing them.

Dining with me one evening (it was August 24, 1911), he took great interest in the small bronze statuette of Hale in my study, then recently cast from Pratt's original plaster sketch-model made in 1898. At the time I noticed, and afterward recalled, that as he came out of the study he made an unwonted gesture, as though brushing something away from his eyes. At the end of the evening, as he was leaving, we stood together a moment in the front porch of my house. Then he turned to me and said rather abruptly: "George, I will give a thousand dollars toward having that statue put on the campus on the condition that the design is not changed and that the commission is given to Bela Pratt within two years from to-day." The next morning I received from him by mail a little note in his own handwriting, in which he formally offered the money under the same conditions. Thus was the fund started.

Personally, it gives me pleasure to record this generous act of "Billy" Pardee, and to pay even so slight a tribute as this to his memory.

G. D. SEYMOUR.

New Haven, June 21, 1918.

As a Yale undergraduate, Mr. Pardee did not secure the highest scholastic or social honors, but his own group had an affection for him which never lost its freshness. He was "a man's man." The members of the Quinnipiack Club were devoted to him, and he was proud of the honor of being their president. He delighted in sailing and was a good water man. He loved pictures and everything beautiful. He was wise in the old New Haven tradition, and devoted to it, and enjoyed thinking about his early forebears, especially George Pardee who was commissioned to teach Latin and manners. He aimed to make the old Morris house a faithful picture of early New Haven life, and had he lived would have carried out that idea.

With an excellent knowledge of the law, he was more successful as a man of business. He possessed vision, and developed first rate ideas about public affairs. That many of his ideas failed of fruition may have been due in part to his Quixotic character, which interfered with his success as a publicist. He was always ready to champion any cause that appealed to him, whether popular or not, and naturally the more unpopular ones were doomed to failure from the start. Although he took his enterprises very seriously, he had an unfailing and delightful sense of humor. He hated sham and pretense. His feeling for the beautiful in nature was outraged by offensive advertising placards, which aroused in him a genuine crusading spirit against them. The quality of his citizenship deserves to be remembered in the annals of New Haven. Whatever would improve or beautify the city,—whatever would tend to purify politics or prevent corruption,—found in him a staunch defender. His influence was often felt even when not acknowledged, and his city is more indebted to him than is generally known.

Mr. Pardee was sociable and democratic, and the desire expressed in his will to have his home and grounds a place where “the children may play and learn . . . with a kindly benediction of the past above it” reveals the spirit of the man. Above all, he was a man of deep sentiment where his family and friends were concerned. To those who met him only casually, he sometimes gave an impression of eccentricity, but his peculiarities were all on the surface. A friend says of him: “He had a generous and honest heart, and no man ever walked our streets sounder at the core than Billy Pardee.”

A copy of Mr. Pardee's will follows:

He received from the University of California the degrees of Ph.B. (1879) and A.M. (1882), and from the University of Leipzig that of M.D. (1885). He is a physician, specializing in diseases of the eye and ear, and resides (1924) in Oakland, Calif. Outside of his profession, Mr. Pardee has had many interests, and has been active in the political sphere. His career is summarized in a characteristic letter written by him in 1923, extracts from which follow:

HON. GEORGE COOPER PARDEE
(No. 534)

"You say that you are interested in securing further information of my particular family and my political career. I am almost ashamed to tell you how many political offices, elective, and appointive, I have held since 1889, lest you get the notion that I have been a chronic office-seeker and nothing else. But I plead guilty (throwing myself upon the mercy of the court) to have started as an appointed member of the Oakland Board of Health, 1889-91; then elected a member of the Oakland City Council, 1891-93; then elected Mayor of Oakland,

RESIDENCE OF HON. GEORGE C. PARDEE
Oakland, California

1893-95. In 1898 was appointed, by Governor Gage, a Regent of the University of California—my Alma Mater—serving until elected Governor, 1903-06. In 1907, was elected a member of the Board of Freeholders to frame the present Charter of Oakland. The same year, was appointed, by President Roosevelt, a member of the National Conservation Commission, which President Taft put out of business. In 1910, appointed, by Governor Johnson, a member of, and served as Chairman of, the California State Board of Conservation which completed its work and disbanded in 1915. In 1912, was elected a member of the Electoral College—Roosevelt and Johnson. In 1919, was appointed, by Governor Stephens, a member of the California State Board of Forestry, serving as its Chairman continuously until a few months ago, when I resigned because of a difference of opinion with Governor Richardson. I was elected a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Conventions of 1900, 1904, 1912 and also to the Bull Moose National Convention of the latter year. Also to many city, county, congressional and State conventions.

"But, as an extenuating circumstance, let me say that, from 1885 up to the time that I was elected Governor, I carried on, in San Francisco, an extensive practice as an oculist and aurist; also that, with the exception of the office of Mayor and Governor, none of the offices that I have held have paid any salary. My practice I had to abandon, because of ill health, when I ceased to be Governor; and have never been able to resume it.

"Besides these political activities, I have been, since 1893, a member, and served one term as President, of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, and played with a ten-inch reflecting telescope for a number of years. Also a delegate to, and served one term as President of, the National Irrigation Congress; also, for several years, a delegate to and Director of The National Rivers and Harbors Congress; also for several years, a delegate to and Director of the National Conservation Congress; also, for several years, a member of the Governing Board of the National Good Roads Association.

"Since 1907, with the exception of three years, as required by its constitution, have been a Director of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

"In 1881, I became a member of Oakland Lodge, No. 188, F. & A.M., just before leaving for Germany, where I took my M.D. degree, at Leipzig, in 1885, having studied in San Francisco for two years. Was elected Master of Oakland Lodge in 1893—my father having been Master in 1872. He was also a City Councilman and Mayor of Oakland and a State Assemblyman and Senator.

"I am also a member of the Eastern Star (of which my daughter Madeline is at present an officer), a Knight Templar, a Shriner and a 33°, Honorary, of the Scottish Rite.

"Just at present, besides being a Director of the local Chamber of Commerce, I am a member and Director of the Oakland Kiwanis Club, and have been for the last twenty-five years, a Trustee and member of the Finance Committee of the Mt. View Cemetery Association, of Oakland. Also, for nearly thirty years, I have been an active member of the Berkeley Club, a literary club, that meets every two weeks, dines, and discusses a paper read by one of its members, who are members of the University or professional men of Berkeley and Oakland.

"I am also a member and Past President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, a fraternal and benevolent organization limited in membership to natives of California.

"Just now, to keep from entirely rusting out, I am engaged in an attempt to arouse the people of this State to the absolute necessity for conserving the natural-cover on our watersheds—upon which the future of this State fundamentally depends—and have made a start in that direction. Also, I am helping to inaugurate a local Safety Council—which we hope will spread throughout the State—for the prevention of automobile accidents, which have become fearfully prevalent.

"I think the above comprises most of the public things in which I have been interested—although your inquiry went only to the political side of my activities. And, as I glance over the typewritten lines before me (I sometimes preside at the typewriter myself, as you can see from this letter) I wonder whether I have gotten (being sixty-six years old) to the anecdotal and reminiscent stage of life; and I also wonder whether, when I shall have completed this letter (which is being written at intervals) I shall have the courage to send it to you. For, strange as it may seem, this is the first time that I have ever compiled a list of the things that I have ever attempted to do—and, as I have said, I am almost ashamed to list the political activities. And that reminds me that I have set down here only the times I have succeeded. But there have been defeats, as well as victories. Last year, for instance, I attempted to get Alameda County to form a consolidated City and County, and thus cut out many of the duplications of public office. Oakland voted favorably; but the rest of the County turned me down cold. But, although I hesitate to say it, the people of my home City and my native State have never turned me down when I ran for office. Forgive, if you can, the apparent egotism of that last statement.

"Of social clubs, you will notice, I have said nothing. At various times, I have been a member of such clubs—the Bohemian Club of San Francisco, the Athenian and Nile Clubs of Oakland, and the Claremont and Mt. Diablo country clubs on this side of San Francisco Bay. But, some way or other, social clubs never appealed to me much (probably for want of time to visit them) and, never having been able to get up much of an interest in golf, country clubs never have, either—although football and baseball kept me busy when I was in my 'teens. And, before I got clumsy on my feet, I spent my annual vacation hunting, fishing, and camping. But I regret to say, as the so-called comic papers put it, "them days is gone forever." And in the days when I could do it, I yachted a good deal on San Francisco Bay. Nowadays, though, I confine my aquatic activities to motorboating a couple or three times a week, in the interest of health and pleasure.

"You also ask me concerning my family. My wife (we were classmates in high school) is Helen Newhall Penniman, born in 1857 at Chelsea, Mass. Her father was John Penniman (1811-1895), born at Plymouth, New Hampshire. Her mother (1828-1901) was Nancy McLanathan, born at Bath, Maine. So, you can see that our children are Yankees. We have two surviving daughters, Madeline Anna and Helen Penniman. Our oldest daughter, Florence Mary, died in an automobile accident in 1912. Our third daughter, Carol Marietta, died three years ago from the accursed 'flu.

"I am informed, that in every war this country has ever had, there have participated some of our blood. And that reminds me that, when I was a boy and a young man, I served twenty years in the National Guard of California; and that I would, if I could, have every youth serve at least one enlistment in the country's militia for the discipline and obedience to constituted authority there inculcated, which so few of the young of our day have driven home to them."

Mr. Pardee also served as Presidential Elector (Nov. 1924) for Coolidge and Dawes, and was chosen (1924) as President of the Board of Directors of the East Bay Municipal Utility District, to spend $30,000,000 to bring in from the Sierras, ninety miles away, a water supply for Oakland and its neighboring cities. His connection with this work has taken much of his time and energy. Those with adverse interests naturally opposed the project. He wrote to a friend, July 1926; "We have, however, won every battle up to date and have made a good start on the work. And I have been having a thoroughly good time enjoying the fights."

Timothy Blair Pardee received his early educational training in his native county; but he afterwards attended school at Brockville, where he completed his course. It was in the latter town that he began the study of law, entering the office of the Hon. William Buel Richards, afterwards Chief Justice of Canada. Before his studies were concluded, however, young Pardee, like many other adventurous spirits, became possessed of the western gold fever, and suddenly leaving the office he set out for California. There he spent two years; and then bent his steps to the still more alluring gold fields of Australia, where the next five years of his life were spent. He then became convinced that "searching for gold in pebble and clay" was not necessarily the shortest road to fortune, and a wider and a higher ambition entering his mind he turned his face towards his native land. Settling at Sarnia, Ontario, he resumed his reading of law, and finished the prescribed

He very speedily attracted attention among the legal confraternity, for he had almost all the qualities that go to make up the successful advocate. In the first place he was courteous and hearty in his manner, so that personal popularity at the very outset was secured. Then he was cautious, deliberating carefully over a matter before making up his mind, and this was a trait almost priceless. And when he arose to speak, he always had something to say; and what he had to say was put in a terse, straightforward, and vigorous manner. But better than all these qualities, he was exceedingly swift in penetration and in discrimination, and revealed that thorough insight into human character which gives the lawyer so much influence over juries, and invests every man with a power over his fellow-men. He had unbounded energy, and an industry that knew no flagging; and it is not strange that he soon established a foremost place for himself in his profession.

At the first general election after confederation, he was elected to the Ontario parliament for West Lambton, and continued to represent that constituency. On Oct. 25, 1872, he accepted the office of Provincial Secretary in the Reform government, which portfolio he held until 4 Dec. 1873, when he became Commissioner of Crown Lands. In the administration of the affairs of this important department Mr. Pardee displayed marked vigor and ability; and to these facts even his opponents sometimes were obliged to bear testimony. From what had been known of Mr. Pardee as a lawyer, it might have been expected that he would make his mark in Parliament. This he did, but he did not accomplish it in the way adopted by lesser men. He seldom "aired" himself upon the floor of the house, but when he did arise he had something to say. His characteristics as a debater were lucidity, vigor and point; and there was always present, manifest evidence of his tact. He was a man of marked parliamentary influence, and he was able to command "the ear" of the opposite side of the house as well as his own. It goes without saying, that in general politics he was a Liberal.

He was educated in Allegheny College and graduated from Bryant & Stratton and Smith Business Colleges. During the first few years of his business life he was associated with the Keystone View Company of New York and London, and on account of its broad field of activity, Mr. Pardee became interested in business from an international viewpoint. Early in 1904, he resigned his position as manager of one of the departments of that company and, associated with W. W. Kincaid and the late M. M. Beman, founded and established The Spirella Company, and later with them organized and financed The

J. HOMAN PARDEE

Spirella Company of Canada, Ltd., Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada; The Spirella Company of Great Britain, Ltd., Letchworth (Garden City), Herts, England; The Spirella Company, Inc., Niagara Falls, N. Y.; The Spirella Gesellschaft Für Deutschland, m.b.H., Düsseldorf, Oberkassel, Germany; The Spirella Securities Limited, Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada; the Korsettfabriken Spirella Aktiebolag, Malmö, Sweden, and Aktieselskabet Spirella Korsetter, Copenhagen, Denmark. Mr. Pardee, with W. W. Kincaid and J. H. Moore, of Letchworth, England, form a Spirella Board of Administration, established to direct a uniform policy in the various Spirella Companies for the manufacture and sale of their product.

While living in Meadville, prior to 1913, Mr. Pardee served as vice-president of the G. M. Yost Manufacturing Company, was one of the directors of the Merchants National Bank, and gave much time and assistance in organizing several of Meadville's successful industries. He was a trustee of the Pennsylvania College of Music. For two terms he served as president of the Meadville Chamber of Commerce, and in June 1914 represented that organization in Paris at the International Conference of Chambers of Commerce of the world. He is identified with the Masonic fraternity, and is a member of the society of Middletown Upper Houses; a Pilgrim Tercentenary member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society; a member of the Somersetshire Archaeological and Natural History Society; Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities; a member of the Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce; and belongs to the Buffalo Club, Park Club, Buffalo Fine Arts Academy, Buffalo Historical Society, Saddle and Bridle Club, Rotary and Niagara Falls Country Club. In religion he is an Episcopalian and in politics a Republican. He is very fond of travel and spends much time abroad.

On January 28, 1914, Mr. Pardee married Mary Imboden McClung of Richmond, Va., daughter of the Hon. Charles Henry McClung, who served as a member of the Virginia Legislature for a number of years. Mr. Pardee resides in Buffalo, N. Y.

In July 1926, Mr. Pardee purchased the property known as Erie Beach, and the transaction is said in real estate circles to have been the largest ever recorded on the Canadian Niagara Frontier. The property borders on the Canadian shore of Lake Erie, beginning a short distance from the old fort and extending to Crescent Beach, almost a mile of water frontage. It contains approximately 300 acres and at one point is over a mile and a quarter in depth. The sale also includes transportation lines,—the steamboats operated between the beach and the foot of Main Street, and three ferry boats,—and the franchises authorizing the operation between Buffalo and Fort Erie, and the railroad between Fort Erie and the Beach. Mr. Pardee proposes to make extensive improvements in the recreation park and will also develop the unoccupied land adjoining the park property. His varied interests in this country and abroad have given him occasion to study some of the most famous parks and pleasure resorts in the world, and he will apply his knowledge gained by travel to advantage in developing Erie Beach.

He has shown great interest in the Pardee genealogy, and the present volume is greatly indebted to his generosity.

AN OHIO FAMILY

——— PARDEE was the father of eight sons, most of whom appear to have lived in Cuyahoga County, Ohio. Two grandsons furnished information, but neither one could state his name, and all efforts to learn his identity have been fruitless. One grandson thought he was from "Mecan" County, Pa. McKean County was probably meant, but neither Census nor Probate records contain mention of Pardees there at that period.

The names of several of the sons suggest the possibility that the father of this family may have been the elder son of Samuel Pardee (No. 87) by his first wife. But there are several other possibilities, and the evidence at hand is insufficient to afford a proper basis even for an hypothesis.

Children (order of birth uncertain):

- i. AMOS, possibly the Amos of whom a record is given on page 518.
- F. ii. JARED, b. abt. 1822.
- iii. HARRY, is said to have lived at Strongsville, Ohio.
- iv. JOHN.
- v. NATHANIEL.
- vi. BART.
- vii. SAMUEL, d. at Nortonville, Jefferson Co., Kans., abt. 1900; m. LAURA ———, who d. abt. 1918/19; said to have left no surviving issue.*
- G. viii. DAVID A., b. abt. 1837.

* A Samuel Pardee (born in Ohio about 1822), presumably a different man, was listed in Liverpool, Medina Co., Ohio, in the Census of 1850, with Julia (born in Ohio about 1830), and Samuel (born about 1849). Jared, one of the above eight brothers, had a daughter who lived in Liverpool. Note also that Seymour Pardee, son of Nathan (No. 89), and nephew of Samuel (No. 87), lived in Litchfield, Medina Co. The names Jared, Harry, John, Nathaniel, Samuel, and David all appear among the near relatives of Samuel (No. 87), and reappear among these Ohio brothers. Perhaps the connecting link should be sought in the neighborhood of Liverpool and Litchfield, Medina Co., Ohio.

F. JARED PARDEE, born about 1822, died at Berea, Ohio, in 1863; married first, SOPHRONIA ———, born in Connecticut about 1824; married second, AURELIA CLARK, born in Connecticut about 1825, died in Michigan in 1868, daughter of Silas B. Clark.

His son states that he was a blacksmith, of Berea, Ohio, and that he was born in "Mecan" County, Pa. According to Census returns, he was born in Ohio. His son calls him "Jerry," and makes no mention of two marriages, giving Aurelia Clark as the only wife. Perhaps the Census returns are in error.

The Census of 1850 lists him as a stone turner, of Middleburgh (which included Berea), born in Ohio, aged 28, with Sophronia, born in Connecticut, aged 26, and Sophronia (7) and Winfield S. (2); Electa Davenport, born in Ohio, aged 17, was living in his household. In 1860 he was listed in Middleburgh as a laborer, aged 38, with Aurelia, born in Connecticut, aged 35, and Sophronia (19), Winfield (12), Charlotte (10), George (6), Henry Clay (3), and Arabella (1). His son attributes to him another son, Jerry, omits Arabella, and adds Rebecca, who died aged 16.

- i. SOPHRONIA C., b. abt. 1843; m. ROBERT LOCKE.
- ii. WINFIELD S., b. abt. 1848; m. ELNORIA COOK; lived in Michigan.

- H. vii. WILLIAM B., b. in Dec. 1860.
- viii. MARY, b. abt. 1863; "taken to San Francisco by aunt Rose Bushnell."

He was a grindstone turner, of Berea, Ohio, where he was listed in the Census of 1860 as a farmer, born in Ohio, aged 23, with wife Philena (23), born in Canada, and children Rosabell (3) and Charles (1).

Children, born at Berea, Ohio:

- i. ROSABELLE, b. 1856; m. 7 Oct. 1871, AMOS W. JOHNSON, who d. abt. Dec. 1924; resides (1924) at 230 Woodruff St., Topeka, Kansas.

TEXAS PARDEES

REV. Z. T. PARDEE died at Corsicana, Tex., in 1914; his widow ELLA is living (1925), blind and feeble, with a daughter in Dallas, Tex. They had twelve or fourteen children. A son, REV. ROBERT T. PARDEE, is living (1925) in Corsicana, Tex., but failed to reply to requests for information. Our only information about this family was furnished by his daughter-in-law, the widow of John M. Pardee, who states that Z. T. Pardee was a man of fine character, and noted for his good works. His initials suggest that he may have been named Zachary Taylor Pardee, and he is believed to have come to Texas from one of the southeastern states. A record of the family of his son John follows:

JOHN M. PARDEE, born at Chatfield, Tex., died at Dallas, Tex., in 1904; married at Corsicana, Tex., 20 Dec. 1890, LULA JENNINGS; she married second, in 1919, Shorn Hicks, of Tulsa, Okla.

He may possibly be identical with one of the eight Ohio brothers (see page 515).

EDWARD P. PARDEE was a guard at the State Prison, Columbus, Ohio, in 1883, and still held this post in 1892. The city directory of Columbus contains the names of CHARLES F. PARDEE in 1902, ALLEN PARDEE in 1910, and EMMA widow of ALBERT PARDEE in 1920.

Presumably Benjamin was son of George, husband of Casa, and father of Ambrose.

PURDY

FRANCIS PURDY was an early settler in Fairfield, Conn., where he died in 1658. His family located in the vicinity of Greenwich, Conn., and Rye, N. Y. Some account of the descendants is given in Mead's History of Greenwich, but this account is not entirely accurate, as it includes some known descendants of George Pardee.

Since the name "Pardee" was occasionally spelled "Pardy," there is always danger of confusion with the Purdy family, particularly in regions such as Westchester County, N. Y., where both families were numerous. In the U. S. Census returns, for instance, known Pardees are often listed as "Pardy," and in a few instances as "Purdy." In cases where the vowel was carelessly written, it is often impossible to tell whether Pardy or Purdy was intended.

WILLIAM T. PARDY, b. in Highland County, Ohio, served in the Civil War in the 11th Ohio Cavalry, and was stationed at Fort Laramie and Fort Collins, guarding the United States mail from the Indians. His widow, Mrs. Stella Pardy of Rinard, Ill., writes: "My husband spelled his name Pardy, and in the long ago they spelled it Purdy."

MARY PARDEE

It was stated in an early volume of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, in an article on the Wright family, that Elizur Wright of Springfield, Mass., married Mary Pardee, and this statement was repeated in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary and in many subsequent publications. No record proof of this statement has been found, and because of the dates it is certain that Mary does not belong to the George Pardee family. It is believed that the statement was based on family tradition or private records. Since she did not belong to the family of George, and no other Pardee family has been located in New England at so early a date, the statement that she was a Pardee should be confirmed by contemporary records before it is accepted as accurate.

WILLIAM PURDY OF WOODBRIDGE

WILLIAM PARDEE is listed in the Census of 1790 as resident in Woodbridge, Conn., his household then consisting of 1 male and 2 females. In the Census of 1800, William Pardee was listed in Woodbridge, his household then consisting of 1 male and 1 female aged 26 to 45, 1 male and 1 female 10 to 16, and 3 males and 2 females under 10. The first purchase and later deeds of this William in Woodbridge have been examined, and in all of them his name is spelled Purdy. He lived in the Bethany section of the town, and had a wife Eunice and a large family of children. All of his descendants spell the name Purdy and it is believed that his name was misspelled in the Census records and that he was a member of the Purdy family.

PARADEE

This name is believed to be French Canadian, and it is very doubtful whether any who spell their name thus are descendants of George Pardee.

PETER PARADY, iron moulder, of Plattsburgh, Clinton County, N. Y., in 1850, born in Canada about 1820, married EMILY —, born in Canada about 1828. Children listed in the Census of 1850: Alice (aged 5), Edward (2).

EDWARD PARADY, shoemaker, of Beekmantown, Clinton Co., N. Y., born in Canada, aged 36 in Census of 1850, listed with Mary (30), Mary (14), Elizabeth (12), Albert (10), Eleanor (8), Emery (6), James (4), Joseph (2), and Sarah (1 month).

PETER PARADEE, of Vergennes, Vt., had wife Clara who died 28 Aug. 1863, aged 68, and a daughter Harriet who died 20 Apr. 1854 aged 9. CHARLES J.

GEORGE H. PARADEE, bricklayer, and HENRY PARADEE, car builder, were located in Wilmington, Del., as early as 1872. They were brothers, and both had sons. This family did not come from Connecticut, and no connection with the Pardee family is known. The Wilmington city directory in 1893 contains the following Paradees: Alfred C., Charles E., Frank R. (car builder), George, George H., Henry C., and William H. ARTHUR LOUIS PARDEE, leather worker, son of Henry H. (born in Maryland) and ——— (born in Ireland), was born at Wilmington, Del., 5 June 1878, killed by a train in New Haven, Conn., 31 July 1900. ALFRED C. PARDEE, car builder, born at Wilmington, Del., in 1869, married Sally M. Funk, born in Pennsylvania in 1874, and had the following children born at New Haven, Conn.: 1. Alfred Garfield, b. 19 Dec. 1895. 2. Grace M., b. 1 June 1899. 3. George, b. 6 Jan. 1902. The name, although sometimes rendered as "Pardee" in the public records, is properly "Paradee."

PAUL PARADIS, of New Bedford, Mass., 1925, states that he is of French descent.

MISS LULU PARADEE, of Decatur, Ill., states that her family is not related to the Paradees.

MILBY PARDEE, said to have been a seafaring man in England, had two sons who settled in Maryland. One, GEORGE W. PARDEE, born in Liverpool, England, came west from Maryland to Lake County, Calif., where he was a miner and blacksmith; his widow resides (1925) in Richmond, Calif., and a son, Milby R., is a newspaper man in Santa Rosa, Calif. VIRGINIA PARDEES AND PURDUES

PHILO PARDEE of Wythe County, Census of 1820, perhaps son of the above John, was aged 26 to 45, and had a family consisting of 1 male and 1 female 16 to 26, 1 male 10 to 16, and 1 male under 10. He married Rachel Montgomery and had issue.

JOHN PARDEE, son of Philo, born at Wytheville, Va., 27 May 1820, married in Morgan Co., Mo., 14 Feb. 1861, Elizabeth Murray, born in Richland Co., Ohio, 17 June 1830, died in Bates Co., Mo., 10 Sept. 1864, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Urie) Murray. They had a son WILLIAM, born at Harrisonville, Cass Co., Mo., 23 July 1863.

The Census of 1850 shows a number of Purdues living in Washington County, on the border of N. C., and not far from Wythe County. These were Robert Perdew, aged 49, born in N. C., with Nancy (47), born in N. C., and children born in Va., Minerva (27), Sarah (21), Dorcas (19), Andrew (14), and Wiley (7); William Perdew (25), with Ellen (23) and Mary E. (9 months); and in the neighboring Wayne County were James Perdue (30), with Scyntha (27), Minerva (8), Marianna (6), and Burton (1); Lewis Purdue (32), with Amanda (34), Levi (10), Lucy (9), Louisa (8), Tobias (5), Monterville (4), Virginia (3), and Albert (1); and Isaiah Purdue (54), with Luvenia (26), Sylvester (24), Almedia (7), Nancy A. (4), and Elizabeth (1).

Thomas Pardie, clerk, aged 47, born in Va., is listed in the Census of 1850 as resident in the First Ward, Chicago, Ill., with Mrs. (43), Isaac (16), and Mary V. (12), all born in Va.

PARDEES FROM GERMANY

FRED PARDEE, of 10 Pearl Place, Buffalo, N. Y., came to America in 1902 from Eggstorf, Hanover. His grandfather, a florist and army officer, came with two brothers from Nancy, France, and settled in Germany during the Napoleonic wars. Relatives in Germany owned a factory before the World War, which impoverished them. A brother HENRY is now (1924) living in Germany.

It is probable that Fred Pardee is a relative of the Henry Pardee whose family follows:

HENRY¹ PARDEE, born in Hanover, Germany, 8 Jan. 1800, died at Rochester, N. Y., in Dec. 1881; married first, ————; married second, in 184—, SOPHIA RHYNIKE, born in 1822, died about 1888.

IRISH PARDEES

JOHN PARDEE, born in Ireland, listed in the Census of 1860, aged 60, with wife and family, in Lenox, Madison Co., N. Y.

THOMAS PARDEE, born in Ireland about 1845; married at New Haven, Conn., 8 Sept. 1869, ELLEN MULVEY, born in Ireland about 1847.

* Monroe County records state age of Mary E. at death as 25 years, and her heirs as brothers Henry L. (aged 40), George F. (aged 37), and Charles W. (aged 35). Sophia is not mentioned, but is given as a sister by George F. Pardee; if date of death is correct, she must have been a half-sister. A monument in Farmington Cemetery, Rochester, N. Y., gives Henry L. Pardee 1845-1904; Elizabeth Pardee 1849- ; and Frankie Pardee 1879-1880.

RUSSIAN PARDEES

MARY PARDEE, born in Russia about 1872 (parents also born in Russia); married at New Haven, Conn., 17 Apr. 1894, GEORGE DAVIS, a laborer, born in Russia about 1857.

COLORED PARDEES

WILLIAM PARDEE, born about 1782, died suddenly of heart disease at New Haven, Conn., 22 May 1837. His widow died 28 July 1837 aged 28, also of heart disease. William Augustus, son of William and Dorcas, was baptized at Trinity Church, New Haven, 29 Aug. 1817 aged 6 years. Mary died 7 Mar. 1837 aged 20. The foregoing records probably pertain to members of the same family. It may have been this colored William, though it does not seem very probable, who married, 1 Aug. 1811, Margaret ———, and divorced her in 1814; and who married at United Church, New Haven, 3 Dec. 1820, Leency Curtis, and divorced her in 1830.

HENRY PARDOE, born about 1813, died at New Haven, Conn., 14 Oct. 1848.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS

Page 116. Apparently Mabel Russell, widow of Stephen⁴ Pardee (21), who was living as his widow in 1797, married second, shortly thereafter, Dr. Joshua Porter of Southington, Conn. Her son Samuel Pardee (66) was already settled in Southington, the husband of Dr. Joshua Porter's daughter Mercy. Dr. Porter's first wife, Mercy, died in 1796; he died in 1803; and his second wife, Mabel (Russell) Pardee, survived until 1807.

Page 270. First footnote. We have been informed that the family record of death of Daniel⁸ Pardee (235) reads 20 Apr. 1860; but note that his wife was listed as head of the household in the 1850 Census. The second child, Finetta E., died in Feb. 1908.

Page 451. Announcement has been made of the engagement of Mildred G. Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Morse of Hamden, Conn., to Stephen Holbrook⁹ Pardee, also of Hamden. [1926]

Page 485. Announcement has been made of the engagement of Mrs. Susan (Lowell) Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Plummer Lowell of Newburyport, Mass., to Charles Laban⁹ Pardee (669). [1927]

Chapter V. There are indications that George¹ Pardee was interested in the movement from the Connecticut coast towns to New Jersey, and may have considered settling there at one time; it will be noted in this connection that two of his daughters apparently married New Jersey men at a later date. It was not feasible to search the early records of Elizabeth and Newark, and the whole subject was so hypothetical that it was thought wise not to discuss it in the account of George Pardee's career.

APPENDIX II

U. S. CENSUS STATISTICS

PARDEES IN THE FIRST CENSUS

The First U. S. Census (1790) lists the heads of families, and divides their families into males aged 16 years or over (first column below), males under 16 years (second column), and females (third column). The Pardees who appear in this Census have all been identified. The following is the list arranged by towns; the family number has been added in parenthesis for the purpose of identification.

The spelling of the surname in the census returns depends too much on the vagaries of the census takers to have any significance, and below we have followed the standard spelling. Of the sixty-one individuals listed, the name was spelled Pardy twenty-five times, Pardee twenty-one times, Pardie fourteen times, and Parde once.

PARDEES IN CONNECTICUT, CENSUS OF 1800

The Pardee heads of families residing in Connecticut in the U. S. Census of 1800 were very kindly copied by Mrs. Ella G. Edmonds, of Pittsburgh, Pa. The members of each household are listed according to sex and age in ten columns, the first being men over 45, the second men between 26 and 45, the third males between 16 and 26, the fourth males between 10 and 16, and the fifth males under 10. The next five columns include females, divided by age in the same way as the males.

APPENDIX III

PENNSYLVANIA AND THE PARDEES:

The Romance of Coal and Oil

THE PIONEERING SPIRIT

"The first stocks that came from Europe to the United States were a selected group of pioneers willing to endure hardships to make homes in a new country. After a time, when the Atlantic seaboard became densely populated, just following the close of the Revolutionary War, divers groups again went forth into undeveloped country, in wave after wave of migration following an impulse to select an environment where they could best express themselves intellectually and emotionally. Studies seem clearly to indicate that these early pioneers in the settlement of the wilderness were from stocks of superior ability and physique. As they went westward through the country, the more energetic were continually seeking to reach regions and areas that were capable of development. These pioneer movements accompanied by the sifting process take place almost automatically and unconsciously and are indicative of the possession of ability in a stock." (Dr. Arthur H. Estabrook, president of the Eugenics Research Association: "Blood Seeks Environment," published in "Eugenical News," Volume XI, No. 8, August 1926.)

The large families and generally healthy stock of the New England colonists increased the population with amazing rapidity. In the absence of industrialism and scientific methods of farming, the seaboard at length was no longer able to afford subsistence to so large a population. The Revolutionary War, at the same time that it destroyed property and ruined or impaired the fortunes of many patriots, took many of the youthful soldiers into parts of the country hitherto unknown to them, sometimes for long marches through undeveloped wilderness. In the period of business and financial depression which succeeded the war, it is not surprising that many of the hardier and bolder spirits determined to seek improved fortunes in the promising but undeveloped regions which they had seen or heard of.

The first great movement from Connecticut was to the Massachusetts Berkshires and Vermont. Few of the Pardees seem to have been attracted in that direction. The next movement was towards Central and Western New York, which reached huge proportions in the years just before and after 1800. Some branches of the Pardee family were already located in that State, particularly in Westchester County and the southeastern sections generally. From here and from Connecticut, they quickly spread into the marvelous territory which was opened up between Albany and Niagara. Since many of the Pardee migrations passed in whole or in part along the Mohawk Trail, and this was the route taken in the first Pardee migration to Pennsylvania, a description of this country by an anonymous writer as he found it in 1792 should be of interest.*

FROM ALBANY TO NIAGARA, 1792

"I am just returned from Niagara, about 560 miles west of Boston. I went first to Albany, from thence to Schenectada, about sixteen miles; this has been a very considerable place of trade, but is now falling to decay: It was supported by the Indian traders; but this business is so arrested by traders far in the country, that very little of it reached so far down: It stands upon the Mohawk river, about 9 miles above the Falls, called the Cohoes; but this I take to be the Indian name for Falls: Its chief business is to receive the merchandize from Albany, and put it into batteaux, to go up the river, and forward to Albany such produce of the back country as is sent to market. After leaving Schenectada, I travelled over a most beautiful country of eighty miles to Fort Schuyler, where I forded the Mohawk: This extent was the scene of British and savage cruelty during the late war, and they did not cease, while anything remained to destroy. What a contrast now! Every house and barn rebuilt, the pastures crowded with cattle, sheep, &c and the lap of Ceres full. Most of the land on each side of the Mohawk river, is in a rich flat highly cultivated with every species of grain, the land on each side the flats, rising in agreeable slopes; this, added to the view of a fine river passing through the whole, gives the beholder the most pleasing Sensations imaginable.

"I passed next through Whitestown. It would appear to you, my friend, on hearing the relation of events in the western country, that the whole was fable; and if you were placed in Whitestown, or Clinton, ten miles west from Fort Schuyler, and see the progress of improvement, you would believe it enchanted ground. You would there view an extensive well built town, surrounded by highly cultivated fields, which Spot in the year 1783 was the 'haunt of tribes' and the hiding place of wolves, now a flourishing happy Situation, containing about six thousand people—Clinton stands a little south of Whitestown, and is a very large thriving town.

"After passing Clinton, there are no inhabitants upon the road, until you reach Oneida, an Indian town, the first of the Six Nations; it contains about five hundred and fifty inhabitants; here I slept, and found the natives very friendly. The next day I went on to Onondaga, leaving the Oneida lake on the right, and the Onondaga lake on the left, each a few miles distant. I slept at Onondaga, at the house of a Mr. ———, who is employed in boiling down the waters of Salt springs, which are about 7 miles north of his house, for supplying the country with salt—he told me that he made about fifty bushels per week, which he sold at five shillings per bushel, but that any quantity may be made, and at a less price; these springs are in the State reservation, and are a wonderful benefit to the country, every part of which is so united by lakes and rivers as to render the Supply of this bulky and necessary article very easy. Independent of our own Settlements, we can supply the British in the whole of Upper Canada.

"Thirty-five miles from this place I struck the Cayuga lake. The road is tolerable for a new country; the land excellent, and very heavy timbered. There are but three houses upon this road. This lake is from about thirty-five to forty miles long, about two miles wide, and abounds with salmon, bass, catfish, eels and many other kinds of fish. This lake empties itself into what is called Three Rivers, joining the waters of the Oneida Lake, and then proceeds by Oswego into Ontario. On each side of the Cayuga Lake is a ferry house and good attendance given.

"Twelve miles west of the Cayuga I struck the Canada Saga lake—no inhabitants upon this road—this lake is the handsomest piece of water I ever beheld; its length and breadth nearly that of Cayuga, into which it empties. Upon a pretty slope, on the new part of the lake, stands a town, called Geneva; it has a fine effect from the opposite shore, but disappoints you when you arrive at it. It consists of about twenty log houses, three or four frame buildings, and as many idle persons as can live in them. Eighteen miles below, on the same side of this lake stands the Friends' Settlement, founded by Jemima Wilkinson; there are eighty families in it, each has a fine farm, and are quiet, moral, industrious people. There is a road from the Friends' Settlement nearly completed, across the country to Genesee river, forty-five miles. I went from Geneva to Canadaqua, sixteen miles, crossing the outlet of Canadaqua lake, just as I entered the town. This is a settlement made by Mr. Phelps, and promises to be a very flourishing one; there are now about thirty houses situated on a pleasant slope from the lake, and the adjacent farms are very thriving. The Indians are settled on all the reservations made by this state, and are to be met with at every settlement of whites, in quest of rum!

"From Canadaqua I travelled about twenty-six miles through a fine country, with many settlements forming; this brought me to Genesee River. On this river a great many farms are laying out; sixty-five miles from its mouth is a town marked out by the name of Williamsburgh, and will in all probability be a place of much trade; in the present situation of things it is remote, when considered in a commercial point of view; but should the fort of Oswego be given up, and the lock navigation be completed, there will not be a carrying place between New-York and Williamsburgh. The present carrying places are, as follows: viz., Albany to Schenectada, sixteen miles—the Little Falls, on the Mohawk river, two miles—from the head of the Mohawk to Wood Creek, one mile—Oswego Falls, two miles—Genesee Falls, two miles. Thus you see there is only twenty-three miles to cut and lock, in order to carry commerce by water, through an extent of country, capable of maintaining several millions of people. The famous Genesee flats lie on the borders of Genesee river; they are about twenty miles in length, and about four miles wide; the soil is remarkably rich, quite clear of trees, and producing grass near ten feet high. I estimate these flats to be well worth £200,000 as they now lie. They are mostly the property of the Indians. Taking a view of this country altogether, I do not know such an extent of ground so good. Cultivation is easy, and the land is grateful. The progress of settlement is so rapid, that you and myself may very probably see the day when we can apply these lines to the Genesee country—

No tyrant awes them, nor no lords oppress.

"Many times did I break out in an enthusiastic frenzy, anticipating the probable situation of the wilderness twenty years hence. All that reason can ask may be obtained by the industrious hand, the only danger to be feared is, that luxuries will flow too cheap.

"After I had reached the Genesee river, curiosity led me on to Niagara, ninety miles—not one house or white man the whole way. The only direction I had was an Indian path, which sometimes was doubtful. The first day I rode fifty miles, through swarms of musketoes, gnats, &c beyond all description. At eight o'clock in the evening I reached an Indian town, called Tonnoraunto—it contains many hundreds of the savages who live in very tolerable houses, which they make of timber and cover with bark. By signs I made them understand me, and for a little money they cut me limbs and bushes sufficient to erect a booth, under which I slept very quietly, on the grass. The next day I pursued my journey, nine miles of which lay through a very deep swamp; with some difficulty I got through, and about sun-down arrived at the front of Niagara: Here the centinel inquired from whence we came; upon his being told, he called the sergeant of the day, who escorted us to the captain of the guard, he asked our names, (a Mr. —, of —, was with me, and said he supposed we came upon our private business &c)—he sent us to the commandant who entered our names, and offered us a pass to go over to the British side, which we accepted.

GENERAL VIEW OF NIAGARA BY J. MILBERT—1818

"Quite fatigued we were happy to find a tavern, and something to eat; a few hours sleep brought me again to myself. This fort is now garrisoned by the 5th regiment, commanded formerly by Earl Piercey, and had the honor of dancing yankee doodle on the plains of Cambridge, 19th April, 1775. The commander of the fort is a Col. Smith. The day after our arrival we crossed the river Erie to the town of Niagara where probably the British fort will be built, when the present one is given up. We met Col. Bl. This is the man who did so much execution in the late war with the Indians, upon the Mohawk river, Schohary and Cherry Valley. We found him holding a council with a body of chiefs who were at Philadelphia in April last, informing him what they had done there. A Mr. Johnson, some relation of the famous Sir John Johnson interpreter to the Indians was also present; and I have no doubt remaining but they effaced every favourable impression on their minds by presents from Congress. I see enough to convince me of the absurdity of our endeavours to hold the savages by presents, while the British are situated at Detroit, Niagara, &c. They have all their clothing, cooking utensils, ammunition, &c served almost as regularly as the troops in garrison; if they want provisions, they get them free.

"Those tribes called the Six Nations we are at peace with, and take much pains to cultivate a good understanding, but we deceive ourselves. The old men, the women, and the children remain at home inactive, while all the young warriors join the fighting powers against us—this is all they could do, if we were at open war with them. An Indian becomes a miserable being when deprived of his hunting ground, and surrounded with cellars of rum or whiskey. The whole Six Nations live on grounds, called the State Reservations, and there are intermediate spaces settled on both sides by white people; this has a tendency to drive off the game and if by chance they kill a bear, or a deer, his skin goes at once for rum; in this way they are become poor enervate creatures. They cannot keep together a great while, and I expect they will quit all this part of the country, and retire over the lakes Ontario and Erie. Their whole number is about 6,000 of which 1,000 are warriors—how contemptible with their former greatness! The leading men of these six Nations, or what they call Chiefs, were on the road with me going to Buffalo Creek, to hold a council; their object I was informed was to use their influence with the hostile tribes to make a peace. This will have no effect! Power is the influence with Indians; this alone will give us peace. I see some of the Indians who fought the battle at the Miami; and by an interpreter received a very tolerable account of the action; they were of opinion that our troops did not do their duty.

"Colonel B. told me that the only way to make a peace with the Indians was to apply to Lord Dorchester, or the commander in chief at Quebeck, and let him appoint some of the Commanders of the garrisons, say Detroit, Niagara, &c, to meet on the part of the British, to draw a line that shall be deemed right and reasonable between the Americans and Indians, and have the treaty guaranteed to the Indians by the British. I spurned at the idea, and told Col. Butler that it was my wish, whenever Americans became so contemptible, that the whole country might be annihilated.

"I visited the great curiosity, the Falls, and must refer you to Mr. Ellicott's account of them in the Columbian Magazine for June 1790.

"I cannot help being of the opinion that Indians, (or what are called Redmen) never were intended to live in a state of civil society. There never was, I believe, an instance of an Indian forsaking his habits and savage manners, any more than a bear his ferocity.

"The Rev. Mr. Kirkland, who acts as missionary among the Oneidas, has taken all the pains that man can take, but his whole flock are Indians still and like the bear which you can muffle and lead out to dance to the sound of music, becomes again a bear when his muffler is removed and the music ceases. The Indians will attend public worship and sing extremely well, following Mr. Kirkland's notes; but whenever the service is over, they wrap themselves in their blankets, and either stand like cattle on the sunny side of a house, or lie before a fire. This is their mode of passing life: even the bold energy of their forefathers which was conspicuous in the chase, is unstrung in their descendants, and instead of sliding to the grave "like a shock of corn in its full ear," they become ripe for it in youth and often find it by the most disgraceful means."

FIRST PARDEE MIGRATION TO PENNSYLVANIA

Twenty-five years later, this region had become more populous, but material conditions had not greatly changed when Daniel^e (235), Jesse^e (236) and John^e (237), three Pardee brothers of the Southington, Connecticut, branch, traveled through it on their way to Pennsylvania. Daniel, the eldest, set out in 1817, and settled in Meadville. Jesse left his home for the long westward journey when but eighteen years of age, on 22 Feb. 1820, joining his elder brother on 13 March following. John followed in 1823. The Erie Canal was not opened until 1825. As their journeys carried them on to Niagara and the Fort, as well as to the city of Buffalo, we are showing contemporary views of these sites.

Buffalo Creek was changed to "New Amsterdam" when the agents of the Holland Land Company made the first survey of the village lots in 1801-1802. This name was continued for about ten years, then changed to "Buffalo." In 1813, when the village received its first charter, there were about two thousand inhabitants, but it was rapidly becoming known as an important lake port, and was destined to a very rapid growth. The first lighthouse on the beach and the old Terrace pump were among the places of interest to be seen in those days. Fort LeBoeuf at Waterford, Erie County, Pennsylvania, was another outlying frontier passed on the journey to Meadville over the Waterford toll road.

Merchandise was transported to and from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in huge Conestoga wagons drawn by four or six horses, and a daily line of four-horse mail coaches passed through Meadville enroute between Erie and Pittsburgh. A tri-weekly stage line at the time connected Meadville with the State capitol at Harrisburg. On account of the condition of the roads, however, horseback riding was a much more common means of travel.

Meadville had been made the central office of the Holland Land Company for the division and sale of large tracts of land in Crawford, Erie, Warren and Venango Counties. On the 1st of January, 1805, Harm Jan Huidekoper succeeded Major Roger Alden and took charge of the distribution of these lands, which lasted until 1836.

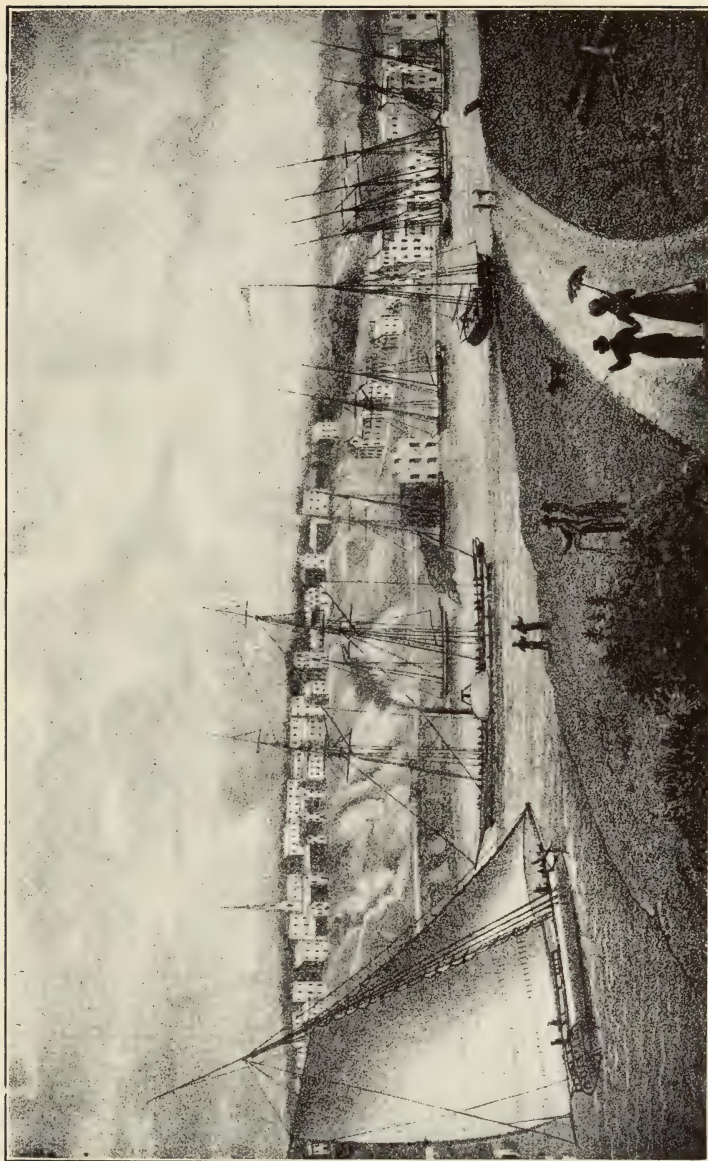

Just prior to Daniel, Jesse and John's arrival in Meadville, a town of less than one thousand inhabitants, Samuel Lord, one of the earliest pioneers, then County Commissioner and Justice of Peace, had donated and deeded to Allegheny College a beautiful tract of land to be used for educational purposes and the Rev. Timothy Alden had been chosen first president of the recently founded college. Major Roger Alden was Register and Recorder, County Treasurer and a representative of the County in the State Legislature.

Other early contemporaries were John Brooks, County Treasurer and Associate Judge; Samuel Torbett, Sheriff and Proprietor of the hotel, "Sign of the Buck"; George Hurst, Proprietor of "Sign of the Cross Keys"; Henry Hurst, Proprietor of the "Spread Eagle." He was prominent in the War of 1812 and was in the State Senate from 1816 to 1821. William McArthur, first Crawford County Treasurer, was later County Surveyor, clerk, prothonotary, and was also elected to the State Senate; Thomas Atkinson, publisher of first Crawford Weekly Messenger, founded 1805, the pioneer newspaper of Western Pennsylvania. He was also County Treasurer from 1820 to 1822, and later served in the Legislature. David Compton was hotel proprietor; Dr. Daniel Bemus practiced medicine in Meadville from 1807 to 1845; Dr. Wm. Woodruff, also one of the early physicians, practiced medicine from 1823 to 1855; Daniel Anderson was Postmaster from 1814 to 1841, and served two terms in the Legislature; Samuel Gehr was proprietor of a tavern, "Sign of the Bear." The first log court-house and jail were built in 1804, and the first brick church was built about that time at a cost of $6,500. General Marquis de Lafayette visited Meadville on 2 June

Jesse and John availed themselves of the opportunity which this land company offered and prospered with the developments of the country as they each acquired, from time to time as the occasion arose, as much land near Meadville as they and their growing families could conveniently cultivate. These lands were covered with rich vegetable soil accumulated from time immemorial. Great virgin forests of oak, chestnut, hickory and other native trees composed the wooded lands. There were black walnut trees in such abundance that this was called the Walnut Tract by the Land Company. As soon as the lands could be cultivated they were blooming with abundantly bearing fruit trees and small fruit-bearing shrubs and vines, as the valuable properties of the rich soil aided in a spontaneous growth. The soil also yielded abundantly of wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, Irish potatoes, and the choicest of fruits and vegetables. As the country was well drained and rolling, it rapidly became very valuable for pasture lands. The hills and valleys in this country were soon covered with sheep, cattle, horses and other livestock. Stock raising, including dairy products, became the most prosperous means of livelihood before the advent of the manufacturing industry, which later supplemented agriculture.

The policy of the Holland Land Company was very liberal and conducted on very honorable principles, which made the development of the land in this part of the country very desirable. In all the instructions of the general to the local agent conducting the purchase and sale of the settlements, the interest of the settlers and prosperity of the country were made secondary in but a slight degree to their principles—a fair and reasonable return for their investment. In the entire history of the settlement and improvements in that part of the country, large tracts of land were nowhere allowed to fall into the hands of individuals and become subject to private or association monopoly where the aggregate results might be unfavorable to the majority. Therefore, a happy, industrious colonization resulted.

LATER PARDEE MIGRATIONS TO PENNSYLVANIA

Other Pardees to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the Holland Land Company were Merrit⁵ (122) and Marvin⁵ (123) who as boys had trekked with their father from Southbury, Connecticut, to Herkimer County, New York. They settled close to the Pennsylvania and New York State boundary line, in Columbus, Pa., and Panama, N. Y. Most of their descendants have moved on to other parts of the country.

The blind and aged Revolutionary pensioner, Thomas⁵ Pardee (106), was brought by his children to Allegheny County in 1837. This branch may have died out in Pennsylvania with the death of his daughters, but it is possible that James Pardee, an early bookseller of Philadelphia, was his son.

Arivovistus⁷ Pardee (413) came to Pennsylvania in 1833 as a result of his interest in railroading. He speedily acquired coal interests and settled at Hazleton, Luzerne County, in 1837. He became wealthy, left a large family, and is to-day represented in Pennsylvania by children and grandchildren, who are prominent in Hazleton and Philadelphia. An extended account of his career is given in the genealogical chapter, page 367.

THE ROMANCE OF ANTHRACITE

Until about a century ago, anthracite, or stone coal as it was then called, was practically unknown. Judge Obadiah Gore, a blacksmith, used it upon his forge as early as 1769, and found the heat stronger and more enduring than that produced by charcoal. In 1791, Phillip Ginter, of Carbon County, a hunter by profession, having on one occasion been out all day without discovering any game, was returning at night, discouraged and worn out, across the Mauch Chunk Mountain, when, in the gathering shades, he stumbled upon something which seemed to have a glistening appearance, that he was induced to pick up and carry home. This specimen was taken to Philadelphia, where an analysis showed it to be a good quality of anthracite coal. But, though coal was known to exist, no one knew how to use it. In 1812, Col. George Shoemaker, of Schuylkill County, took nine wagon loads to Philadelphia. But he was looked upon as an imposter for attempting to sell worthless stone for coal. He finally sold two loads for the cost of transportation, the remaining seven proving a complete loss. In 1812, White & Hazard, manufacturers of wire at the Falls of Schuylkill, induced an application to be made to the Legislature to incorporate a company for the improvement of Schuylkill, urging as an inducement the importance it would have for transporting coal; whereupon, the Senator from the district, with an air of knowledge, asserted "that there was no coal there, that there was a kind of black stone which was called coal, but that it would not burn."

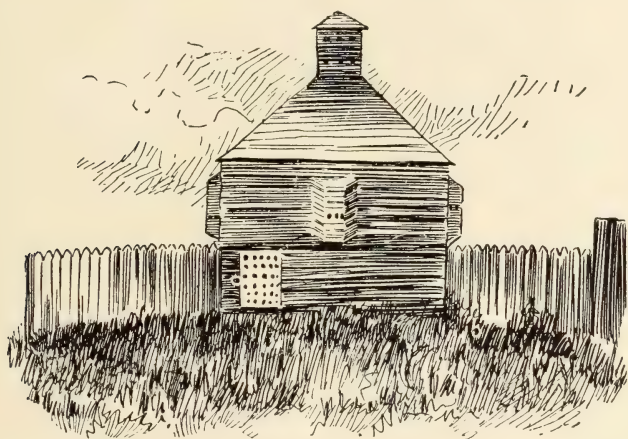

White & Hazard procured a cart load of Lehigh coal that cost them $1 a bushel, which was all wasted in a vain attempt to make it ignite. Another cart load was obtained, and a whole night spent in endeavoring to make a fire in the furnace, when the hands shut the furnace door and left the mill in despair. "Fortunately one of them left his jacket in the mill, and returning for it in about half an hour, noticed that the door was red hot, and upon opening it, was surprised at finding the whole furnace at a glowing white heat. The other hands were summoned, and four separate parcels of iron were heated and rolled by the same fire before it required renewing. The furnace was replenished, and as letting it alone had succeeded so well, it was concluded to try it again, and the experiment was repeated with the same result." The Lehigh Navigation Company and the Lehigh Coal Company were incorporated in 1818, which companies became the basis of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, incorporated in 1822. In 1822, coal was sent to Philadelphia by artificial navigation, but 365 tons glutted the market. In 1825, there were brought by the Schuylkill 5,378 tons. In 1826 by the Schuylkill, 16,265 tons, and by the Lehigh 31,280 tons.

From this time forward the story of anthracite would make a very interesting history in itself, to which the branch of Arivostus⁷ Pardee, who settled in the eastern part of the State early in the development of this industry, has contributed.

THE ROMANCE OF OIL

The next great development in the newly adopted country was in Crawford and Venango Counties on Oil Creek, one of the tributaries of the Allegheny River near Titusville. This was right at the door of the Meadville branch of Pardees, several of whom became interested in the oil industry.

In the administration of Gov. Packer, petroleum was first discovered in quantities in this country by boring into the bowels of the earth. From the earliest settlement of the country it was known to exist. As early as July 18, 1627, a French missionary, Joseph Delaroche Daillon, of the order of Recollets, described it in a letter published in 1632, in Segard's L'Histoire du Canada, and this description is confirmed by the journal of Charlevoix, 1721. Fathers Dollier and Galinee, missionaries of the order of St. Sulpice, made a map of this section of the country, which they sent to Jean Talon, Intendent of Canada, on the 10th of November 1670, on which was marked at about the point where is now the town of Cuba, N. Y., "Fontaine de Bitume." The Earl of Belmont, Governor of New York, instructed his chief engineer, Wolfgang W. Romer, on September 3, 1700, in his visit to the Six Nations, "To go and view a well or spring which is eight miles beyond the Seneks' farthest castle, which they have told me blazes up in a flame, when a lighted coale or firebrand is put into it; you will do well to taste the said water, and give me your opinion thereof, and bring with you some of it." Thomas Chabert de Joncaire, who died in September, 1740, is mentioned in the journal of Charlevoix of 1721 as authority for the existence of oil at the place mentioned above, and at points further south, probably Oil Creek. The following account of an event occurring during the occupancy of this part of the State by the French is given as an example of the religious uses made of oil by the Indians, as these fire dances are understood to have been annually celebrated: "While descending the Allegheny, fifteen leagues below the mouth of the Connewango (Warren) and three above Fort Venango (Oil City), we were invited by the chief of the Senecas to attend a religious ceremony of his tribe. We landed and drew up our canoes to a point where a small stream entered the river. The tribe appeared unusually solemn. We marched up the stream above a half a league, where the company, a large band it appeared, had arrived some days before us. Gigantic hills begirt us on every side. The scene was really sublime. The great chief then recited the conquests and heroisms of their ancestors. The surface of the stream was covered with a thick scum, which burst into a complete conflagration. The oil had been gathered and lighted with a torch. At sight of the flames, the Indians gave forth a triumphant shout, and made the hills and valley reëcho again."

In nearly all geographies and notes of travel published during the early period of settlement, this oil is referred to, and on several maps the word petroleum appears opposite the mouth of Oil Creek. This oil not only seems to have been known, but to have been systematically gathered in very early times. Upon the flats a mile or so below the city of Titusville are many acres of cradle holes dug out and lined with split logs, evidently constructed for the purpose of gathering it. The fact that the earliest inhabitants could never discover any stumps from which these logs were cut, and the further fact that trees are growing of giant size in the midst of these cradles, are evidences that they must have been operated long ago. It could not have been the work of any of the nomadic Indian tribes found here at the coming of the white man, for they were never known to undertake any enterprise involving so much labor, and they had no use for oil if obtained. The French could hardly have done the work, for we have no account of the oil having been obtained in quantities, or of its being transported to France. May this not have been the work of the Mound-Builders, or of colonies from Central America? When these pits were visited in 1855, a spring was found some distance below Titusville, on Oil Creek, where the water was conducted into a trough, from which, daily, the oil, floating on its surface, was taken off by throwing a woollen blanket upon it, and then wringing it into a tub, the clean wool absorbing the oil and rejecting the water, and in this way a considerable quantity was obtained.

In August 1859, Col. E. L. Drake, at first representing a company in New York, commenced drilling near the spot where this tub was located, and when the company would give him no more money, he strained his own resources, and his credit with his friends almost to the breaking point, and was about to give up in despair, but finally struck a powerful current of pure oil. From this time forward, the territory down the valley of Oil Creek and up all its tributaries was rapidly acquired and developed for oil land. In some places, the oil was sent up with immense force, at the rate of thousands of barrels each day, and great trouble was experienced in bringing it under control and storing it. In some cases, the force of the gas was so powerful on being accidentally fired, as to defy all approach for many days and to light up the forests at night with billows of light.

Oil was found in paying quantities, chiefly along the upper region of the Allegheny River and its tributary, the Oil Creek. It was first transported in barrels and teams were kept busy from early dawn until far into the night, during all kinds of weather, hauling great loads of oil over terrific roads from Titusville to a point about six miles below Meadville, called Shaw's Landing, a journey of about twenty miles. From here the oil was taken by railroad to its destination.

A very interesting story was told about one of the teamsters engaged in hauling this oil, who received for his services every tenth barrel that he delivered to the railroad. The oil companies had some difficulty in getting sufficient teamsters to deliver the rapidly increasing production and decided to increase their compensation. One big Irishman was called into the company's office and told that in the future he would receive every ninth barrel, instead of every tenth. He protested vigorously and said that he did not want to make the change. It was then explained that every ninth barrel would pay him more than every tenth barrel, whereupon he consented, but said, "Begorra, that is the first time I ever knew that nine was more as ten."

APPENDIX IV
CALIFORNIA AND THE PARDEES:
The Pioneers of 1849

CALIFORNIA AND THE PARDEES

The Pardees have played their part in the upbuilding of many parts of the country, but nowhere have their pioneering activities been greater or more productive of permanent results than in California. The many Pardees who live to-day in those States which border on the Pacific will take special interest in referring to the careers of those who sought the distant West in 1849 and in the years immediately following.

Among those who were attracted by the lure of adventure and the prospect of fortune were Joseph⁶ Pardee (92, viii), A. Lewis⁷ Pardee (322), and Enoch H. Pardee (327), from Michigan; Timothy Blair⁸ Pardee (605) from Ontario; Augustus⁷ Pardee (177) from Ohio; and William⁷ Pardee (313), George T.⁷ Pardee (449), and Richard S.⁶ Pardee (253), all from New York. The informing letter written home by the last-named after his arrival in San Francisco will be found in the genealogical section (see No. 253).

Dr. George C. Pardee, a son of one of these pioneers, and himself at one time the incumbent of the highest office which his fellow-Californians could bestow, is the author of a most interesting paper dealing with early days in San Francisco, of which he has an intimate knowledge. It was originally read before the Berkeley Club, and afterwards (January 1924) published in the University of California Chronicle; and is here reprinted by permission of the writer.

THE CALIFORNIA PIONEERS OF '49

By GEORGE C. PARDEE

California has had two sets of Pioneers. The advance guard of the first set, inspired and headed by that indomitable ascetic, Father Junipero Serra, came, in 1769, from Mexico. It was primarily religious. The salvation of the souls of the heathen was practically all that the good Father had in view.

Some of the successors of this advance guard became the breeders of horses and cattle. By governmental grant, they got possession of vast stretches of land, waxed wealthy, lived like princes, dispensed unbounded hospitalities, and developed manners and customs peculiar to themselves. They were proud, but not ungracious toward their subordinates in rank and station; cordial, if ceremonious, toward their equals; unsubservient, but respectful, in the presence of their superiors. Their isolation did not tend toward the breaking down of the amenities: it rather cultivated them. Imbibing a sense of personal liberty from the very isolation, vastness, and friendliness of the country they possessed, they bowed to the religious and, with gradually increasing reluctance, to the temporal authority of the Church. The conditions and circumstances under which they lived, if nothing else, led them to be honorable in their dealings. Their spoken word was as good as their written bond, which, among themselves, they were seldom called upon to give. They were generous to friend and stranger. They suspected only those strangers who seemed to spy upon them. In very many respects their mode of living was idyllic; their manners and customs, even if peculiar, were pleasant and unrepellent.

They took to their bosoms the stranger who treated them as equals and obeyed their written and unwritten laws and religious observances. Every hacienda had a guest room, to which was welcomed every wayfarer who passed that way. And in that guest chamber was always placed a sum of money to which the welcome guest might, upon his departure, freely help himself according to his needs.

While coveting and purchasing some of the luxuries which infrequent ships brought to them, they nevertheless did not attempt to ape or mimic the fashions of other peoples, if for no other reason, because of their isolation. Uneducated, if not illiterate, they were intelligent and not, in the broad sense of the word, ignorant. And not a few of them, during the years of their national existence, sent their sons to seek culture and education at the schools of the City of Mexico, at the missionary schools at Honolulu, even at the schools of New England, and a few even to Spain. The attainment of these ends was no simple thing. The expense was great, the voyages were long and uncomfortable in the little ships of those days, when scurvy and other diseases frequently attacked and decimated ships' companies.

The youths thus sent away found themselves in strange lands; among strange peoples, most of whom spoke strange tongues, and whose manners and customs were strange. I have listened to tales of desperate homesickness, even of dire despair, told by some of those whose Spanish California parents desired for their favorite, because eldest, sons the advantages of education, advantages which, not possessing themselves, they were determined their best-beloved should have at any cost, even of banishment from home.

Taking them by and large, the descendants and successors of many of the advance guard of the first set of California Pioneers were, when understood, a fine people. Only when the gringo came and, taking advantage of their simplicity, robbed and plundered and, worst of all, despised and contemptuously misused them did they, very naturally, come to fear and mistrust and hate the horde of, to them rough, uncouth and unceremonious strangers who suddenly overran their land, and whose word, verbal and written, they soon found, to their astonishment and terrible and humiliating cost, was not always to be depended on; whose courts of justice, even, seemed to them always to dispense injustice.

It was only seventy-eight years after the arrival of the vanguard of the first set of California Pioneers that Marshall's discovery set in motion hitherward an unprecedented and in all the world never since equalled hegira. It seemed as if the very floodgate of humanity had opened, as if a veritable Johnstown Dam had broken and liberated upon California a raging human torrent. The sleepy hamlet of Yerba Buena, or San Francisco, was literally inundated by thousands of young, adventurous, husky, hurrying men. The great and theretofore empty harbor suddenly sheltered hundreds of ships. As if an Aladdin had rubbed his lamp, there rapidly sprang up tents and shacks, stores and dwellings, warehouses and wharves, gambling dens and saloons, lodging houses and hotels, brothels and all the paraphernalia that ministered to the wants, the necessities, the luxuries, the debaucheries of a great horde of young fellows suddenly set free from the accustomed restraints of well-ordered homes. And thus was introduced to the easy-going and worldly-inexperienced successors of Junipero Serra the second set of California Pioneers.

They who came to California in '49 and the early fifties were veritable nineteenth century Argonauts, seeking, truly, only the Golden Fleece of California's Hesperides. Very few of them brought with them wives, because the only desire of each of them was to pick up, from the glittering sands of California's "desert," a few thousand dollars' worth of California's gold, and then to return to the comforts of their homes and live out the rest of their days in affluence. They were young, because only the young were adventurous enough to brave the dangers that beset a journey to the then practically unknown California. They were husky and strong, mentally and physically, because only the physically husky and the mentally strong would even think of embarking on such an enterprise. Mostly in their twenties, they called those "old men" over whose heads two score years had passed.

All classes and conditions of men were represented in the ranks of this second set of California Pioneers—the good, the bad, the indifferent. But each class embraced the superlative of its kind. Its few young preachers were the best of the young preachers. Its young lawyers were the best of the young lawyers. There were the best young doctors, the best young civil and mining engineers, the best young merchants, the best young gamblers, the best young cooks, the best young bankers and roughs and toughs and murderers. Among them were honor men from the world's best universities. Among them, too, was a not inconsiderable percentage of the uneducated, the illiterate, the ignorant. Among them were law-makers and law-breakers, politicians of high and low degree, former officeholders of superior and inferior rank, school-teachers, bullwhackers, mule-skinners, safe-breakers, prizefighters, fugitives from justice, the high-minded, the low-minded, seafarers, explorers, farmers, the restless, the discontented, the most proficient in all their vocations—all suddenly dumped upon the beach at San Francisco. Few, very few, of them had any idea of the requirements for pioneering, even of how to cook a meal or use a pick and shovel.

Nevertheless, most of them had high ideals. For, although none of them had any notion of remaining here longer than the short time it would require to gather together a few thousand dollars, they determined, within a year after the advent of the first of them, that a formal government was necessary. So, in all parts of the country, in the mushroom towns and cities, in the remote fastnesses of the mountains, they met in conventions, selected delegates, and sent them down to Monterey to fabricate a state constitution.

It was a harum-scarum horde that burst upon the sleepy Mexican convention-town. It drank deep, caroused a lot, gambled much. But it did good work. It built a constitution better than the constitution that any other state then possessed. Without children of their own; without any notion of themselves residing long in California, where, they were quite sure, no great number of people would, or even could, permanently live; without authority from the federal government, or anybody but themselves, so to do, they formulated a wonderfully complete fundamental code of laws for a state. And, in that code, those wifeless, childless, restless, roistering, merely-sojourning young fellows provided for a system of free public schools crowned by a free, public university. The ideals of New England were theirs.

Whatever they did, they did well, and with all their hearts—they were not triflers, incompetents, inefficient. If it became necessary, in the search for gold, to turn rivers from their beds, they did it. If they thought that gold could be got by washing mountains away, they did it—filling up rivers and bays with the resulting debris, and in the operation scarring deeply the face of nature. If tunnels were necessary, they burrowed deep beneath the mountains. They sunk shafts, and shovelled and picked and panned and sluiced and hydraulicked and long-tommed and rocked away square miles of placer lands—those mostly soft-handed, all inexperienced youngsters, led by preachers, teachers, lawyers, doctors, judges, storekeepers, rich men, poor men, thieves. Between times most of them caroused and drank and gambled; were bearded like the 'pard; swore strange oaths and invented stranger, stronger, and more picturesque ones; toted guns and knives—and used them too, when necessary and even when not; and died unnecessary deaths because of their exposures and their excesses.

Yet, with all their roughness—which, probably, came from the fact that they literally enjoyed a full personal liberty—they were always responsive to the call for help. When they fell ill, their companions crudely nursed them back to health; or, failing that, bore their bodies, as reverently as such a crew could, to the grave. If one of them was injured, they saw to it that he was sent where his wounds could be best attended to. They never failed to extend the helping hand; they never passed by on the other side; they fed the hungry, gave drink to those who were athirst, divided their raiment with those who were acold.

Busy with their own affairs, they were patient with the shortcomings and peccadillos of their fellows. Every man's past was his own and nobody else's business; nobody was curious about it. The present and the future, not the past, interested them. Democratic, as all the young are, warm friendships were engendered between preachers and gamblers, and university graduates bunked with the illiterate. Honesty was not only their best policy; but, because of the lack, outside the cities, of policemen and strong boxes, was their necessity. If robbers and murderers became too much of a nuisance, they organized temporary courts, selected juries, and dealt out untechnical justice, even to the extent of executing the offenders. If the constituted authorities persisted too long in neglecting their duties, they were swept aside and the public safety was restored. For instance, from 1849 to 1856, with a short interval in 1851 under the auspices of the first Committee of Vigilance, San Francisco was the prey of the vicious and the corrupt. During those seven years, the law was administered by the representatives of criminals. Inoffensive citizens were murdered, in cold blood, on the public streets; men and stores were robbed and plundered; no man was safe in his person or property. Finally aroused, the decent, law-abiding citizens, far in the majority, organized, in 1856, a second Committee of Vigilance, in whose ranks were enrolled thousands of the best of the city's inhabitants. Frowned upon by the municipal, state and federal authorities, the undaunted Committee purged the city of its criminals, restored order, made the city safe, so that life and property were secure—so safe that unarmed, unguarded messengers were sent, coin-sack on shoulders, through the streets to pay and collect bills on the semi-monthly "steamer days." And for twenty years thereafter, San Francisco was the safest city in the world to live and transact business in—far safer than it is to-day.

It was, of course, a high-handed proceeding, these activities of the two Committees of Vigilance. But, with the exception of some of the lawyers, all the criminally inclined, the municipal, state, and federal authorities, and one newspaper, the entire city and state applauded the Committee's every act, including the hangings and the banishings. And when its work was done, the second Committee of Vigilance, like the first one, quietly disbanded, its members going back to their stores, their offices, and their counting houses, or to whatever jobs they had.

The California pioneers of '49 and the early fifties came, as do Californians of to-day, from every state in the Union. They came then as now from all the civilized and from not a few of the uncivilized countries of the earth. On the streets of San Francisco and in the mines in those days could be seen white men, red men, yellow men, black men of all shades. South Sea Islanders, Chinese, Kanakas, Lascars, East and West Indians, even now and then an Eskimo, came to my native city in whaling vessels and merchantmen—only the Japanese were missing; Perry had not yet opened to the world the gates of Nippon.

Rough and unceremonious in their manners, uncouth in their dress, though many of them were, the streets of all their towns lined with drinking places and hurdy-gurdy houses, their ordinary speech interlarded thickly with profanity, these young fellows, nevertheless, even in their cups, truly were most chivalrous toward and roughly and embarrassedly courteous to the few virtuous and the other kind of women who began to filter into California soon after the arrival of the first of the Argonauts. Every woman was unmolested and entirely safe among them under all circumstances; her slightest wish was their law; she was treated with rude respect by even the worst of them. And when children, imported and native, began to arrive, they were the admired of all admirers, were smothered with attentions and gifts, and spoiled, no matter who or what their mothers might be.

The vast majority of these young fellows were, as I have said, entirely democratic. Many of the best of them had among their real friends those whose vocations and stations in life, in what was then called "the states," would have forbidden the slightest intercourse with them. My earliest recollections are bound up with four men, one of whom, a very intelligent man, partially blinded by a mine-blast, made his living by sawing wood and doing odd jobs, whistling like a nightingale, singing the most entrancing songs, and telling wondrous stories while wielding a bucksaw. Another was a successful steamboat runner. I say "successful" because, in those days, the only communication between San Francisco and the mines was by water, and, competition between the several steamboat lines being keen, only men handy with their fists or, when occasion demanded, with pistol or knife, could be successful steamboat runners and stand off, in the pursuit of passengers, the runners of other lines. This man, his nose deformed and his ears cauliflowered as the result of many battles, was also one of my cherished friends. The third boon companion of my earliest youth was a gambler by profession, with several notches on his gun-handle, who died, crazed with drink, at the hands of the police. The fourth was a fashionable barber, patronized by the élite of the town. He was also foreman of one of the volunteer fire companies, which, in those days, with man-drawn and man-powered engines, fought, eager-fisted, both fires and other fire companies. It was a high honor and not a small social distinction in those days, to be chosen, by the votes of one's fellows, to be foreman of a fire company. It connoted leadership and brains and courage; it was proof that the recipient stood high in the esteem of his fellow-citizens; for most of the city's best people belonged to one or another of the volunteer fire companies. It was also proof that he was proficient with his fists and never ran away from the possibility of starting a personal or a free-for-all fight on public occasions, such as conflagrations, which, in those days, were frequent.

My earliest recollections are affectionately bound up with these four men. They were grateful patients of my father—his warm and devoted friends. His little son was their delight. They dandled me on their knees, told me entrancing stories, bought me candy and peanuts, toted me on their backs when my short legs tired on excursions along the docks to Meiggs' Wharf to see the monkeys and parrots and curios at Warner's wonderful Cobweb Palace and saloon, or to pick lupins on the sand dunes. They made me many presents, some of which I still affectionately treasure in memory of the donors. They came to my father's house; they worshipped the ground my mother walked on. And she, in turn, when she came to know them and had lost her New England aversion for their unconventional manners and vocations, paid them the highest of compliments when she permitted them to take from her side her only child. They would have died to protect her or me. I have no hesitancy in admitting, with not a little affectionate regard and regret for them, that my earliest companions were men who would not be admitted into good society—two of them being, I must confess, what you might call criminally inclined—but all of them being, according to their lights (which, judged by our standards, were few in number and not very bright), good men and true. Two of them had unpleasant interviews with the Vigilance Committee of '56, of which my father was an active member. Yet, upon their return from the Committee's banishment, they were as loyally devoted to him and my mother as they had been before the banishment, and became equally devoted friends of that member of the family who had arrived in the meantime.

I hope you have not drawn the inference, by exclusion, from what I have said about these four earliest friends of mine, that they were the only kind of people who visited my father's house. They were not. My mother was a devout church-member; and I, of course, went to Sunday School long before I went to any other school. And my father and my mother had a large circle of friends. Among them were professional, literary, and business people. The names of not a few of San Francisco's best people were common in our household. But, really, now, you know, for some reason or other—maybe because I was always sent early to bed—I have no particular personal recollections of them—my close personal male friends, outside of the few neighbor boys, were the four men whom I have mentioned.

In those days before the Civil War, when the feeling between the North and the South was becoming strained to the breaking point, politics was really and truly more unscrupulous in San Francisco than even now. The political machinery of the city was in the hands of the Democrats; and in not a few of the precincts, including the one in which my father lived, no Republican was permitted to vote—no Republican but one, that is. That exception was my father. In some precincts, no Republican was permitted even to approach the ballot box—and in most other precincts Republican ballots, when cast, were not counted as Republican ballots. But my father was always permitted to cast his solitary and therefore useless ballot under the protecting fists of his Democratic steamboat runner friend, who thus flagrantly broke the law of the political jungle. Could there be a greater evidence of devoted friendship?

Some of my readers have, perhaps, drawn the inference that California and San Francisco, inhabited only by the second set of California Pioneers, were nineteenth century Sodoms and Gomorrah's, in which indecency and crime were universal, where the offscourings of humanity greatly predominated, and in which no God-fearing, law-abiding man or woman could, with safety and self-respect, reside. Not so! In the first place, even in the very beginning, the really vicious and the lawless were nowhere near in the majority. There were, Heaven knows, too many of them; but they were far and away in the minority. The first constitutional convention and the Vigilance Committees prove that. But there were enough of them, when organized, as they were from the very beginning, long to dominate, if not to cow, the unorganized majority. They were, too, always on their nefarious jobs, as they now are, while the respectable, God-fearing, law-abiding, unorganized majority were, even as they now are, too busy with their own affairs, too lazy, too indifferent, too timid, too ignorant, too foolish, or all of these combined, to organize for their own protection. It was a mere handful, comparatively speaking, of the vicious and the disorderly, who organized to stuff ballot boxes, elect judges and other officials, and, thus protected, to carry on the affairs of the community, and to rob and plunder and murder. But the great majority of the Argonauts were, from the very beginning, orderly, law-abiding—when organized, their public deeds prove that. When organized, they sternly put down disorder, hung some of those who ought to be hung, banished some of the lesser criminals, and, so to speak, put the fear of the law, if not of God, into the hearts, if not into the souls, of their criminal fellow-citizens. What if it was the custom for the greater part of that majority to curse and swear and drink and gamble and carouse? These sins were the results of the manners and customs of the time and place—the results of suddenly setting free, in a strange and comparatively uninhabited country, of thousands of red-blooded young fellows, who, when under the restraints of the manners and customs of the homes from which they came, conducted themselves with reasonable order and propriety toward all mankind. Many a young New Englander, arriving in San Francisco in the days of the Argonauts, was shocked beyond expression at what he saw and heard. But I have heard some of them confess, in their latter days, that they, too, led astray by the environment in which they found themselves, soon adopted the prevailing mode of speech, and indulged in the same amusements and convivialities. But, if I judge him rightly, I doubt not that the Recording Angel, noting more their deeds of mercy and real Christianity, was discreetly and generously blind and deaf (as a merciful Recording Angel should be) to their venial misdeeds, and judged them not unkindly for their infractions of the moral law, which, after all, varies with the custom of countries and changes with environment.

But there were, among even the first of the Argonauts, not a few men of culture and refinement who never permitted themselves to fall into the rough-and-ready manners and customs of the heterogeneous throng that surrounded them—men who never cursed, or swore, or gambled, or caroused, or indulged in any of the debaucheries of the time and place. These men, if they personally deserved it, were respected by their fellows, even the worst of them. Nobody cavilled at them on that account, or disturbed them personally on the streets, in their places of business, their churches, their prayer-meetings—their personal liberties were respected by those who demanded that their own personal liberties should not be infringed. Bishop Taylor and other missionaries, holding revival meetings on the streets, or even in the fashionable gambling houses, were not molested or disturbed in their devotions by the roisterers who surrounded them. San Francisco and California in those days, even at their worst, were entirely safe from the fate that overtook the city from which Lot and his wife fled.

They were indomitable, these young Argonauts. When time after time, San Francisco was destroyed by fire, they went cheerfully to work, ere the ashes were cold, to rebuild it better than before. When they found, upon the shelves of their stores and warehouses, stocks of goods which they could not sell, because of the simultaneous arrival of too many ships similarly laden, they gave the goods away, if they could find anybody to take them, or put them to some practical use, if at all suited to such purposes—Kearney Street, its winter mud knee-deep, was once paved for a block with boxes of tobacco which an overstocked market refused to absorb. When stripped of their possessions by adverse trade conditions, these young fellows cheerfully took, when necessary, any laboring job that presented itself and unrepiningly set themselves to the task of rehabilitating their fallen fortunes. If their banks failed and left them penniless, their consternation was short-lived—money could be easily made by anybody who really wanted it—as they all did. Nothing daunted them; no disaster discouraged them. They were young, full of hope and determination—the fact that they were there proved that. In San Francisco's first directory were given the names and occupations of not a few men whom I afterward knew as men of standing, wealth, and prominence, who then were following occupations that might be called "humble." One, whom I came to know well and for whom I had a warm affection, and who became a Congressman in war times (and later a most valuable Regent of the State University) and who was the friend and confidant of Abraham Lincoln, was a porter in a second-class hotel—he landed in San Francisco penniless, and took the first job he could get.

And so these young Argonauts worked and accomplished great things; pioneered a great city; laid the foundations broad and deep of a great state; nurtured the growth of an orderly, intelligent, civic society, and provided for a great State University. The Californians of to-day owe a debt of gratitude to the second set of California Pioneers that never can be fully discharged.

Those young and vigorous fellows, like all other young animals, were full of boisterous fun. Practical jokes were their daily mental pabulum. For instance, one of them conceived the brilliant idea of hoaxing the passengers of a newly arrived ship. As the passengers landed and started up Sacramento Street, they were astounded to see the roadway sprinkled with gold dust and nuggets, for which, to the great amusement of the crowds upon the sidewalks, they began to scramble. That joke cost its perpetrator nearly two thousand dollars—he had “salted” the street for nearly a block—and he wasn’t drunk when he did it, either. He laughed long and loud, as did the whole town, at the success of the joke; and he always declared that it was worth all it had cost him to see the astonished and eager “tenderfeet” paw around in the mud of Sacramento Street.

I have said that there were many men of education and culture among the Argonauts. The well-represented professions, the constitutional convention, the personnel of the Committees of Vigilance, the literary people who soon gained a fame for the state that still survives—all these go to prove that. My father’s partner, who picked and panned with him at Long Bar on the Yuba River, was fresh from graduation at Harvard College. I once passed the night, in the mountains back of Chinese Camp, in the cabin of a man whose most prized books were thumb-tattered, age-blurred Latin, Greek, and Hebrew classics. He had gone there, in 1850, fresh from Harvard College, to accumulate a fortune, which he soon found and as quickly lost. Discouraged, or rather sustained by a hope that he never realized, he stayed in the mountains and finally became, in a way, contented with the meager results of pocket-mining, which yielded him enough to supply his few wants. Many similar examples of highly educated men thus marooned might be instanced.

San Francisco and other California cities, almost from the beginning, had their literary, debating, and denominational clubs, their churches, their lyceums, their theaters of high and low degree. The Argonauts delighted in oratory. Men like Colonel Baker and Colonel Tracy and Henry Edgerton earned their enthusiastic applause. San Francisco even had at least one total abstinence organization—the Dashaway Society (strange name, unless it had to do with dashing the flowing bowl away, an act for which it had unlimited opportunities). The Dashaway Society flourished; had, for many years, a large membership; became wealthy in money and real estate. This led to bickerings and legal squabbles, when, its membership having dwindled away (because, in order to “corner” the property, no new members were admitted), a score of years ago the few survivors attempted to divide among themselves its respectable possessions.

I spoke of my father’s mining partner at Long Bar. I came to know that partner in 1904. I was stumping the state for Roosevelt. Arriving in Marysville, I sat in the lobby of the Western Hotel—itself a reminder of the old days. Toward me came, shuffling, an old man. Stopping in front of me and looking me carefully over, he said: “Are you Governor Pardee?” I pleaded guilty. Whereupon he said, “I think, if you would shave off your beard and moustache, you would look just like your father did in the spring of ’51, when he and I, both beardless young fellows, mined together at Long Bar.” Whereupon I grasped his hand and said:

“Why, Mr. Palmer, I’m glad to know you!”

“How did you know my name is Palmer?”

“Why, I’ve heard my father speak of you a thousand times; and many’s the tale he told me of how you and he ‘batched’ together on the Yuba!”

His voice trembling and his eyes filling at the memories of those old days, he said, “Did your father remember me?”

“He surely did; and I’m mighty glad to see his old friend and partner.”

“Well, you know, I never saw your father after the day a man came along on a mule and told us about Gold Lake, up in Oregon, whose bottom was covered with boulders of gold. And your father said he’d be damned if he was going to spend any more time working himself to death for only twenty dollars a day, when there were gold boulders to be had for the taking. And so he went away; and I never saw him again. But I used to read about him in the papers, and I knew lots of men who knew him and told me about him; and I rejoiced at his professional, political, and financial successes. And you're his son and the Governor of California! I'm glad, mighty glad to see and know your father's son!"

We had a glorious time, my father's old friend and partner, and I. Many were the stories he told me; many were the sighs he heaved over the memories of the old days, when friendships were made that welded hearts together, and men, sharing their all, grew to love one another. It was a wonderful exposition of the old times, the manners and customs of the second set of California Pioneers.

One story that he told me was of his first meeting with my father. I had heard my father tell it; but I am not a little ashamed to say that I had almost doubted it because of its bizarreness and grotesqueness, until Palmer corroborated it. This is the story: Young Palmer, walking, pack on back, from Marysville up the Yuba, looking for a mining claim, came upon another young fellow, sitting in the shade of a tree, industriously searching out the entomological specimens in his woolen shirt. To whom Palmer politely said: "Fine day, stranger! Hunting fleas?" To which the seated one, my father, scornfully replied: "Fleas! Hell, no! Think I'm a dog? No! They're lice!" There was nothing strange in that—nearly everybody, in those days and in such places, was so populated. Palmer himself, speaking of pulex irritans, knew better. He was merely being polite, as a tenderfoot thought it right to be. And, seating himself beside his new-made acquaintance, he, too, became similarly engaged.

Before leaving Marysville, I went with Palmer to seek out and view the spot where he and my father had mined and "batched" together. And—do you know?—those young fellows, their contemporaries and successors in the mountains, had turned the face of Nature all awry; had filled the cañon of the Yuba at that point with two hundred feet of mining débris, which, as the years went by, drifted down and filled up the beds of the Yuba and the Feather; helped mightily to shoal the Sacramento; laid down bars and shoals in Suisun, San Pablo, and San Francisco bays; made the bar off the Golden Gate a menace to navigation in stormy weather; and, because of the filling up of the rivers, laid waste by flood great areas of valuable, fertile farming lands, covering it deeply with slickens. In the attempt to repair the damages done by the mining operations of the Argonauts and their successors, prohibitory laws have been passed by the Congress and by the California Legislature, and millions of dollars have been spent by the nation and the state.

But it was these same young fellows whose indomitable wills, industry, and perseverance caused California to be added, without a territorial probation, as a free state, to the Union, thus stopping the spread of slavery westward. It was they, and their successors, who gave the nation, in its hour of sorest need, California's gold, and thus did much, very much, to save the Union from disintegration.

To show how destructive, in their constructiveness, these young fellows were, let me say that my father's first trip from Sacramento to Marysville was made on a large, side-wheel boat. The boat steamed up the Sacramento River, then a deep, clear stream, turned into the Feather, then into the Yuba, and tied up at the foot of a bluff-bank, on top of which, twenty or more feet above the water, was the city of Marysville. It has been many a long year since even a light draft, stern-wheel boat has gone above the city of Sacramento at the low stages of the Sacramento River. Many another long year has passed since a boat of any size, at any stage of the river, has entered the Feather. And as for the Yuba, the top of its bed now lies higher than the streets of Marysville, whose twenty-foot levees are all that stand between her and destruction at the times of the annual river-floods.

Typical of the times, and illustrative of the manners and customs of the California Argonaut days, are my father's first California experiences. He landed in Sacramento with ten cents in his pocket, suffering from an acute attack of cholera morbus. Having studied medicine at Ann Arbor before leaving his Michigan home, his first quest was for a drug store, which he found in a tent on the river bank. Going in, he wrote a prescription for four opium pills. The druggist made them up.

"Four dollars," replied the druggist.

"Four dollars!" gasped my astounded father. "Why, man, I've got only ten cents!" To which the druggist said:

"Just in from 'The States'?"

"Only an hour ago; and I'm sick," replied my father.

"Are you a doctor?" asked the druggist. My father acknowledged the impeachment.

"All right," said the druggist. "Take the pills along, and pay me the four dollars when you get them." My father thanked him, promised to pay, and went out to hunt for a hotel, which he found in another tent, at the door of which was a sign, "Lodgings, $1; blankets, $1." To the proprietor my father told the tale of his tenderfootedness, his impecuniosity, and illness. "All right," said the hotel man, "take a blanket from the pile and pick out your bunk." So, thanks to two generous men and the opium pills, my father passed a more or less comfortable night—barring, of course, his cholera morbus and the practically universal bed-fauna.

The next morning, supperless and breakfastless, my father, looking for his first California job, came upon a Hebrew, whose faltering English made it difficult for him to auction off his stock of high boots, picks, pans, shovels, shirts, flour, coffee, sugar, tobacco, whiskey, and the like. After watching a while, my father addressed the perspiring auctioneer. Said he, "My friend, you appear to be having a hard time. Don't you want to hire an auctioneer?"

"Are you von?"

"I never did anything else," replied my unvarnished, because hungry, father.

"Vell, all righdt, you're hired."

"How much will you pay?" next inquired my cautious Yankee father.

"Von ounce a day," was the answer.

"One ounce? How much is that?"

"Vy, sixteen tollars," was the answer. Sixteen dollars to a man who had been glad to earn one dollar by working, from sunrise to sunset as a cooper, was a fortune. And so my father went cheerfully to work as a successful auctioneer—his first job in California.

Life was a joy to the young Argonauts. They got amusement out of the most trivial and puerile things. "Bummer," for instance, was a stray cur-dog that took up his residence in one of the volunteer fire-department houses, and soon became, because of his friendliness, a welcome table-guest at the restaurant kitchen-doors and the public markets; his popularity growing until practically everybody in San Francisco had at least a speaking acquaintance with him. Soon, he picked up another starveling mongrel, made him his boon companion, slept with him, played with him, ciceroned him about the city, foraged for him, protected him from other dogs, loved him. And "Bummer" and his friend "Lazarus," the latter eating gratefully the more than crumbs that fell from his rich friend's table, became the pride of the young San Francisco.

"Emperor" Norton was another character whom the Argonauts laughingly and mercifully supported, for more than a score of years, as one of the town's many curiosities. The "Emperor," so the story runs, lost his fortune and his wits as the result of one of San Francisco's numerous conflagrations. Imagining himself "Emperor of the United States of America and Protector of Mexico," he dubbed himself "Norton the First," and was addressed and spoken of as "Emperor," refusing to answer to any other salutation. Wearing an ancient silk hat decorated with peacock and turkey feathers, his closely-buttoned, epauletted coat spotted and shabby, carrying a heavy cane carved in the shape of a serpent, this man, always good-natured and condescending and gracious to his admiring "subjects," dined where he pleased; paid his bills with self-issued, royal script; walked the streets the observed of all observers; rode free in all the omnibuses and street-cars; levied "taxes" in small amounts upon his smilingly willing subjects; published his "proclamations" gratis in all the daily papers, and, as one of the town's curiosities, was shown, with pride, to visiting strangers.

"The Guttersnipe" was another demented, harmless being, who silently walked the city's gutters, never on its sidewalks, with downcast, never-raised eyes, clad in rags and tatters, living upon the refuse that he found in the streets. What his name was, where he came from, what was the cause of his mental disease, where he lived, nobody seemed to know. Many attempts were made to help him, to clothe him, to feed him, to give him decent lodgings. But he silently declined all aid, even refusing to pick up money that was dropped in the dust for him. Up and down he wended his solitary, silent, and pathetic way, gathering his rags about him in the nipping summer winds and winter storms, suddenly to disappear, as he had suddenly appeared, and none knew his fate. But the story went about that he was shanghaied, as many men were in those days, and met his fate in one of the "hell ships" that then sailed the seas. Every Argonaut spoke of him with a pathetic amusement, and told his story to the children.

"Warner's Cobweb Palace" was a show-place of the old San Francisco days. It was a saloon at the shore-end of Meiggs' Wharf. Its proprietor was also an eccentric. He delighted in gathering together curios from the sailors off the ships that brought to San Francisco, from all parts of the world, supplies for the city. He had monkeys and parrots and bears and snakes and carved ivories and Alaskan curios in profusion, and weapons and clothing from the islands of the Pacific, and from New Zealand and Australia and all the nooks and corners of the earth, it seemed—all on free exhibition for everybody. His place gained its name from the fact that spiders were his guests of honor and his cherished friends, whose webs, never disturbed, hung in dense curtains from the ceiling halfway to the floor. This "palace" was, of course, a lodestone that drew all the small boys of the city; and even the grown-ups were not ashamed to visit and marvel at its curiosities, while refreshing themselves at the convenient bar. Every newcomer to San Francisco was sure to be introduced to its delights.

My father's adventures, after he left Long Bar's despised twenty-dollars-a-day in search of the boulders of gold in that Oregon lake, will illustrate what thousands of his credulous fellows went through in search of easy wealth. Buying a horse in Marysville, he set out for Gold Lake. Knowing only that it was said to be in Oregon, he started northward along the Oregon Trail. Through Red Bluff, past the then lively, but now deserted, town of Shasta, at that time the county seat of Shasta County, to the mouth of the Sacramento River Cañon, where Redding, now the county seat of Shasta County, then was not, he went. On, up the cañon, then lined with panning, rockering, long-tomming miners, he rode nearly as far as what is now Sissons. There he met some disappointed men who were returning from an unsuccessful search for the mythical Gold Lake—they were all credulous, those young fellows. So, back he tracked to Marysville, where he got odd jobs for several weeks; for he had had enough of mining. Experientia had docetted him that it would take, in all probability, several years for him to find gold enough to enable him to return to Michigan with five thousand dollars, and he didn't want to wait that long—none of the Argonauts did. He concluded that his next best bet would be to take up the practice of his profession. What field could be better than San Francisco, the rapidly growing city, with its comforts and its luxuries? So, to San Francisco he went, and opened offices in Brenham Place, on the west side of the Plaza, now known as Portsmouth Square. Brenham Place (named after Charles J. Brenham, a forty-niner and Mayor of San Francisco in 1851) was one of the best locations in the city; its then magnificent buildings were afterward occupied by Chinese. His practice grew rapidly. Soon he found his offices filled with patients suffering from diseases of and injuries to the eyes. Within a year, he had given up general practice, and devoted himself, for nearly forty years, entirely to ophthalmology, within almost a stone's throw of his original location.

Like the great majority of his Argonaut confrères, he soon forgot his former determination to stay in California only so long as it might take to get together five thousand dollars—like all the rest of them he kept raising the limit. And the new life, with its much enjoyed personal freedom, captured him, as it did the vast majority of the youngsters about him. Like them, he, too, soon grew to love the new city, with its engaging manners and customs, its happy-go-lucky surroundings, its exciting Committees of Vigilance, its conflagrations, its political and personal quarrels and duels between those who came from south of Mason and Dixon's line and those from north of it, its constant influx of new people. And so he stayed on and on, leaving it, for the first time, in 1864, for a visit to the states in the uncomfortable winter time, which cut short his stay and sent him back more contented and better pleased than ever with San Francisco and California.

The reign of the first set of California Pioneers, those of 1769 and their successors, encompassed eighty years. It was seventy-four years ago that the forty-niners came. The successors of the sixty-niners were submerged and swept away by the flood of forty-niners. I refrain from continuing the parallel.

Who is there who will say that, for the benefit of the world at large, it was not best that the forty-niners should have displaced the sixty-niners, even if that displacement was, in many respects, tragical? Who will not say, however sorrowfully, if not regretfully and reluctantly, that the California of to-day is better for humanity than the California into which I was born? The first set of California Pioneers accomplished much, they brought to the notice of the world a magnificent country that, for two hundred and fifty years, had lain merely discovered. The second set, those of '49, started the real development of that magnificent country, and made it the lodestone that tugs at the imagination of all men. Under the sixty-niners, California was a land of romance. Under the forty-niners, it became a land of romantic accomplishment. Some day, somebody will write a real human-history of California and the two sets of heroes who, from all the Lavinian shores, not exiles by fate, but of their own choice, came to California and accomplished deeds that deeply overshadow the adventures of those who set out to find the ancient Golden Fleece. Until that history is written, the memories of those heroes and the days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49 will be reverently cherished only in the hearts of those who have the story of them, as a treasured heritage, from those and the descendants of those who took part in them.

APPENDIX V

HOPKINS GRAMMAR SCHOOL

Hopkins Grammar School, which has many claims to distinction, deserves a few words in the present volume, as it was this school which the first American Pardee served as Rector, and it was here that William Scranton Pardee, the originator of this book, was prepared for college.

It is the oldest secondary school in America on a private foundation. It was founded in 1660 as the result of a bequest in the will of Edward Hopkins in 1657, and it is an interesting fact that the school received no other testamentary bequest from that date until 1926. John Davenport and Theophilus Eaton, the founders of New Haven Colony, were educated in the old Grammar School at Coventry, and Governor Edward Hopkins of Connecticut, who married Governor Eaton's stepdaughter, was educated at the Royal Grammar School at Shrewsbury. The school at New Haven was therefore conceived in the historic line of the old English grammar schools.

Edward Hopkins, the founder of the school, was a great figure in early Colonial days. He was a magistrate of Connecticut Colony from the first, later served as Secretary, and from 1640 to 1654 was Governor for seven terms and Deputy-Governor for six terms. He was also during several years Commissioner for the United Colonies, the early New England confederacy which foreshadowed the union of all the American Colonies in 1776. His will left most of his New England estate in trust "to give some encouragement in those forrayne Plantations for the breeding up of hopefull youths both at the Grammar Schoole and Colledge for the publique service of the Country in future tymes."

How well the school has succeeded in carrying out the intent of Governor Hopkins' will, the following figures will attest. The graduates of the school include three Cabinet Officers, eight United States Senators, twenty United States Congressmen, four governors of Connecticut, three governors of other states, fifty-one members of the Connecticut House of Representatives, three mayors of New Haven, four mayors of other cities, two Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, four Chief Justices of State Supreme Courts, twenty-five judges of other high courts, one member of the American delegation to the International Peace Conference of 1918-1919, seventeen college presidents, ten academy presidents, one hundred and twenty-six university and college professors, three bishops of the Episcopal Church, one hundred and forty-one ministers, three members of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and six members of the National Academy of Science.

With the exception of the town and the First Congregational Church, the Grammar School is the oldest corporation in New Haven, and older than Yale College, much older than the City itself, much older than any of the City's business corporations. The school was one hundred and sixteen years old when the Declaration of Independence was signed. Of the fourteen presidents which Yale has had, seven have been connected with Hopkins Grammar School: four as graduates, two as Rectors and one as trustee. The first Rector of Yale, Abraham Pierson, was a Hopkins graduate of the class of 1664. Hopkins has also given Yale sixty-one professors and instructors, thirty-two tutors, six treasurers, four stewards, twelve fellows and three deans, in addition to preparing more than two thousand boys for entrance.

Hopkins Grammar School is to-day the only private school in New Haven which prepares boys for college. Despite an inadequate endowment, the school has continued its work without interruption. Of recent years it became apparent that the physical plant of the school had fallen below what was required to meet the demand for the Hopkins type of education. Due to the rise of the great preparatory boarding schools, and the lack of dormitory facilities at Hopkins, the attendance from out of town had greatly diminished.

The trustees had kept watch of the trend of the times and for several years had studied the advisability of moving Hopkins from its former location. An option was secured on a part of the Edgewood estate of the late Donald G. Mitchell ("Ik Marvel") covering twenty-two acres. The new school house stands on a wooded hillside with a magnificent view to the east and south of the City and Long Island Sound. It is a little over two miles from the center of New Haven, and readily accessible by automobile or trolley.

An increase of endowment was obtained in 1924, which was the first time in the two hundred and sixty-five years of Hopkins' history that a general appeal for funds was ever made. Although much remains to be done, the school is functioning on the new site. A picture of the new building is given on a preceding page. Plans have been made for a dormitory, and its construction will begin this year (1927). Plans for a separate gymnasium building have also been prepared, and it is hoped that funds for its construction may be provided. At the present time the endowment is still inadequate to meet the demands of needed improvements in teaching and other current expenses. However, since the new building has been in use, the enrollment of scholars has increased by nearly 50%, and the future is bright with promise for this old school, which has kept alive its tradition of public service since the far-off days when George Pardee taught Latin and manners to the "hopefull youths" of New Haven.

INDEX OF NAMES

INDEX OF NAMES

Except for Pardees, names and not persons are listed. "John Doe" for example may refer to two or three individuals of the same name.

Pardees are listed individually, and where several identical names occur they are placed as nearly as possible in order of birth.

The date of birth in italic numerals is placed after those who were born with the Pardee name. This should aid the user of the index in locating the individual he seeks. Where the exact date is not known, an approximate date is given as a guide, hence the dates in the index must not be interpreted too literally.

In the list of Pardees the first reference given is to the page on which the individual's birth may be found. When a second reference occurs, it is to the page on which that Pardee appears as the head of a family, where the details of his career, marriage, and children are given. This being a strictly genealogical index, no note is made of the occurrence of the name on the pages immediately preceding or following the pages which are noted; it is assumed that the reader will readily find such incidental mention by referring to the pages given. The only advantage of including these incidental references is to be able to boast of a technically perfect index; practically, they confuse the novice and retard the experienced user of books of this character.

Married women, whether born Pardees or non-Pardees, are listed twice, once under their maiden names and once under their married names, and in the latter entries their maiden names are added in parentheses.

The spelling in the book and index may not coincide with the way the individuals themselves spell their names. Often the record of a whole group of cousins was furnished to the compiler by one member of the group, who sometimes was not aware of how some of the relatives spelled their names. Many correspondents failed to furnish full names and omitted the middle name or gave only the initial letter of it. If the user cannot find a Mary Jane, it would be advisable to try Mary J. or even Mary. In some instances, a nickname may be found instead of the proper form, as Nellie for Helen. For such discrepancies the compiler offers no apology, as he has followed the form and spelling furnished.

Because of the uncertainty of the authenticity of the spelling employed, slight variations are not distinguished in this index; and the user should rejoice to find that Parmalee and Parmelee are grouped under one heading and that Ann and Anne are treated as the same name.

It is thought unwise to add a lengthy index to include every town and village named in this work. The present index includes:

- (a) Places of importance mentioned in Chapters I to VI.
- (b) Educational institutions from which Pardees were graduated or which they attended. This list is incomplete, since many descendants failed to report their college affiliations, but it will serve as a guide in locating in the book most of the Pardees who had professional careers.
- (c) Under "soldiers" will be found references enabling the reader to locate Pardees who served in colonial or national wars.
- (d) A few miscellaneous entries.
